

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-29311-2 - Opening and Closing: Strategies of Information Adaptation in Society

Orrin E. Klapp

Table of Contents

More information

Contents

Preface	ix
1 Social noise	1
A broader conception of noise	2
How, when, why, and to whom is noise a problem?	5
2 Opening and closing in open societies	12
A natural rhythm	14
The information game of opening and closing	17
3 The feast of the media	23
Information hunger	23
The advancing wave	24
Fading indigenous signals	26
The media flood	40
4 When information turns to noise	47
Information overload	47
Coping with information overload	60
Societal lags and the absurdity of systems	66
Some hypotheses about social noise	75
5 Entropic communication	81
The great slide	82
Contagions	84
Bewitchment	89
Bad guys	91
Modeling noise	96
Manipulation perceived	99
Social traps	103
Conclusion	105
	vii

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-29311-2 - Opening and Closing: Strategies of Information Adaptation in Society

Orrin E. Klapp

Table of Contents

More information

viii	Contents
6	Good redundancy: identity as playback	108
	Lost past	108
	Uses of redundancy	111
	Lack of reinforcement	122
	Banality as noise	129
	Critique of modernism	132
7	Theory of opening and closing	135
	Ingrouping	135
	The communication pulse of nature	144
	Discovery is closure	148
	The game of life	154
	Information imbalance	158
	Strategies of coping	159
8	Movements and possibilities	168
	Human scale	170
	The monk's solution	176
	Mosaic of life-styles: a pattern for tomorrow?	178
	The surge of new religions: who is the guru?	181
	Conclusion	188
	Notes	191
	References	207
	Index	221