Contents

Notes on contributors  page vii

1 Introduction: towards a cognitive science of religion  1
   Jensine Andresen

PART I: BELIEF ACQUISITION AND THE SPREAD OF RELIGIOUS REPRESENTATIONS  45

2 On what we may believe about beliefs  47
   Benson Saler

3 Cognition, emotion, and religious experience  70
   Ilkka Pyysiäinen

4 Why gods? A cognitive theory  94
   Stewart Guthrie

PART II: QUESTIONING THE “REPRESENTATION” OF RELIGIOUS RITUAL ACTION  113

5 Ritual, memory, and emotion: comparing two cognitive hypotheses  115
   Robert N. McCauley

6 Psychological perspectives on agency  141
   E. Thomas Lawson

7 Do children experience God as adults do?  173
   Justin L. Barrett
LIST OF CONTENTS

PART III: EMBODIED MODELS OF RELIGION

8 Cognitive study of religion and Husserlian phenomenology: making better tools for the analysis of cultural systems
Matti Kamppinen
193

9 Why a proper science of mind implies the transcendence of nature
Francisco J. Varela
207

10 Religion and the frontal lobes
Patrick McNamara
237

11 Conclusion: religion in the flesh: forging new methodologies for the study of religion
Jensine Andresen
257

Index
288