

HOMER ON THE GODS AND HUMAN VIRTUE

Creating the Foundations of Classical Civilization

This book seeks to restore Homer to his rightful place among the principal figures in the history of political and moral philosophy. Through this fresh and provocative analysis of the Iliad and the Odyssey, Peter J. Ahrensdorf examines Homer's understanding of the best life, the nature of the divine, and the nature of human excellence. According to Ahrensdorf, Homer teaches that human greatness eclipses that of the gods; that the contemplative and compassionate singer ultimately surpasses the heroic warrior in grandeur; and that it is the courageously questioning Achilles, not the loyal Hector or even the wily Odysseus, who comes closest to the humane wisdom of Homer himself. Thanks to Homer, two of the distinctive features of Greek civilization are its extraordinary celebration of human excellence, as can be seen in Greek athletics, sculpture, and nudity, and its singular questioning of the divine, as can be seen in Greek philosophy.

PETER J. AHRENSDORF is the James Sprunt Professor of Political Science and an affiliated professor of classics at Davidson College. He is the author of Greek Tragedy and Political Philosophy: Rationalism and Religion in Sophocles' Theban Plays and The Death of Socrates and the Life of Philosophy: An Interpretation of Plato's Phaedo; the coauthor of Justice Among Nations: On the Moral Basis of Power and Peace; and the cotranslator of Sophocles' Theban Plays. He is also the author of many articles and essays on Plato, Thucydides, Hobbes, Sophocles, Sarmiento, and Homer. Ahrensdorf has received a Fulbright scholarship to study and teach in Argentina, two National Endowment for the Humanities fellowships, five Earhart Foundation fellowship research grants, a Boswell Faculty fellowship, and the Hunter-Hamilton Love of Teaching Award from Davidson College.

HOMER
ON THE GODS
AND HUMAN VIRTUE

---

Creating the Foundations of Classical Civilization

---

PETER J. AHRENSDORF
Davidson College

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom
One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA
477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia
314-321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi - 110025, India
103 Penang Road, #05-06/07, Visioncrest Commercial, Singapore 238467

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.
It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org
Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521193887

© Peter J. Ahrensdorf 2014

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2014
First paperback edition 2019

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

ISBN 978-0-521-19388-7 Hardback
ISBN 978-0-521-14155-0 Paperback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-0-521-19388-7 — Homer on the Gods and Human Virtue
Peter J. Ahrensdorf
Frontmatter
More Information

---

To Thomas L. Pangle

Contents

Acknowledgments	page ix
Introduction	1
CHAPTER 1: The Theology of Homer	25
CHAPTER 2: Achilles and Hector	73
CHAPTER 3: Achilles and the Limits of Virtue	134
CHAPTER 4: Odysseus and Achilles	198
Bibliography	257
Index	267

Acknowledgments

Over the many years that I have worked on this project, I have incurred many debts and it is a pleasure to acknowledge them. An earlier and somewhat different version of portions of this book appeared as “Homer and the Foundation of Classical Civilization,” in Recovering Reason, edited by Timothy Burns (Lanham, MD: Lexington Books, 2010), pp. 3–16. I thank Lexington Books for kindly granting me permission to use this material.

For their generous financial support, I thank the Boswell Fellowship Program and its founders, Thomas and Cheryl Boswell; Davidson College; the Earhart Foundation; and the National Endowment for the Humanities. My thanks go as well to Beatrice Rehl, my editor at Cambridge University Press, for her enthusiastic and timely support for this project, her patience, and her always valuable advice. I also wish to express my gratitude to her assistant, Isabella Vitti, for all her help, and to the anonymous reviewers for the Press for their suggestions and comments.

I am grateful as well to those who invited me to lecture on Homer at Emory University, the University of Texas at Austin, Smith College, Rhodes College, Michigan State University, and Boston College. I benefited greatly from the excellent questions, comments, and criticisms of the students and professors at these institutions.

It was my great good fortune to study Homer with such remarkable teachers and distinguished scholars as James Winn and Kevin Crotty at Yale University and David Grene at the University of Chicago. I also thank the lively and enlivening students at Davidson College who took courses with me on Homer and taught me much about his poems. I am grateful as well to Timothy Burns, Steven J. Kautz, Carmen Nakassis, Dimitri Nakassis, Judd Owen, Lorraine Pangle, John Paulas, Richard S. Ruderman, Brian J. Shaw, and Nathan Tarcov for their friendly advice and assistance. I also wish to express my gratitude to my daughter, Lucia, and my son, Matias, for supporting me in so very many ways and, in particular, for helping me in the preparation of this manuscript for publication. Finally, I thank my wife, Alejandra Arce Ahrensdorf, who, as always, provided me with the wisest counsel, the most timely encouragement, and the most indispensable support of all.

x | Acknowledgments