

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-37848-2 - Putting Social Science to Work: The Ground between Theory and Use Explored through Case Studies in Organisations

Lisl Klein and Ken Eason

Index

More information

Index

- A. Mrs (ergonomist in trade union research department), 190–2, 222, 224 academic social science/academics, 8, 37, 248, 255; links with industry, 51–2, 69; see also external consultants: research action, dynamics of, 7, 13–20, 21; in case studies, analysed, 157–72 passim; see also action research; clients; implementation phase; role of social scientist action process design, 236–8 action research, 14–16, 38, 39–40, 52, 55, 242–3; boundary between consultancy and, 15, 45, 195–6, 243
 Advisory Council for Scientific Policy, 47
 Alvey Programme of Advanced Information Technology Research, 51, 246, 248 anaesthetists' role problems, study of, 9, 25–32
 analysis workshops, 137, 149, 166
 Anglo-German Foundation for the Study of Industrial Society, 2 anthropologist (working on Esso project), 228–9 attitude surveys, 15, 62–4, 125–6, 158
 Automation Group (German trade union working party), 206, 207, 210 awareness: improvement in client, 183–4, 185, 187; self, by social scientist, 18
- B. Mr (internal OD adviser), 192–4, 224, 233, 249
 banking, improvement of customer services (case B), 37, 56, 61, 69–70; content of process of social science utilisation, 158–60; factors facilitating and impeding use of social science, 173, 174, 175, 183, 185, 186, 223–4; objectives and outcomes, 58, 87, 88, 89, 170 behavioural change: and development for management, cases concerning (cases L–N), 57, 141–56, 167–72 passim, 180–2; and problem solving (cases H–J), 57, 117–40, 165–7, 168–72 passim, 178–80
 behavioural science, 8, 10, 23, 50; seminars, 136; unit, 124–5
 Blake, R. R., 151
 booklet, recommendations, 128–9, 167
 bounded projects, 178–9, 182 (fig.), 185–6; see also diffusion of social science learning
 Brandt, Chancellor Willy, 205, 211, 212
 Burns, T., 49
- C. Professor (organisation theorist), 194–6, 224
 canning plant, design of, see food processing company case studies, 1–3, 45–6, 224–5; classification of, 55–7; evaluation methods, 57–60; see also behavioural change; organisational structure and policies; technical systems development
 Centre for the Utilisation of Social Science Research (CUSSR), 49 change processes, 13–14, 50–1, 59–60, 184–5, 220; social science practitioner's role in helping clients deal with, 148–9, 235–6, 251; system study on technical, social and economic change, 205–15
 Chemical and Allied Products Industry Training Board study (1979), 50–1
 Cherns, Professor A. B., 49 clients: involvement in design process, 114–16, 164, 165, 166, 184–5; learning of social science skills (see also internalising-and-converting-into-use), 41–2, 89, 245; relations with social scientists, see social science practitioners; role in action programme, 88–9, 169, 171, 184; role in investigative and diagnostic processes, 158–60, 165, 166, 170, 184, 234–5; see also staff, client cognitive methods, 136, 144, 149 collaboration, between clients and social scientists, 225–7 commercial consultants, 1, 45, 51, 124

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-37848-2 - Putting Social Science to Work: The Ground between Theory and Use Explored through Case Studies in Organisations

Lisl Klein and Ken Eason

Index

More information260 Index

- Commission for Economic and Social Change (CESC), 46, 53, 55, 205–15, 222–4, 250
- Committee of Social Studies (Heyworth Committee), 48–9
- Committee on Industrial Productivity (UK), 47
- competence, professional (of social science practitioners), 227, 231–47
- computer steering committee (CSC), 108, 110, 111, 163, 237
- computer technology, 90, 224–5, 252; computer-based working simulations, 171, 238; human implications, 73, 106–14, 161–4 passim, 176–8 passim
- confectionery firm, design of new factory (case E), 57, 90–7, 222; content and process of social science utilisation, 161–2, 170, 171, 172, 237; factors supporting and hindering use of social science, 176, 177, 178, 249; objectives and outcomes, 114, 115, 116
- confidentiality, 35, 46, 234
- consultancy, social science: attitudes of social science community towards, 33–4; boundary between research and (see also 'splitting'), 15, 195, 243; historical development 48–55 passim; payment methods, 37, 69, 97; see also commercial consultants; practice profession, social science as
- contact groups, 152, 154
- contractual issues, 175–6
- control systems, 10, 24
- counselling sessions, 148, 149, 153 (fig.)
- creativity seminars, 148, 152, 153 (fig.)
- customer service working party, bank, 70–1, 74
- D, Mr (psychoanalytically oriented consultant to organisations), 197–201, 224
- data gathering and analysis, 158–9, 234–5; see also diagnostic process
- data processing manager (of freightforwarding company), 108–14 passim
- data processing typists, team seminar with, 154
- demonstration projects, 249
- Department of Employment Work Research Unit (UK), 51
- Department of Scientific and Industrial Research (UK), 48
- design process: client's participation in, 114–16, 164, 165, 166, 184–5; social science practitioner's contribution to, 90–5 passim, 114, 115, 161–72 passim; temporary structures, 237–8; see also job design
- diagnostic process, 21–2, 25–32, 33, 174, 245; functions of 233; involvement of clients in, 158–60, 165, 166, 170, 184, 234–5; role of social scientist, 62–3, 69–70, 168, 170, 232, 233–5; see also exploratory studies
- diffusion of social science learning from 'bounded' origin, 166–7, 180, 183, 185–8 passim
- distribution company, management training programme (case L), 57, 141–8; content and process of social science utilisation, 167, 168, 172; factors facilitating and impeding use of social science, 180–2 passim; objectives and outcomes, 155, 156
- Dortmund Sozialakademie, research studies, 52
- drawings, explanatory, 145, 163
- E, Mr (manager of psychological services unit), 201–4, 222, 224, 233
- Economic and Social Science Council (UK), 51
- economic environment, effect on social science contribution, 223–4
- educational aspects of social science practice, 40–2, 245
- electrical products company, work structuring programme (case C), 56, 61, 79–85; content and process of social science utilisation, 157, 160, 169, 170, 225; factors supporting and hindering social science contribution, 173, 174–5, 186; objectives and outcomes, 87–9 passim
- engineering institute, contribution to humanisation programme (Germany), 55, 80, 82
- engineering science model of social science practice, 35–7, 232
- ergonomics, 70, 86–7, 107, 157, 191, 225
- ergonomics institute, contribution to humanisation programme (Germany), 55, 80
- ergonomists, in social science practice, 190–2, 228–9
- 'erosion' of social science concepts by clients, 75, 178; see also fragmentation
- Eso Petroleum project, ix, 22–3, 49, 222, 225, 228–9
- ethics, 14–15, 35, 234
- European Community, 246, 253

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-37848-2 - Putting Social Science to Work: The Ground between Theory and Use Explored through Case Studies in Organisations

Lisl Klein and Ken Eason

Index

More information

Index 261

- European Strategy Programme of Research in Information Technology (ESPRIT), 246
- evaluation: methodological issues, 57–60, 182, 186; of social science interventions, 113–14, 139–40, 146–7, 159, 194, 254; social scientists' role as evaluation researchers, 81, 83–4, 160, 232, 239; studies, 162, 163, 168
- exploratory studies, 25–32, 69–74, 91–5, 107–8, 158–60, 234–5, 254; familiarisation function, 21, 162, 233; see also analysis workshops; attitude surveys; needs analysis
- external consultants, 61, 90, 132, 181, 233; based in academic institutions, 45, 62, 69, 71, 79, 106–7; based in independent research institute, 69, 97; see also commercial consultants
- factories, social science contribution to design of, see confectionery firm; food processing company
- familiarisation/mutual education phase, 21, 98, 107, 162, 175, 233
- 'family-training-seminars', 136
- flexitime study, 202
- food processing company, development of new factory (case F), 17, 57, 90, 97–106, 221; content and process of social science utilisation, 161, 162, 163, 164, 170, 171, 236–7; factors supporting and impeding social science contribution, 176, 177, 178, 185, 224; objectives and outcomes, 114–16 passim
- foreign workers in German motor industry, see motor industry, development of 'learning shops'
- fragmentation of social science concepts, 89; see also 'erosion'
- freightforwarding, design of computerised system (case G), 57, 90, 106–13, 250; content and process of social science utilisation, 161, 162, 163, 164, 171, 237–8; factors facilitating and hindering social science contribution, 176–7, 178, 185; objectives and outcomes, 114, 115, 116
- Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung humanisation project, 39
- funding structures, 2, 37, 247–9; central/departmental, 154, 179, 181, 194, 201–2, 249; dual (public/private), 37, 248; effects on social science projects, 95, 97, 175–6, 186; per diem arrangement, 95, 248–9; 'seeding' arrangement, 19, 249; state, 39, 80, 175–6, 248
- 'gate-keeper' problem, 42
- Germany, 147; case studies in (see also distribution company; electrical products company; motor industry, development of 'learning shops'; motor industry, programme of organisational and personal development for supervisors; news technology industry; precision engineering industry; rubber industry), 2–3, 45, 56–7, 254; historical development of social science utilisation, 46, 52–5; social science legislation, 36, 53; see also Commission for Economic and Social Change; governmental policy; Humanisation of Life at Work programme
- 'ghost' consultant, creation of, 41, 100, 159, 242
- Glacier Metal Company, 48
- goals, see objectives
- Golding, W., Lord of the Flies, 200
- governmental policy on social science research and application: in United Kingdom, 46–52 passim; in West Germany, 39, 52–5, 205–15; see also funding structures
- group(s): autonomous work groups, 93, 95–6, 98, 178; dynamics, 18–19, 23, 40, 141, 148, 149, 150, 155; sessions, 126–8; social scientists' work with groups in organisations, 19, 117–40, 165–7, 172, 178–80
- guest workers, see motor industry, development of 'learning shops'
- Hawthorne experiments, 9, 23
- Health of Munition Worker's Committee, 47
- Herzberg, F., 7
- Heyworth, Lord, Social Studies Committee, 48–9
- hierarchies, 19; removal of, 142–3, 144, 168, 181
- hierarchy-of-needs concept, 7
- historical development of social science use: in United Kingdom, 46–52; in West Germany, 46, 52–5
- Human Factors Panel (Schuster Panel), 47, 48
- human relations, 23–5, 40–1, 70, 167, 178–9; situational factors, 23–4; training activities, 25, 50, 153, 156, 171, 181, 196; workshops, 117, 137
- Human Relations Movement, 152

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-37848-2 - Putting Social Science to Work: The Ground between Theory and Use Explored through Case Studies in Organisations

Lisl Klein and Ken Eason

Index

More information262 Index

- Humanisation of Life at Work programme, 39, 55, 79–80, 83, 84, 186, 248; origin and aims, 53–4
- hypothesis testing, 231, 232, 254
- implementation phase, 81, 83, 87, 129–31, 132–4, 149–50, 160, 166; see also action, dynamics of
- in-house units/internal practitioners, 1, 45, 78, 141, 148–9, 190–4, 201–4, 243; advantages and disadvantages of, 123, 165, 233, 244–5, 248; funding, 154, 179, 181, 194, 201–2, 248, 249
- Industrial Health Research Board (UK), 47
- industrial relations, 95, 124, 128, 131, 136, 173, 178–9, 221; as factor in social science projects, 97–106 passim, 125, 138; see also trade unions
- industrial sociology, 55, 70, 81, 90, 225
- industry: contacts with academic institutions, 51–2, 69; industrial process, see manufacturing process
- infrastructure support for social science practice, 186–7, 191–2, 227, 247–51, 254
- institutionalisation (of valued outcomes and processes), 12, 89, 116, 185, 227, 239–40, 242, 252–5
- integration, issue of, 224–5
- interdisciplinary approaches, 55, 71, 80–4 passim, 194, 224–5
- internalising-and-converting-into-use (social science concepts and methodologies), 9–10, 36, 79, 98, 157, 184, 185; consequences for social scientists, 59, 88; process of, 59, 100, 123, 164, 172, 186, 238–9; role of social scientist, 41–2, 159, 160, 255
- interpersonal relations, see human relations
- interview programmes, 158, 166
- Jaques, Elliott, 35
- job: analysis, 93, 94, 103–4, 107, 112, 162, 164, 202; enlargement, 81, 86; enrichment, 10, 86, 88, 98, 193; rotation, 86; satisfaction, 90, 91, 163, 255; see also job design
- job design, 10, 19, 157, 255; committees, 103–4, 161, 163, 236; and industrial relations, 97–106; role of social scientist in projects, 40, 90–5 passim, 96, 114, 115, 163, 169; see also work organisation
- Klein, L., 2, 49, 50
- knowledge-into-use framework, 7–13, 21, 36, 239; applied to case study analysis, 157, 161, 164, 167, 168–72
- Kunstek, Rolf, 2
- language skills of foreign workers, improvement of, 117, 131, 132, 139
- leadership training, 152, 153 (fig.); for managers, 141, 148–51, 167, 195; for supervisors, 117, 136–8, 165
- 'learning shop' model, 131–4, 154, 166, 179; difficulties of transferring to a different location, 133–4, 140, 167, 180
- legislation, social science, 36, 53
- Liverpool University joint consultation research project, 47
- Lupton, T., 49
- management: attitudes to social science practice and practitioners, 82, 83, 128, 130, 133, 150, 203; consultancies, 51, 124; development and training, 57, 136–8, 139, 141–56, 167–8, 184, 230; planning groups, 127; relations with workers' representatives, 68–9, 85–7, 97–106 passim, 124–31 passim, 173, 178–9; research, 48, 50–1; style, 23–4, 168, 239
- Management by Objectives (MbO), 151, 192, 193
- Managerial Grid concept, 151, 152, 153, 193
- manufacturing process, 91–3, 98, 101
- marketing roles, redefinition of, see oil industry
- Maslow, A. H., 7
- medical/clinical model for social science practitioners, 34–5
- metalworkers' union, German (IG Metall), 206
- microfiche, problems of introducing, 191
- Mitterrand, François, 213n.
- models, used to help clients understand design proposals, 93, 163, 171, 237
- moderators (in departmental seminars), 145, 146, 148, 149
- motivation: seminars, 148, 149, 153; theory, 7, 193
- motor components factory, payment systems as factor in modifying organisation structure (case I), 57, 117, 124–31, 221, 237; content and process of social science utilisation, 165, 166, 167, 169, 170, 172; factors supporting and impeding social science contribution, 178, 179, 180, 233; objectives and outcomes, 138, 140
- motor industry, development of 'learning shops' for guest workers (case J), 46, 57,

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-37848-2 - Putting Social Science to Work: The Ground between Theory and Use Explored through Case Studies in Organisations

Lisl Klein and Ken Eason

Index

More information

Index 263

- 117, 131–4; content and process of social science utilisation, 165, 170, 172; factors facilitating and impeding social science contribution, 178, 179, 180, 183; objectives and outcomes, 138–40 passim
- motor industry, programme of organisational and personal development for supervisors (case K), 57, 117, 134–8; content and process of social science utilisation, 165, 166, 170, 172; factors supporting and hindering social science contribution, 178, 179, 180; objectives and outcomes, 139, 140
- Mouton, J. S., 151
- multinational companies, 2, 85, 97, 117–18, 148
- National Economic Development Office (NEDO), 19–20
- National Institute of Industrial Psychology (NIIP), 47
- needs analysis, 153, 168, 170, 181
- negotiation: systems, 236, 237; training, 148, 157
- Netherlands, applied social research projects, 12
- news technology industry, management training and Organisation Development (case M), 57, 141, 148–51, 155, 181; content and process of social science utilisation, 167, 172
- North-Rhein-Westphalia, social research programme, 52
- objectives/goals: bounded, 178–9; congruity of, 58, 178, 183, 230; and outcomes, 58, 87–9, 114–16, 138–40, 155–6
- oil industry, redefinition of marketing roles (case H), 57, 58, 117–23, 249; content and process of social science utilisation, 165, 166, 167, 170, 172, 234; factors supporting and impeding social science contribution, 178, 179–80, 183; objectives and outcomes, 138, 140
- organisation and methods department, bank, 74–6, 87
- Organisation Development (OD), 42, 53, 91, 95, 114, 255; internal OD specialists, 118, 142, 167, 168, 179, 192–4; programmes, 85–7, 117–23, 136–8, 141–56, 170, 180–2; ‘splitting’ between research community and OD community, 14, 33, 51; theory and practice, 13–14, 50–1
- Organisation Development for Advanced Practitioners course (Columbia, USA), 192
- organisational base, for social science activity, 187–9
- organisational environment, links between social science project and, 249–50
- organisational structure and policies, programmes leading to changes in, 56–7, 61–89, 124–31, 157–60, 169, 173–6
- organisations: psychoanalytical concepts applied to, 197–201; research programmes, 48, 49, 194–6; theories of, 10, 21–5, 38–9, 157; see also organisational structure and policies
- outcomes of social science projects, 84–5, 87–9, 95–7, 114–16, 121–3, 138–40, 155–6; client’s assessment of, 67–8; evaluation of, 58–60; factors contributing to successful, 173–89, 228–55; social scientists’ reactions to, 68–9, 89, 106, 113–14, 115–16, 140
- ‘packages’, social science, 11–12, 41, 50, 245–6; ‘off the shelf’ programmes, 157, 160
- Parsons, Talcott, 13n.
- payment: negotiations, 83, 87; systems as factor in modifying organisation structure, 124–31, 169; see also funding structures
- personal development, 22; techniques, 152–3, 168, 181
- personnel: development, 86, 87; directors, 69–70, 90, 97, 130
- Personnel Development Department (PDD) in distribution company, 142–8
- phasing problems, 37, 91–2, 204, 222–3
- pilot systems, 63, 110, 111–12, 113, 115, 116, 164
- policy-change cases, see organisational structure and policies
- political aspects of social science practice, 38–40, 52
- power relationships, 225–6, 250–1
- practice profession, social science as, 2, 33–42; components of successful practice, 228–55
- precision engineering industry, work structuring in (case D), 57, 61, 85–7, 88, 89, 160; factors supporting and hindering social science utilisation, 173, 174, 175, 176
- problem solving, training in, 137, 148, 149, 151
- process, 8, 169; facilitation, 14, 239
- production process, 134–5; need for social

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-37848-2 - Putting Social Science to Work: The Ground between Theory and Use Explored through Case Studies in Organisations

Lisl Klein and Ken Eason

Index

More information264 Index

- production process cont.
 scientists to understand, 91–3, 98, 101;
see also work organisation
- 'professionalism' of social science, see practice profession, social science as
- Programme for Information and Communication Technologies (UK), 51
- progress bulletins, 128
- project initiation, factors governing: in behavioural change/ development for management cases, 142, 148–9, 151, 180–1; in behavioural change/problem-solving cases, 117–18, 124, 131, 136, 178–9; in organisational structure and policy cases, 62, 69–70, 79–80, 85–6, 173–4; in technical systems development cases, 90–1, 97–8,
 106–7, 176–7; see also sponsorship
- prototypes, working, 237–8; see also
 models; pilot systems
- psychoanalytical concepts, 16–20, 34–5, 48; applied to organisations, 197–201
- psychology/psychologists: educational, 55,
 81; humanistic, 141, 149; industrial, 41, 42, 55, 81; occupational, 70, 107, 202;
 psychological services unit, 201–4;
 social, 81, 224, 228–9
- 'quality circles', 138
- Quality of Working Life movement, 19
- Rationalisierungskuratorium der Wirtschaft
 (RKW), 52
- Ravetz, R. R., 7n., 13n.
- reports, 13, 14–15, 64–6, 72–4, 102–3,
 159, 204, 233–4
- research, social science: 'accompanying research' project, 79, 80; applied social research projects, 12; engineering science model of research-into-application, 35–7; funding, 37, 39, 80, 248; gulf between academic and applied, 11, 12–14, 21,
 33–4, 49, 243; historical development, 46–55 passim; interventionist aspects of empirical, 14–16; political aspects, 38;
 'research loop', 37, 74; usability of findings, 9–12, 21, 162–3, 222–3, 224, 238–9; validity and replicability of findings, 7–9; see also academic social science
- research institutes, independent, 1, 69, 97, 190
- resources, social science, 11, 224, 225–6;
 management of, 241
- review mechanisms, 250, 251, 254
- role of social scientist, 58, 81–4, 130, 157,
 170, 171; action and development, 34,
 171, 184, 232, 233–4, 235–43;
 educational, 40–2, 245; effect of age and gender stereotyping, 241; evaluation, 81,
 83–4, 160, 232, 239; facilitator, 127, 129, 160, 165, 166, 167; importance of staying in role, 240–1;
 investigative/diagnostic, 62–3, 69–70,
 168, 170, 232, 233–5;
 outsider/detached, 15, 38, 68–9, 151,
 233; process design, 90–5 passim, 114,
 115, 161–72 passim; profession role models, 34–42; separation of client's role and, 88
- roles, 88, 254; role-play methods, 145, 150, 162, 171; see also anaesthetists'
 role problems; clients; oil industry, redefinition of marketing roles; role of social scientist
- Rost-Schaude, Edith, 2
- rubber industry, change of topic and method in OD programme (case N), 57, 141, 151–5, 156, 181; content and process of social science utilisation, 167, 168, 170, 172
- sales training, 151, 152, 155
- Schiller, Professor Karl, 206
- Schmidt, Chancellor Helmut, 212
- Schuster, Sir George, 47, 48
- Science and Engineering Research Council
 (UK), 51
- Second World War, impact on social science research, 47
- 'seeding' contracts, 19, 249
- selection procedures, 22, 201, 203;
 training, 148, 150
- seminars, 153 (fig.), 163; departmental,
 143, 144–6; leadership, 148, 149–50;
 management, 109, 110, 136, 137–8,
 151, 152–4
- sensitivity training, 136, 148
- simulations, 150, 171, 238
- social science concepts and methods, transfer of, to clients, 41, 42; see also
 institutionalisation;
 internalising-and-converting-into-use;
 'packages'
- social science practice, see practice profession, social science as
- social science practitioners, 33–4;
 development and training, 16–17,
 243–4; experiences of individual practitioners, 190–204; need for professional support system, 16, 191–2, 233, 241, 242; qualities and skills required by, 1, 11, 228–55; relations with clients (see also familiarisation),

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-37848-2 - Putting Social Science to Work: The Ground between Theory and Use Explored through Case Studies in Organisations

Lisl Klein and Ken Eason

Index

More information

Index 265

- 16–20, 67–9, 82, 96, 99–101, 113, 176–7, 225–7; see also external consultants; in-house units; interdisciplinary approaches; management; outcomes of social science projects; role of social scientist; trade unions
- social science research, see research
- Social Science Research Council, 37, 49
- sociological institute, contribution to humanisation programme, 55, 80
- sociology, see industrial sociology
- socio-technical theory, 8, 47, 157; application of, 112, 114, 161–4, 224
- 'splitting', 18, 161, 164, 219–20, 222, 255; between research and practice, 14, 17, 33, 37, 243, 253; historical evolution, 51
- sponsorship of social science programme, 187 (fig.), 224, 249; continuity of, 183, 188–9, 223; see also project initiation
- staff, client: continuity vital to social science intervention, 179–80, 186, 187 (fig.), 223, 249; numbers involved in social science programme, see bounded projects
- Stalker, G. M., 49
- Stansfield, R. G., 47
- steering committees, 250
- strategic issues involved in management of social science practice, 247, 251–2
- strikes, 124, 127–8, 134
- structural factors, 10, 24–5; see also organisational structure
- studies, initial, see exploratory studies
- success or failure of social science intervention, factors contributing to, 173–89, 228–55
- supervisors: organisational and personal development programmes for, 117, 134–8, 137–9, 148, 150, 154; role and motivation in transport industry, 61–9
- surveys, see attitude surveys; exploratory studies
- systems concepts, 228–9; relationship between value stance of social scientist and system boundaries, 38–9, 40, 229
- systems design processes, see technical systems development
- task analysis, 93, 94, 103–4, 107, 112, 162, 164, 202
- Task Force on the Practice of Psychology in Industry (1971), ix
- task-oriented training, 144
- Tavistock Institute of Human Relations, 34, 47–8, 49
- teamwork development, 118, 122, 130, 148, 149, 167, 239
- Technical Change Centre, 51
- technical systems development, cases in, 57, 90–116, 161–4, 176–8, 188, 190–2; see also confectionery firm; food processing company; freightforwarding technology, 25, 79; social science contribution to managing change in (see also technical systems development), 134–5, 190–2, 205–15
- telecommunications equipment manufacturer, see news technology industry
- temporary structures, see transitional systems
- territory, issue of (in power relationships), 226
- Theme-Centred Interaction (TCI), 136, 143, 145, 147, 153–4, 155
- time/timing, issues of, 24, 177–8; see also phasing problems
- trade unions, 142, 170, 202; involvement in social science projects, 54, 82, 110, 124–8 passim, 179, 203; relations with social science practitioners, 54, 68–9, 82, 99, 102, 177; see also industrial relations; works council
- training, 22, 50, 85, 104–5, 165; activities, as 'transitional systems', 171, 237, 239–40, 254; departments, industrial, programmes run by, 148–56; role of social scientists, 40–2, 80, 165, 183–4; see also management
- Transactional Analysis, 136, 152–3, 155
- transfer: of social science learning from place of origin to new location/client population, 167, 180, 183, 185–6, 188; see also social science concepts and methods, transfer of
- transference and counter-transference, concepts of, 17–18, 20, 197–8, 229
- 'transitional object', concept of, 199–200
- transitional systems, 21, 163–4, 166–7, 239, 250, 254–5; organisational structures, 163, 171, 236–7; physical manifestations of the future, 163, 171–2, 237–8
- transport industry, role of supervisors (case A), 56, 61–9; content and process of social science utilisation, 158–9, 160, 169, 171, 234, 250; factors facilitating and hindering social science contribution, 173, 174, 175; objectives and outcomes, 87, 88, 89
- United Kingdom, 254; case studies in (see

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-37848-2 - Putting Social Science to Work: The Ground between Theory and Use Explored through Case Studies in Organisations

Lisl Klein and Ken Eason

Index

More information266 *Index*United Kingdom cont.

also banking; confectionery firm; food processing company; freightforwarding; motor components factory; oil industry; transport industry), 2-3, 45-6, 56-7; historic development of social science utilisation, 46-52

United States, OD tradition, 13, 50

Vall, M. van de, 12

values, x-xii, 255; of social scientist, link between system boundaries and, 38-9, 40, 229

vision, in the social sciences, 176, 228-31

wastage survey, 203

weighing machine manufacturer, work structuring project by, see precision engineering industry

Winnicott, D. W., 199, 201, 237 withdrawal of social scientist from project, problems of, 241-2

Woodward, J. 49

Work and Technology programme (Germany), 54

work groups, autonomous, 93, 95-6, 98, 178

work organisation/structures, 54, 78, 107-8, 147, 166, 255; changes in, 10, 40, 79-87; impact of computerisation, 107-8, 112; see also job design; organisational structure

Work Organisation Research Centre, 51

Work Research Unit, Department of Employment, 51

working hours, 87

working parties, 171, 203-4, 236, 237

works councils, 53-4; attitude to social science activities, 142, 150;

collaboration with management in work structuring programme, 85-7, 173

workshops, 137, 148, 149, 163, 166

Y, Mr (OD practitioner in distribution company), 142, 143, 148