

Cambridge University Press

0521330890 - Biblical Commentaries from the Canterbury School of Theodore and Hadrian - Edited by Bernhard Bischoff and Michael Lapidge

Table of ContentsMore information

Contents

|                                                                                       | page |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------|
| Preface                                                                        | vii         |
| List of abbreviations                                                          | x           |
|                                                                                   |             |
| 1 Introduction                                                                        | 1           |
| 2 Archbishop Theodore                                                                 | 5           |
| 3 Abbot Hadrian                                                                       | 82          |
| 4 Theodore and Hadrian in England                                                     | 133         |
| 5 The sources of the Canterbury biblical commentaries                                 | 190         |
| 6 The nature of the Canterbury biblical commentaries                                  | 243         |
| 7 The manuscripts                                                                     | 275         |
|                                                                                   |             |
| Texts and translations                                                         | 297  |
| First commentary on the Pentateuch (PentI)                                            | 298         |
| Supplementary commentary on Genesis, Exodus and the gospels (Gn-Ex-EvIa)              | 386         |
| Second commentary on the gospels (EvII)                                               | 396         |
|                                                                                   |             |
| Commentary to the texts                                                        | 425  |
| Appendix I: Additional manuscript witnesses to the Milan biblical commentaries | 533         |
| Appendix II: Two metrological treatises from the school of Canterbury          | 561         |
|                                                                                   |             |
| Fig. 1 Cilicia and Syria                                                              | 566         |
| Fig. 2 Constantinople in the seventh century                                          | 567         |
| Fig. 3 Churches and monasteries of seventh-century Rome                               | 568         |

Cambridge University Press

0521330890 - Biblical Commentaries from the Canterbury School of Theodore and Hadrian - Edited by Bernhard Bischoff and Michael Lapidge

Table of Contents

More information

---

Contents

|                                                           |     |
|-----------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Fig. 4 Cyrenaica and the Pentapolis                       | 569 |
| Fig. 5 Campania and the Bay of Naples                     | 570 |
| Fig. 6 Palestine                                          | 571 |
| Bibliography                                   |     |
|                                                           | 572 |
| Index of Old English words quoted in the texts | 588 |
| Index of Greek words quoted in the texts           | 589 |
| Index of names cited in the texts                  | 591 |
| General index                                  |     |
|                                                           | 594 |