

CONTENTS

---

Part I: There must be a subject

1	The way things are said	page 3
	i The mirror-image of an academic	3
	ii Words spoken with insistence	6
	iii When words wage war	9
2	Between 'caught' and catching	13
	i Those who haven't been caught can't talk about it	14
	ii A name added to a position	16
	iii Taking one's distances from whom (or what)?	20
3	When the text is its own foreword	25

Part II: The realm of secrecy

4	Someone must be credulous	31
5	Tempted by the impossible	39
6	The less one talks, the less one is caught	64

Part III: Telling it all

7	If you could do something	97
	i A bewitched in hospital	99
	ii She a magician?	104
	iii The misunderstanding	106
	iv Impotent against impotence	108
8	The omnipotent witch	110
	i The imperishable bastard	111

vi	CONTENTS
	ii Speaking	page 111
	iii Touching	114
	iv Looking	115
	v A death at the crossroads	117
	vi Ex post facto	123
9	Taking over	137
	i Inexplicable misfortunes	137
	ii The other witch	139
10	To return evil for evil	148
	i Madame Marie from Alençon	149
	ii Madame Marie from Izé	152
	1 An embedded spell	153
	2 Josephine bewitched	156
	3 A meaningful laugh	162
	4 The copula	167
	iii If you feel capable . . .	168
11	Not much believing	175
	i If she can work from a photo . . .	176
	ii The bewitched as witch	185
12	Mid-way speculations	194
	i Concepts and presuppositions	196
	1 A bewitched and his domain	196
	2 The bio-economical potential of the bewitched	196
	3 The system's two presuppositions	197
	4 Sufficiency or excess of force in relation to space	197
	ii Attack by witchcraft and its warding-off	207
	Appendices
	1 The explorer of darkness	225
	2 Ignorance as a profession	227
	3 Robert Brault, 'prophet' of Aron	234
	4 The yardstick of truth	250
	5 Chronological landmarks in the Babins' story	267
	References	272