Historical Perspectives on Modern Economics

General Editor: Professor Craufurd D. Goodwin, Duke University

This series contains original works that challenge and enlighten historians of economics. For the profession as a whole it promotes a better understanding of the origin and content of modern economics.

Other books in the series

Don Lavoie: Rivalry and central planning: the socialist calculation debate reconsidered

Takashi Negishi: Economic theories in a non-Walrasian tradition

E. Roy Weintraub: General equilibrium analysis: studies in appraisal

William J. Barber: From new era to New Deal: Herbert Hoover, the economists, and American economic policy, 1921–1933

Acknowledgments

This book is a revised version of my doctoral dissertation, defended at Duke University, Durham, North Carolina, in April 1986. It grew out of conversations with the participants of the “History of Economic Thought” workshop at Duke. In particular, conversations with Neil de Marchi inspired me to rethink and reshape my arguments. This book would have been impossible without his urging and support. I also extend thanks to Roy Weintraub, Craufurd Goodwin, Bob Marshall, Dave Hoaas, and Jim Leitzel, who offered valuable and constructive comments. I am grateful to Colin Day, editorial director of Cambridge University Press, for his support. Finally, I acknowledge the help of my wife, Chung-Hwa, and daughter, Jihyun.
