

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More information

Subject index

- additive independence condition, 139
- additive models, 123–127
- additive value functions, 119
- adjustment heuristic, 96
- agency theory, 338
- agenda control, group decisions, 265–267
- air bag installation, 382
- air travel risks, 378
- alerting systems, 49
- Allais paradox, 146–149, 170–171
- alternative generation; see also creativity
 - creativity in, 55–58
 - descriptive aspects, 52–58
 - isolation of, 53–54
 - prescriptive aspects, 58–62
 - self-imposed constraints, 56–58, 61–62
- altruism, in game theory, 244–245
- ambiguity
 - aversion to, 166–167
 - and insurance costs, 372–373
 - and organizational structure, 342
 - and risky choice, 165–167
- analogies, in alternative generation, 60
- analytical hierarchy process, 224
- anchoring heuristic, 96
- anticipated utility model, 159–160, 175
- anticipation effect, 153–155
- Arrow's theorem, 264–266, 264*n*9
- aspiration levels, 41–42
- asset integration, 151
- Aston studies, 328
- attention, 29–35
 - management of, 46–49, 292
 - and memory limits, 34–35
 - problem-finding pitfalls, 44–45
- attributes, valuation of, 116–119
- auction framework, 270–276, 375–377
- automobile safety, 346; see also seat belt use
- availability heuristic, 94–95
 - and bias, 94–95
 - correction of, 362–363
 - in managerial decisions, 322
 - and risk decisions, 353, 362–363
 - and scenario construction, 106
- backings, in theory of arguments, 84–85
- balance principle, 180, 198
- bargaining, 253–260
 - Nash model, 255–260
- base rate ignorance, 87–92
- Bay of Pigs fiasco, 216–217
- Bayesian framework, 87, 232–233
- benefit–cost calculations
 - in safety estimates, 353
 - and social policy, 355–356, 367
- Bhopal, India disaster, 352
- bias
 - availability heuristic, 94–95
 - and base rates ignorance, 87–92
 - classification, 87
 - and expected utility theory, 141–145
 - in group decisions, 233–236
 - in judgment under uncertainty, 83–100
 - and recall, 113–114
 - in risk information, 350–351, 361–367
 - overweighting of concrete data in, 91–92
- bootstrapping
 - and cognitive orientation, 207
 - in Lens model, 75–76
 - prescriptive approach, 182–185, 197–201
 - regression estimates, 81–82
- Borda rule, 263–266
- Boston Consulting Group, 310–312
- bounded rationality, 221–222, 317, 395–397
- brainstorming
 - and creativity, 59
 - electronic support, 222
- bubble charts, 310–312
- bureaucratic model, 323
- calibration curves, 97–99
- capacity planning problem, 189–192

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More information462 Subject index

- causal models, 106–108; see also
 - prediction
 - concepts in, 107–108
 - refinements, 108–110
- causal reasoning, and bias, 90
- cause of death estimation, 362
- certainty equivalence method, 133, 141–142, 142*n*6, 165, 404–405
- Challenger* disaster, 217
- chance, misconceptions of, 92–94
- chess game analogy, 295–297
- choice
 - expected utility theory, 130–152
 - and valuation, 115–176
- choice heuristics, 119–127
- “chunks” of information, 33
- claims, in theory of arguments, 84
- cognitive bias, 96, 96*n*4
 - and learning from experience, 113–114
- “cognitive dissonance,” 220*n*5, 238
- cognitive orientation
 - and choice of solution, 202–207
 - and creativity, 57–58
- decision-maker characteristics, 204
- collective choice
 - in auctions, 270
 - design of, illustration, 268–270
 - optimal solution impossibility, 267–268
 - theory of, 260–267
- commission bias, 366
- committee decisions, 260–267
- communication
 - cooperative solutions effect, 247–248
 - in groups, 221
 - and technology, 327
- compatibility hypothesis, 164
- compensation agreements, 375–377
- competition
 - analysis of, 308–314
 - pluralistic view, 312–313
 - unitary actor model, 308–314
- completeness axiom, 131
- complexity of problems, 85, 176
- computers
 - in alternative generation, 61
 - cognitive processes, 127–129
 - in decision analysis, 196
 - and filtering, 48
 - group decision support, 221–224
 - mixture with intuitive prediction, 82
 - organizational decision support, 332–336
 - in portfolio management, 185–188
- concrete data, 91–92
- concurrent protocols, 125–126, 128–129
- Condorcet point, 265
- confirmation bias, 113–114
- conflict resolution, 224–225
- conformity, and group bias, 216–221
- conglomerates, 290–291
- conjunction fallacy, 106
- conjunctive decision rules, 120
- consensus, group decision aggregation, 231–233
- “consensus forecasting,” 75
- consequentialism, 171
- consumer buying behavior
 - decision rules, 351–352
 - intertemporal preferences, 172–173
- context
 - and choice of solution, 178, 197, 200
 - decision-making framework, 9, 12–13, 391–392
 - importance of, 342–343, 391–392
 - in organizational decisions, 297–301, 319–322, 337, 339, 342
 - process orientation, 343
- contingent valuation method, 366
- contingent weighting model, 351–352
- continuity, utility theory axiom, 132
- contractual approach, 315–316
- control, perception of, 112–113
- cooperation
 - and equity, 248
 - game theory concepts, 246–353
 - in groups, 221
 - in principal–agent problem, 285–288
- core competencies, 342
- Corvair story, 217
- cost–benefit calculations, see benefit–cost calculations
- cost minimization, 305, 305*n*7
- creativity
 - and alternative generation, 55–62
 - phases of, 58–59
 - “snowflake” model, 57–58
 - traits of, 56–58
- crossing game, 242–244
- cryptoarithmetic problem, 55
- Cuban missile crisis decisions, 295–297
- cues
 - differential dimensional focus in, 79
 - learning of, 80–81
 - in social judgment, Lens model, 71–76, 78–83
- decentralization, 327–328
- decision analysis
 - in problem solution, 192–201
 - sequential nature of, 194–195
- decision makers
 - abilities and limitations, 11, 178–179
 - cognitive style influences, 202–207

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More informationSubject index

463

- decision process
 - assessment, 398–399
 - and contextual view, 343
 - and decision rules, 126–129
 - importance, 392–393
 - organizational decisions, 295, 340–343
 - paramorphic rules comparison, 126–127
 - in valuation and choice, 175–176
- decision support systems, 185–188, 197–201
 - and decision-maker characteristics, 207
 - in groups, 221–224
 - and individual choice, 185–188, 197–201
 - in organizations, 332–336
- decision trees
 - in decision analysis, 192–195
 - and dynamic consistency issue, 170
- delayed consumption, 172–174
- delegation of authority, 327
- Delphi technique, 220, 235–236
- Denver bullet controversy, 225–227
- descriptive analysis
 - and alternative generation, 52–58
 - categorization, 4
 - definition, 4–5, 117
 - in expected utility theory, 131, 167
 - links to prescriptive analysis, 10–11, 180, 198
 - organizations, 314
 - in prediction and inference, 68–100
 - and problem finding, 28–46
- diagnosis, 69; see also inference
- diagnostic reasoning, and bias, 90
- dialectical reasoning
 - in alternative generation, 61–62
 - benefits in groups, 220, 224–225
 - causal model refinement, 109–110
 - in decision making, 206
 - groupthink remedy, 220
- dictatorial rule, 265
- dilemma games, 246–253
- disaster relief, 377
- discount rule, 304, 304n6
- discounted utility models, 168–171
 - independence axiom violation, 168–169
 - and intertemporal preferences, 168–175
- discrete public goods, 267–268
- disjunctive decision rules, 120
- division of labor, 296
- domination principle, 119–120
- driving risks, 378
- duplex gambles, 161–164
- Dutch oral auction, 271
- dynamic consistency issues, 170
- dynamic organizational capabilities, 343n15
- earthquake insurance, 372–373
- economic incentives, see incentive systems
- economic unitary actor, see unitary actor model
- efficiency, 354–355
- egalitarian ethics, 357
- elimination-by-aspects approach, 120–122, 125
- elitist ethics, 357–358
- Ellsberg paradox, 149–150
- emotion
 - in decision makers, 11
 - and risk perception, 378
- encoding probability, 110
- English oral auction, 271
- Entry Deterrence Game, 251
- environmental negotiation, 317–318
- environmental pollution insurance, 373–375
- equity
 - and cooperative behavior, 248
 - and social policy, 354–355
- ethics, and social policy, 355–358
- evolutionary model, 316–317
- expected utility theorem, 133, 402–405
- expected utility theory, 131–167, 402–410
 - alternatives to, 152–167
 - axioms in, 131–133, 145–152, 402–405
 - and bias, 141–145
 - and decision-maker preferences, 203, 206
 - general features, 131–137
 - measurement error in, 144–145
 - multi-attribute functions, 137–141, 421–427
 - and principal–agent problem, 280–287
 - and risk conditions, 349–350
 - uniqueness, 407–408
 - violations of axioms, 148–152
- experience curve effects, 311–312
- expert aggregation methods, 228–236
- expert opinion
 - aggregation, groups, 228–233
 - in noise elimination, 75
 - and prediction, Lens model, 75, 78, 80–81
- extensive form games, 243–244
- external validity, 108
- falsification, 113
- familiarity, and bias, 94–96
- fanning out models, 159–160
- fault tree
 - and availability bias, 362

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More information464 Subject index

- fault tree (cont.)
 - subjective probability technique, 104–106
- feedback
 - in aggregate decisions, 233–236
 - causal model refinement, 108–109
 - learning from, obstacles, 110–114
 - and prediction, Lens model, 80, 110–114
- filters, in attention management, 48–49
- finest, in regulatory enforcement, 379–380
- flood insurance, 377–378
- Ford Pinto, 353–354
- framing, 391
 - in discounted utility of time, 173
 - expected utility theory violation, 150–152
 - and group choice shifts, 220–221
 - in prospect theory, 158
- free-market system
 - assumptions, 350
 - libertarian ethics, 358
 - and risk conditions, 347–350
- frequency view of probability, 101–102
- “functional blindness,” 55
- game theory
 - cooperative–noncooperative solutions, 245–253
 - general features, 241–253
- garbage can model, 301
- generalized utility theories, 158–161, 170–171
- goals
 - clarification of, 46–47
 - definition, 36–37
 - organization level, 38
 - and problem finding, 35–38, 46–47
- group decision making, 213–219, 241–288
 - agenda control in, 265–267
 - aggregation methods, 228–236
 - anonymous interaction, 235–236
 - auction framework, 270–276
 - bargaining theory, 253–260
 - bias in, 216–221
 - collective choice in, 260–267
 - example of, 15–16
 - formal models, 241–288
 - game theory in, 241–253
 - historical developments in, 7
 - planning in, 236–240
 - principal–agent problem in, 276–288
 - strategic behavior, 266–267
 - support systems, 221–224
- group decision support systems, 221–224
- group performance, 215–216
- group process, 215–216
- groupthink, 216–221
- hazardous waste facility decisions, 253–254, 396
 - compensation agreements, 375–377
 - legitimation, 397
 - siting auctions, 270–276, 376–377
 - and standards, 379
 - willingness to accept/willingness to pay, 366
- health insurance, see medical insurance
- hindsight biases, 95–96, 113–114
- historical models of normalcy, 42–43
- “hot hand” phenomenon, 93
- “ideal state” planning, 238
- illusion of control, 112–113
- immediate consumption, 172–174
- immediate memory, 32–33
- imperfect competition, 303
- implementation, 390
- incentive systems
 - causal model refinement, 109
 - and insurance, 368–375
 - in principal–agent problem, 280–288
- incidental reasoning, 90
- incrementalist approach, 96, 317–318, 322, 340
- independence axiom, 132
 - violations of, 146–152, 168–169
- indifference judgments, 141
- individual decision making, 67–176
 - example of, 13–15
 - historical developments, 6–7
 - prediction and inference in, 67–114
 - valuation and choice in, 115–176
- individualistic solution concepts, 245–246
- indivisibilities, 329n11
- industry analysis, 310–312
- inference, 67–114
 - descriptive aspects, 68–86
 - Lens model, 70–83
 - problem solving phase, 67–114
- information, and risk perception, 361–367
- information management, 291–292
- information processing
 - and cognitive orientation, 202
 - in cooperative problem solving, 127–129
 - limitations in, and bias, 85, 395–396
 - and organizational design, 328–332, 338
- input design, organizations, 330–331
- instrumental values, 36–37
- insurance decisions, 368–375, 377–378
 - and ambiguity, 372–373

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More informationSubject index

465

- and biased information, 350–351
- and incentives, 368–375
- by insurers, 372–375
- and perception of control, 377–378
- rebate policy effects, 371–372
- reverse moral hazard in, 369, 371
- internal complexity, 291, 291*n*2
- internal validity, 108
- interorganizational decision making, 18–20
- interperson reliability, 78
- interpersonal risk, 248–249
- interrupts, 44–45
- intertemporal preferences, 168–175
 - behavioral aspects, 172–175
- intransitivity of preferences, 145–146
- intraperson reliability, 78
- intrinsic risk aversion, 136
- introspective approach, values, 412
- intuitive prediction
 - and choice of solution, 181–182, 197–201
 - decision-maker preference, 203–207
 - judgment dimension, 203
 - mixture with computer models, 82
 - and occupational choice, 205
 - overconfidence bias, 79
 - prescriptive analysis, 181–182, 197–201
 - versus statistical prediction, 70–78, 80–81
- inventory buffer, 330
- invisible assets, 342
- isolation effect, 53–54, 151
- Janus thinking, 57
- joint probabilities, 228–229
- judgment; see also prediction; social judgment theory
 - and cognitive style, 203
- judgment under uncertainty, 86–100
 - and availability heuristic, 94–96
 - and base rate ignorance, 87–91
 - key features, 86–100
 - overconfidence in, 97–99
 - regression toward the mean in, 93–94
 - theory of arguments, 83–86
- lateral information flows, 331–332
- lateral thinking, 61
- learning curve effect, 311–312
- learning from experience, 110–113
- legitimation
 - and choice of solution, 179–180, 198–201, 209–210
 - in decision-making process, 9–10, 397–398
 - in group decisions, 224–225
- Lens model
 - achievement indexes, 76–77
 - development of, 70–76
 - empirical findings, 76–83
 - versus intuitive prediction, 70–76, 80–82
 - and theory of arguments, 85–86
- lexicographic decision-making rules, 122–123
- liability
 - in organizations, 290
 - and safety, rules, 380–382
- libertarian ethics, 358–360
- limited liability, 290
- linear decision-making rule, 123–127, 182–185
 - decision-maker preferences, 207
 - prescriptive approach, 182–185
- linear programming, 305–306, 335
- linear regression models, 74–78, 80–81
- linear thinking, 77–82
- local rationality, 317
- local search, 96
- long-term memory, 73–75
- loss aversion, 365
- lottery-auction mechanism, 376–377
- low-bid auction, 273–276, 275*n*12
- M form of organization, 330–331
- majority rule, 262–267
- management science, 305–307
 - in organizational decisions, 305–307
 - use of, 306
- managers
 - behavior of, 320, 322
 - performance determinants, 343
 - prescriptive issues, 322
- mandatory insurance, 377–378
- mandatory seat belt laws, 379–380
- market system, 347–350
- Marschak-Machina triangle, 147–148, 158–160
- Maslow's need hierarchy, 39–40
- master work station, 222
- mathematical programming
 - decision-maker preferences, 203, 207
 - individual decision making, 188–192, 197–201
 - in management science, 206
- matrix design, 332–333
- maxi-min bidding strategy, 274–276
- maximize individual payoffs alternative, 258
- maximum joint payoff alternative, 258
- mean-variance choice criteria, 407
- medical insurance, 351

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More information466 Subject index

- medical insurance (cont.)
 reverse moral hazard in, 369, 371
 memory, 29–35
 characteristics of, 32–35
 limitations, 34–35
 problem-finding pitfalls, 44–45
 mental accounting, 391
 mental mapping, 62
 metadecisions, 126–127
 metaphor, 60
 mnemonic devices, 33
 motivational biases, 96, 96n4
 multi-attribute utility analysis, 137–141, 421–427
 multi-attribute value functions, 116–119, 411–420
 multidimensional perceptual stimuli, 31– 32 multidivisional form, organizations, 330– 331 multinational corporations, 290–291
 multiple regression paradigm, 74–76, 80– 81, 417–420
 multiple scenario method, 308; see also scenario construction
 mutual preferential independence, 138

 Nash bargaining solution, 255–260
 and principal–agent problem, 286–287
 Nash equilibrium, 245–253
 refinements, 251–253
 natural hazard protection, 346, 350–351 needs
 clarification of, 46–47
 definition, 36–37
 hierarchies, 38–42
 and problem finding, 35–42, 46–47
 negligence rule, 381
 negotiation, 253–260
 nested decision structures
 and bias, 89
 role in decision making, 12–13, 394–
 395
 Neumann-Morgenstern utility theory, see expected utility theory noise and feedback, 111–112
 and prediction, 75, 79
 noncooperative solution concepts, 245– 250 in principal–agent problem, 285–287
 normal form games, 242–244 normalcy communicated models, 43
 historical models, 42–43
 planning models, 43–46

 normative theories; see also expected utility theory
 definition, 177
 organizational decisions, 295
 nuclear liability insurance, 373–374

 objectives, 36
 opportunism, 315–316
 optimization models, 191–192
 organizational decision making, 289–343 behavioral perspective, 316–318, 336– 340 conceptual schema, 295–302, 336–340 contextual model, 297–299, 319–322
 and disequilibrium, 338–339
 example of, 16–18, 292–295
 historical developments, 7–8, 289–292
 organizational model, 296, 298–301, 315–316
 political model, 296–299, 301, 339
 prescriptive issues, 322, 332–336
 support systems, 332–336
 transactions cost economics approach, 314–316
 unitary actor model, 296, 298–314, 336–340
 unpredictability element, 301 organizational design, 323–336, 340 contingency views, 324–328
 and decision support systems, 332–336
 and information processing, 328–332 machine metaphor, 323
 output design, 330–331
 prescriptive analysis, 332–336
 rational approach, 323–324 and size, 325, 328
 and slack resources, 329–330
 subsystems in, 324–325 technology effects on, 325–328
 organizational model
 decision-making process, 296, 298–
 300, 315–316, 337
 and disequilibrium, 339
 organizational slack, 329–330 outcome feedback, 80, 111–112
 overconfidence bias, 97–99

 pairwise comparisons, 124, 414–416, 418–419
 intransitivity, 145–146
 paramorphic rules, 126–127
 Pareto efficient solution, 245–253, 256– 257 libertarian ethics, 358
 and maxi–min bidding, 275–276
 and principal–agent problem, 286–287

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More informationSubject index

467

- and risk protection, 347–348
- Pareto rule, 264–266
- passive problem finding, 28
- passive restraints, 368–372, 382; see also
 - seat belt use
- perception, 29–35
 - characteristics, 30–31
 - limitations, 31
 - problem-finding pitfalls, 44
- perceptual discrimination, 31–32
- perfect competition, 303
- permissive management, 327
- personal audits, 398
- philosophical orientation, 202–207
- planning, see strategic planning
- planning models, 43–44
- point estimates, 69–83, 414, 418–420
- polarization, and group bias, 216–221
- policy feedback, 80
- political model
 - and disequilibrium, 339
 - hidden agendas in, 301
 - organizational decisions, 296–300, 337
- politics of organizations, 318–319
- pooled interdependence, 325–326
- portfolio choices, 185–188, 409–410
- Portfolio Decision Support System, 185–188
- portfolio maps, 312
- power, in organizations, 318–319
- preceptive information processing, 202, 204–205
- prediction
 - bias in, 83–100, 113–114
 - descriptive aspects, 68–86
 - fallibility of humans in, 70–83
 - intuition in, 70–78, 80–81
 - Lens model, 70–83
 - prescriptive analysis, 100–114
 - problem-solving phase, 67–114
 - theory of arguments, 83–100
- preference reversals, 151–152, 164
- preferential independence, 138
- premises, 49–50
- prescriptive analysis
 - and alternative generation, 58–62
 - cognitive orientation, 202–207
 - and decision analysis, 192–196
 - and decision support systems, 185–188
 - definition, 5, 117
 - in expected utility theory, 131
 - holistic approaches, 177–210
 - and intuition, 181–182
 - links to descriptive analysis, 10–11, 180, 198
 - mathematical programming in, 188–192
 - metatheory, 209–210
 - organizational decisions, 295, 322
 - and philosophical orientation, 202–207
 - in prediction and inference, 100–114
 - problem finding, 46–51, 58–62
 - societal decision making, 360–382
 - pricing-out method, 413
 - principal–agent problem, 276–288
 - multi-agents in, 283–288
 - sharecropping example, 276
 - under risk conditions, 279–283
 - prior probability, 88–91
 - prisoner's dilemma game, 246–258
 - proactive planning, 237–238
 - proactive problem finding, 28–29
 - probability
 - classical view, 101, 103
 - and consumer risk decisions, 351–352, 361–367
 - frequency view, 101–103
 - group estimation, 228–233
 - misperception of, 361–367
 - multiple meanings, 100–114
 - and provision of information, 361–367
 - subjective view, 102–108
 - probability distribution, 69–70
 - probability encoding, 110
 - probability equivalence method, 133, 136, 141–143
 - probability threshold models, 352–353, 363
 - problem acceptance, 42–46
 - emotional aspects, 45–46
 - keys to, 41–46
 - problem-finding aspect, 24
 - problem avoidance, 45–46
 - problem context, see context
 - problem finding, 24–63, 388–389
 - activities in, 44–46
 - alternative generation in, 52–63
 - aspiration level model, 41–42
 - decision-making framework, 9–10
 - descriptive aspects, 28–46, 52–58
 - in groups, 214–227
 - nature of, 24–28
 - pitfalls, 44–45
 - prescriptive aspects, 46–51, 58–62
 - problem-solving link, 50–52
 - problem identification, 24
 - problem invariance, 164–165
 - problem representation, 42–46
 - keys to, 42–46
 - problem-finding aspect, 24
 - problem-solving link, 50–51
 - problem solving
 - in decision-making process, 9–10

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More information468 Subject index

- problem solving (cont.)
 - in groups, 214–227
 - identification of alternatives, 52–58, 61–62, 68
 - judgment in, 67–114
 - microprocess models, 127–129
 - problem-finding link, 50–52
 - rigidity in, 54–58
 - road map for, 388–398
 - valuation and choice in, 115–176
- problem type, 178, 197–200
- procedural interventions, 9, 215
- process models, see decision process
- product portfolio maps, 312
- production function, 303
- profit maximization, 305, 305*n*7
- proportionate matching concept, 165
- prospect theory, 157–158, 368
- prospective hindsight, 106
- public facility location decisions, 253–254
 - siting auctions, 270–276
 - societal policies, 347
- public policy; see also societal decision making
 - contingent valuation in, 366
 - prescriptive recommendations, 360–383
- purposive problem finding, 28–29
- random error
 - in expected utility theory, 144–145
 - and prediction, Lens model, 78–79
- randomness, misconception of, and bias, 92–94
- rationality; see also unitary actor model
 - in game theory, 244–245
 - organizational decisions, 317, 336–340
- reactive planning, 237–238
- reactive problem finding, 28
- reason generation, 104–106
- rebate insurance policies, 371–372
- rebuttal
 - in causal model refinement, 109–110
 - groupthink remedy, 218
 - in theory of arguments, 84–85
- receptive information processing, 202, 204
- reciprocal interdependence, 325–326
- reduction of compound lotteries axiom, 132–133
- reference points, 391
 - and intertemporal preferences, 172–175
 - random lottery effects, 377
 - and willingness to pay, 366
- reflection effect, 151
- regression analysis, 417–420
 - organizational decisions, 299, 302
 - prescriptive approach, 183–185
 - use in prediction, Lens model, 74–76, 80–81
- regression residuals, 75
- regression toward the mean, 93–94
- regret matrix, 294
- regret models, 153
- regulatory policies, 377–382
- rejoice anticipations, 153–155
- reliability
 - in causal model evaluation, 107–108
 - and prediction, Lens model, 78
- repeated game situations, 249–251, 287
- representativeness, 91–93
- reputation, in repeated games, 249–251
- resilience, in organizations, 342
- resource availability, 178, 197
- resource utilization, 329–330
- response mode effects, 161–165
 - expected utility theory violation, 150–152
 - models, 161–165
- retrieval processes, and memory, 34
- retrospective protocols, 125–126, 128–129
- reverse moral hazard, 369, 371
- rigidity
 - and alternative generation, 54–58
 - and organizational structure, 342
- risk
 - and cooperative behavior, 248–249
 - and decision making, values, 129–176
 - economic market performance role, 347–350
 - expected utility theory, 131–141, 421–427
 - perception of, 378
 - and principal–agent problems, 279–283
- risk aversion, 136, 369
- risk-dimension models, 161–164
- risk perception, 378
- “the risky shift,” 220–221
- robustness, 107–108
- routine decisions, in organizations, 299, 334
- safety standards, 381–382
- sample size insensitivity, 93
- “satisficing” decision rule, 54
- scanning, in problem finding, 44–45
- scenario construction
 - steps in, 309
 - in strategic planning, 308–309
 - subjective probability technique, 106
- schemata
 - in long-term memory, 34
 - and perception, 30–31
- sealed-bid auction, 271

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More informationSubject index

469

- seat belt use, 346, 358–360, 363–365
 - incentives, 368–372
 - mandatory regulations effect, 378–380
- second-price auction, 271
- self-contained units, 330–331
- self-fulfilling prophecies, 111
- self-imposed constraints, 56–58, 61–62
- sensitivity analysis, 195, 307, 335*n*12
- sequential decision making, 408
 - in decision analysis, 194–195
 - example of, 21–22, 194–195
- sequential interdependence, 325–326
- sequential satisficing rule, 54
- sharecropping, 276–279
- sharing incentives, 285–287
- short-term memory, 32–33
- simple majority rule, 262–267
- simulation approaches
 - and decision-making preferences, 207
 - in management science, 306, 307
- size factor, organizations, 325, 328
- slack resources, 329–330
- “snowflake” model, 57–58
- social dilemma games, 246–253
- social influence, 219–220
- social judgment theory; see also Lens model
 - empirical findings, 76–83
 - in group decisions, 225–227
 - Lens model framework, 71–83
- social policy, see public policy
- social welfare, 354–355
- societal decision making, 344–383
 - alternative policy evaluation in, 353–360
 - contingent valuation in, 366
 - economic calculations, 347–353
 - economic incentives in, 367–377
 - equity considerations, 354–355
 - ethical considerations, 355–358
 - historical developments, 8
 - philosophical considerations, 355–358
 - prescriptive recommendations, 360–383
 - and social welfare, 354–355
 - trade-offs in, 354, 366–367
- source of data, 83–86, 89
- special interest groups, 7
- standards, and safety, 377–382
- state-dependent utilities, 140–141
- statistical lethality, 378
- “statistical lives,” 367
- statistical moment models, 161–162
- statistical runs, 92–93
- strategic behavior, 266–267
- strategic business units, 310–312
- strategic decisions
 - decision support systems, 335
 - in organizations, 298–300, 335, 342–343
 - in unitary action model, 342–343
- strategic planning
 - in decision process, 236–240
 - group decision support systems, 224
 - industry analysis in, 310
 - organization decisions, 307–314
 - teleological approach, 237–239
 - unitary actor perspective, 307–314
- strategy map, 310–312
- strict liability, 381
- “subgame perfection,” 253–254
- subjective probability, 102–104
 - general features, 102–104
 - improvement of, technique, 104–108
- symbolic analogies, 60
- synectics
 - in alternative generation, 60
 - and creativity, 59
- tactical decisions
 - cumulative impact, 299
 - decision support systems, 334–335
 - in organizations, 299–300, 334–335
- task differentiation, 296
- task difficulty, and calibration, 99
- team theory, 338
- technology
 - decision-making framework, 9
 - design of organizations factor, 325–328
 - effect on organizations, 291–292, 325–328
 - and interdependence, 325–326
 - matrix design popularity, 332
- terminal values, 36–37
- theory of arguments, 83–86
 - and causal models, 107–108
 - elements of, 84
 - and Lens model, 85–86
- “think aloud” protocols, 125–126
- trade-offs
 - analysis of, 412–413, 416–419
 - necessity for, 396
 - as prescriptive solution, 180
 - in societal decision making, 354, 366–367, 396
- transactions cost economics, 314–316, 338, 340
- transitivity, 131
 - axiom, 131
 - in collective choice, 261
 - violations, 145–146, 152
- transportation problem, 191
- treatment effects, 111
- trembling hand equilibrium, 253
- trust, in groups, 221

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-32867-8 - Decision Sciences: An Integrative Perspective

Paul R. Kleindorfer, Howard C. Kunreuther and Paul J. H. Schoemaker

Index

More information470 Subject index

- U form of organization, 330–331
- uncertainty, 316; see also judgment under uncertainty
 - avoidance of, 317–318
 - multi-attribute utility theory, 421–427
 - and organizational structure, 342
- unidimensional perceptual stimuli, 31–32
- unitary actor model
 - and adaptation, 342
 - appropriate conditions for, 300
 - assumptional fit, 336–337
 - economic approaches, 302–305
 - management science approach, 306–307
 - organizational decisions, 296, 298–300, 336–340
 - and organizational disequilibrium, 338–339
 - strategic planning, 307–314
 - and strategic position, 342–343
- unitary form, organizations, 330–331
- utilitarian ethics, 357
- utility function
 - bias in, 144–145
 - in collective choice theory, 261
 - construction of, 133–141
 - in portfolio management systems, 186
- utility independence, 138–139
- validity, causal models, 107–108
- value functions, 116–119, 411–420
- values, 115–176
 - aggregation of, groups, 228–233
 - and choice, 115–176
 - clarification of, 46–47
 - definition, 36–37
 - hierarchies, 38–42
 - outcome-based models, 175
 - and problem finding, 35–42, 46–47
 - process models, 175
 - and risk conditions, 129–176
 - time dimension in, and choice, 168–175
 - “veil of ignorance,” 357
 - verbal protocols, 125–126
 - vertical information systems, 330–331
- warrants, 84–85
- weak stochastic transitivity, 146
- weighted utility model, 159–160
- weights
 - in additive value functions, 119, 123–124
 - estimation of, 413–420
- willingness-to-accept payment, 273–274
- willingness to accept/willingness to pay, 365–366
- withholding payment policies, 372
- worst outcome scenarios, 352
- X-efficiency, 316
- “zero risk,” 367, 396
- zero-sum game, 242