

Contents

---

|   |   |               |
|---|---|---------------|
| 1 | Introductory  | page 1 |
| 2 | ‘The liberty of Borrowing’:An Essay on Criticism (1711)  | 23            |
| 3 | ‘Common Town-Wits and downright Country Fools’:The Rape of the Lock (1712–14)Epistle to a Young Lady on her leaving the Townafter the Coronation (1717)  | 32            |
| 4 | ‘The varying verse, the full-resounding line’:Windsor Forest (1713)Eloisa to Abelard (1717)   | 48            |
| 5 | ‘... And energy divine’:An Elegy to the Memory of an UnfortunateLady (1717)   | 66            |
| 6 | ‘The life of a wit is a warfare upon earth’:The Iliad , translated (1715–20)The Dunciad (Variorum, 1728–9), Books I and IIA Letter to a Noble Lord   | 79            |
| 7 | ‘That not in fancy’s maze he wander’d long, butstoop’d to truth . . .’:Epistle to the Earl of Burlington ‘Of the Use ofRiches’ (1731)Epistle to Allen Lord Bathurst ‘Of the Use ofRiches’ (1733)An Essay on Man (1733–4) | 91            |

|   |   |     |
|---|---|-----|
| x | Contents   |     |
| 8 | ‘... And moraliz’d his song’:Epistle to Viscount Cobham ‘Of the Knowledgeand Characters of Men’ (1734)Epistle to a Lady ‘Of the Characters of Women’(1735)Epistle to Dr Arbuthnot (1735) | 117 |
| 9 | ‘A true satyrist’:Horace Imitated , Book II, Epistle 1 ‘To Augustus’(1737)Epilogue to the Satires (1738)The Dunciad (1728–9, 1742–3)   | 135 |
|   | Index of passages quoted  | 149 |