

Index

- act, intelligible and empirical, 5, 82, 139, 153–4
- actuality, 248
- agency, see rational agency
- alienation, 193, 194
- Ameriks, Karl, 62, 163, 201, 265, 272–3, 284
- anomalous monism, 71, 76, 77–81
- anthropology, 31, 32, 33, 43, 46, 154, 206, 253
- Anthropology from a Practical Point of View*, 34, 252, 253, 265
- antinomy of judgment, see Critique of Judgment
- Antinomy of Pure Reason, 11, 252
- antinomial conflict in, 12–13, 18–19, 22, 251
- distinction between mathematical and dynamical, 14, 22, 23–5
- Third Antinomy, 14–27, 54, 243; see also Critique of Judgment; antithesis of, 14, 19–22, 23–4, 27; and Beck's reconstruction of Kant's theory, 73, 75–6; resolution of, 12, 15, 22–25, 76, 243, 254; thesis of, 14–19, 21, 22, 23–4, 27, 251; verificationism in, 20, 22, 27
- appearances, 33, 46
- and things in themselves, 3–4, 12, 14, 19, 250
- apperception, 36–7, 40, 78–9, 90, 222, 254
- arbitrium*, see will
- Aristotle, 137, 191
- concept of hexis, 139, 141, 143
- conception of virtue, 168
- Aune, Bruce, 210–11, 261, 279
- autocracy, 164, 246, 285
- autonomy, 247, 263
- and analytic connection to practical reason, 134, 220, 228
- and autocracy, 164, 246, 285
- and categorical imperative, 94–5, 99–101, 105–6, 225
- and heteronomy, 95, 96–105, 237, 240, 264
- and incompatibilism, 95, 255
- and independence of empirical inclination, 97–9, 231, 237, 240–2, 248
- and membership in the intelligible world, 241–2
- and moral law, 2, 95, 98, 219, 221, 226, 237, 240
- and practical freedom, 96–9, 140
- as practical spontaneity, 96, 134–5
- principle of, 99–106
- as property of will, 94–9, 104–6, 202, 240, 265
- and transcendental freedom, 207
- see also Critique of Practical Reason*; Groundwork; Wille-Willkür
- Baron, Marcia, 119, 278
- Beck, Lewis White
- and The Actor and the Spectator, 72
- on disparity between Dialectic and Canon, 57–8, 64
- on fact of reason, 232–3, 235, 245, 279, 282, 284
- and five concepts of freedom in Kant, 1, 71, 259
- on incentive, 121
- interpretation of freedom in Critique of Pure Reason, 71–6
- on maxims, 87–8, 261, 262, 263
- and reasons—causes distinction, 72, 75
- on Wille-Willkür distinction, 131, 132
- Bennett, Jonathan, 16–17, 250, 269
- Benson, Paul, 119–20, 266
- Beverluis, John, 274
- Bittner, Rudiger, 91, 92, 96, 261, 262, 263
- Brandt, Reinhard, 219–20, 279, 281
- Broad, C. D., 251
- Broadie, Alexander, 272
- Buchdahl, Gerd, 253
- Canon
- discussion of freedom in, 35–6, 54–9, 63–4, 66, 257
- and “patchwork theory,” 54, 56–8
- Carnois, Bernard, 250, 256, 257, 263, 269

INDEX

- categorical imperative deduction of, 69, 201, 210–13, 214, 220, 224, 248–9, 279, 280, 281
and fact of reason, 230, 232
formulations of, 68, 99, 104–5, 202, 210, 278
and interest independence, 100–1, 104–5, 213, 264–5 as limiting condition, 194, 216
and maxims, 87, 89, 211, 262
universality of, 100, 104, 205, 268 see also autonomy; Hegel, G. W. F.; imperatives
- categories, 13, 214, 235
- causality
and determination and lawfulness, 33–4, 77, 202, 253 and empirical lawfulness, 202
of freedom, 14–15, 25–7, 49, 202, 231, 232, 243–5, 283–4 intelligible, 244, 284
law of, 20, 30
natural (“in accordance with the laws of nature”), 14–18, 218, 284 of nature, 2, 14–16, 25–7, 62, 257
principle of, 16–19
of reason, see reason, causality of
see also freedom; inclination; moral law
- cause
contrast between partial and sufficient, 16
See also causality; inclination; reasons–causes distinction
- character
compatibility of empirical and intelligible, 5–6, 41–6 distinction between empirical and intelligible, 27, 29–34, 49, 58, 75, 138, 223, 255
empirical, 29–34, 52, 81
intelligible, 35–41, 50–1, 52, 129, 226, 254
and transcendental idealism, 5, 43–6, 52 see also Gesinnung; rational agency
- choice, see Willkür
- Christianity, 146–7, 148, 173, 185
- Clarke, S., 13, 17, 26, 27
- compatibilism, 27, 34, 43, 74, 203, 246, 249, 252 contemporary versions of, 76–8, 285 Kant’s views on, 5, 29, 35, 36, 64 relation of Kant’s theory to, 2, 28, 49, 57, 75, 78–81, 207, 255
See also practical freedom
- conscience, 265
- cosmological ideas, 11, 13, 254
- Cramer, Konrad, 261
- Critique of Judgment*, 1, 167, 255
Antinomy of Teleological Judgment compared with Third Antinomy in Critique of Pure Reason, 73, 75–6 mechanistic and teleological explanation in, 33, 73, 76, 77 naturalistic account of freedom in, 77–8
Critique of Practical Reason, 1, 34, 214, 255 “Analytic of Pure Practical Reason,” 121, 203, 236, 241
autonomy in, 96, 98–104, 140, 236, 242
critique of heteronomy in, 99–104 deduction of freedom in, 3, 201, 227, 228, 231–43, 244, 248, 256 definitions of “maxim” in, 87–9
fact of reason in, 230–3, 237–8 Gesinnung in, 137–8, 140
holiness in, 171–3
Reciprocity Thesis in, 202–4, 210–13
respect for law in, 121–7, 155
see also postulate
Critique of Pure Reason, 29, 85, 214, 219, 234–5 analysis of freedom in, 35–6, 41–3, 46, 62, 71, 140, 218, 222–6 passim, 243, 246, 247, 255; see also Beck, Lewis White conception of practical freedom, see Canon and Kant’s moral theory, 66–7, 69–70
Third Antinomy, see Antinomy of Pure Reason
see also deduction; postulate
- Davidson, Donald, 71, 77–81
- deduction of categorical imperative, 69, 201, 210–13, 214, 220, 248–9, 279, 281 circularity of, 214, 216, 218–21, 222–3, 224, 239, 245 contrast between Critique of Practical Reason and Groundwork, 2–3, 219, 222, 228, 236, 238, 241–3, 244–5, 248 in Critique of Pure Reason, 3, 37, 234–6, 241, 254 early strategy for, 68–9, 215 from fact of reason, 235–9, 241–5, 249
of freedom, 3, 201, 214, 219, 221–4, 230, 239–48, 249
in Groundwork, 2–3, 201, 214, 219, 223–30, 237, 241–2, 243, 279–80 of moral law, 3, 195, 201–6, 214, 216, 218–22, 225–8, 230, 233–9, 243–5, 249, 256, 258; and of categorical imperative, 224–7, 280, 281 see also Critique of Practical Reason; Groundwork; Henrich, Dieter; Reciprocity Thesis; transcendental freedom
- deliberation, 36, 78–9, 192

INDEX

- practical, 233, 234–6
practical and theoretical (two standpoints), 192, 194–5 and spontaneity, 38–9
and transcendental apperception, 36, 78–9
Denkungsart (mode of thought), 47, 137, 140, 165, 170, 234 Dennett, Dan, 81
descriptions of events, 43–4, 77–8 desire, 35, 108, 168, 194, 195, 210 faculty of, 127, 130
see also inclination
determinism
causal, 2, 28, 33, 41, 43, 44, 239, 249 psychological, 31, 34, 189, 240 diabolical will, 150, 158, 160, 168 Dialectic, 35, 38, 39, 45–6, 63, 65 contrast with Canon discussion of freedom, 54–9, 63
and “patchwork theory,” 54, 56–8 Dietrichson, Paul, 274
divine grace, see virtue divine will, 17, 121–2, 267 Doctrine of Virtue, The, 108, 119, 149, 181, 265
holiness in, 171, 175–9
nature of virtue in, 162–71
dogmatism, 13, 230
of practical reason, 3, 236 duty
of beneficence, 112, 119, 162, 166–7 distinction between action from and in accordance with, 103, 108, 112–13, 156, 190–1, 207 and inclination, 108–9, 114, 117, 156, 159, 163–5, 182–4, 190–1 juridical, 162–3, 274
of justice, 112
as motivation, 118–19, 164–7, 186–8, 193, 225, 238, 258
as necessary for moral worth, 6, 85, 107, 167, 186 perfect and imperfect, 112–13, 166–7, 175–8, 263, 267, 273 and predisposition to good, 164 and propensity to evil, 156 to pursue holiness, 162, 171, 172, 175–9 as respect for law, 119 of virtue (ethical duty), 112, 162–3, 165, 169, 175, 177, 274 see also moral worth; motivation; virtue egoism, 206, 211, 213, 240 Eisenberg, Paul, 273
empiricism, 13, 22
“End of all Things, The,” 166
Engstrom, Stephen, 270–1, 273
Epictetus, 60
Epicurus, 13
epistemic condition, 4, 44, 52 eudaemonism, 69–70, 180, 259 evil, See propensity to evil (Hang); radical evil Ewing, A. C., 16–17
explanation, 14, 16–17, 72
causal, 17–19, 30, 42, 74
mechanistic and teleological, in Critique of Judgment, 33, 73, 76, 77
teleological, 33, 34, 77
fact of reason, 3, 121, 123, 229, 239, 282 and consciousness of freedom, 231–2, 243, 246–7 as consciousness of moral law, 67, 195, 224, 230, 232–9, 242–3, 246, 257, 283 construed subjectively and objectively, 232–3 and deduction, 235–9, 241–5, 249 and fact for reason, 232–3 nature of, 230–4
and transcendental freedom, 230, 239
see also Beck, Lewis White; categorical imperative; Critique of Practical Reason; deduction, freedom; moral law fatalism, 50
Foot Philippa, 238, 264
Forster, Eckart, 273
free will (arbitrium liberum), 66–7, 95, 220 and animal will (arbitrium brutum), 55, 59–60, 68, 122, 132, 135 freedom
acting under idea of, 215–16, 218, 247 in Canon, 35–6, 54–9, 63–4, 66, 247, 257 causality of, 14–15, 25–7, 49, 202, 231, 232, 243–5, 283–4 comparative concept of, 34, 57, 61, 250 consciousness of, 231–2, 243, 246–7 deduction of, 3, 201, 214, 219, 221–4, 230, 239–48, 249; through fact of reason, 3, 224, 230, 232, 239–43, 245 in Dialectic, 39, 54–9, 63, 65 idea of, 25–7, 45–6, 57–8, 145, 215–18, 219, 220, 225, 226, 244 illusion of, 19, 20, 63, 80, 224, 246–7 as independence of empirical necessitation, 1, 133, 240–8 passim, 257 positive and negative aspects of, 55, 133, 240, 242, 243, 256, 285 postulation and deduction of, 285 from practical point of view, 1, 3, 201, 215–17, 230, 244, 247–8 psychological concept of, 25, 33, 34, 54

INDEX

- freedom (cont.)
 reality (actuality) of, 1, 217, 230, 239–40, 244, 246–8
 and Reciprocity Thesis, 214–17, 219–21
 regulative function of, 26, 45–6, 145, 247, 255
See also autonomy; Beck, Lewis White; compatibilism; Critique of Judgment; Critique of Pure Reason; fact of reason; incompatibilism; Meerbote, Ralf; practical freedom; transcendental freedom
- Fried, Charles, 193
- friend of man example, see moral worth
- functionalism, 76
- Garve, Christian, 11
- Gesinnung*, 136–45, 169, 208, 234, 246 choice of, 137–9, 141–4, 270
 as fundamental maxim, 94, 140–3, 148, 153–4, 165 as ground of adoption of maxims, 136–8 and intelligible character, 138, 140, 144–5 as moral propensity, 153, 156, 173 as presupposing moral law, 142–5
 as regulative notion, 140 and timeless choice, 50–2, 138–9, 140–1, 143–4, 153–4, 269 and Wille–Willkür distinction, 142 see also character, intelligible; good will
- God
 as causa sui, 61, 62
 and Highest Good, 171–2
 idea of, 45–6
 and moral progress, 173, 174, 175 postulate of, 67, 69–70, 171
 and timeless agency, 138
- Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von, 146, 270
- good, 265
 Highest, 67, 171–3, 178, 273–4 see also predisposition (Anlang) to good
- good will
 and character (Gesinnung), 116, 136
 in Groundwork, 107–8, 136, 161, 226
 and lack of virtue, 108, 159–60 and moral worth, 107–8, 116, 120, 136, 187, 190, 209, 226, 266 as motivated by duty, 107, 120, 161, 183
 perfect and imperfect, 156, 161
 and radical evil, 159–61
see also moral worth
- Green, T. H., 35, 102
- Gregor, Mary J., 253, 273, 276
- Groundwork*, 41, 66–7, 218, 246 autonomy in, 85, 94–6, 134–5, 220, 236, 237, 242
 critique of heteronomy in, 99–102, 104–6 conception of good will, 107–8, 136, 161, 226 deduction in, 2–3, 201, 219, 223–30, 237, 241–2, 243, 279–80
 definitions of “maxim”, in, 86–8, 94
 moral worth in, 108–13, 163, 166
 radical evil in, 151–2, 161
 rational agency in, 85–94
 Reciprocity Thesis in, 202–3, 210–13, 214–17, 220–1 respect in, 120, 123, 125
- happiness, 66, 124, 163, 218, 264, 265, 276 desire for, 67, 151, 155
 and heteronomy, 101, 102, 103
 and virtue, 70, 171–2
- hedonism, 35, 102–3, 255
- Hegel, G. W. F., 79, 173, 251, 276, 281 critique of Kant's moral theory, 2, 180, 184–92, 277
- Heimsoeth, Heinz, 16, 251, 254
- Henrich, Dieter, 69, 127
 on deduction, 215, 218, 225, 228, 259, 279–80, 281, 283
 on fact of reason, 282, 283
 on Schiller's critique, 274–5
- Henson, Richard, 113–14, 116–18, 126, 164
- Herman, Barbara, 108, 111, 114–16, 118–20, 197, 266, 282
- heteronomous action, 6, 39, 50, 136, 255
- heteronomy, 33, 96–7, 207 Kant's critique of, 99–106, 237, 240, 264
 and self-love, 102, 103
see also autonomy; imperatives, categorical and hypothetical; inclination
- Hill, Thomas, 97–8, 263, 273, 278–9
- Höffe, Otfried, 91, 92
- holiness as moral ideal, 147, 162–3, 164, 170, 171–9, 183
see also duty; maxims, virtue
- holy will, 49, 50, 156, 161, 184, 267, 272
 as free of incentive, 176–7
- “honest shopkeeper” example, see moral worth
- human nature, 148, 154, 159, 166, 176, 206
- Hume, David, 4, 28, 29, 137, 191, 196 compatibilism of, 5, 27, 34, 39
- Hutcheson, Francis, 103, 264
- idea
 cosmological, 11, 13, 254
 of transcendental freedom, see freedom, idea of
- Ilting, Karl-Heinz, 279
- immortality, Kant's postulate of, 67, 171–3, 273–4

INDEX

- imperatives, 35, 56, 184
 categorical and hypothetical, 89, 100–1, 117, 189, 211, 238
 and maxims, 87, 254
 and Wille–Willkür distinction, 130
See also categorical imperative; maxims;
 rational agency
- imputation, 6, 38–9, 63, 67, 80, 157, 169, 241, 246, 285
 of actions, 28, 42, 43, 45–6, 152–3, 254
 and choice of Gesinnung, 137–9, 144, 145
 and “malicious lie” example, 41–2, 45, 48, 72
- Inaugural Dissertation, 61, 251
- incentive (motive), 189 defined, 121–2
 moral and nonmoral, 67, 117, 151, 206, 259
 and motivation, 68–9, 195, 237, 241 objective, 120–3
 as sufficient reason, 51–2
see also respect for the law
- inclination
 actions based on, and moral worth, 102–3, 109–14, 117–20, 149, 150, 182–4, 186, 189, 191
 as cause of action, 50–51, 65, 97–8, 126, 151–2
 definitions of, 108–9
 and practical spontaneity, 5, 39–41, 111, 189, 246
 and self-regard, 123–4
 sensible (empirical), 38–40, 89, 152, 189, 195, 225, 236, 260
 and temptation, 156–7, 164, 184
see also autonomy; duty; moral worth;
 motivation
- incompatibilism, 1, 28, 48–9, 54, 85, 95, 225; see also practical freedom
- Incorporation Thesis, 5, 6, 40, 103, 126, 138, 249, 268
 and compatibilism, 75, 81–2, 249
 and maxim selection, 147–8, 151, 189–90
 and moral weakness, 158–60, 164 and reason–cause distinction, 51–2, 189 and rigorism, 147–8, 150–2
- intelligible character, see character
- intelligible world, 4, 190, 214, 231, 242, 243
 distinguished from sensible world, 221–2, 225, 226
 as ground of sensible world, 225
 idea of, 215, 220, 224
 our membership in, 221–6, 227–8, 238, 241–2
 as standpoint, 221, 228
 two senses of (Verstandeswelt, intelligibilelen Welt), 221, 227–8
see also autonomy
- intention (end), relation to motive, 186–91, 198
- interest
 empirical, 88–9, 196
 as ground of choice of maxims, 89–90, 194, 209, 213, 239, 262
 moral, and deduction of freedom, 216–17, 230, 237–41, 248, 249, 284
 “pure” moral, 89, 125, 237, 239–40, 248 see also categorical imperative; incentive (motive); maxims
- internalism, 238, 241, 283
- intuition, 234, 238
 intellectual, 4, 37, 60, 173, 174, 175, 232
 sensible, 40, 235
- Irwin, Terence, 35, 43–4
- Judaism, 185
- judgment, 1, 36, 127, 216
 as activity of the understanding, 36–7 practical, and acting on maxims, 40, 90 reflective, 76, 77
 rule of, 233, 234, 235
 as “taking as,” 36–41
 teleological, 77
- Kemp Smith, Norman, 16, 251
- Kitcher, Patricia, 260
- Korner, Stephen, 260
- Korsgaard, Christine, 263, 276, 283
- Laberge, Pierre, 261, 280
- law
 of freedom, 21–2, 244
 of nature, 15, 16, 17
see also moral law; respect for the law
- laws, 15, 17, 251
 moral distinguished from pragmatic, 35–6
 practical, 86–7, 89, 202–3
see also imperatives; maxims
- Lear, Jonathan, 277
- Lectures on Ethics*, 66, 99, 233
 necessitation in, 67–8
 theological eudaemonism in, 69–70
- Leibniz, G. W., 5, 13, 26, 28, 29, 34, 73, 137, 259
 and principle of sufficient reason, 17–18, 27
- “life rules,” (Lebensregeln), 91–3, 204
- Louden, Robert B., 93, 263
- love, 166, 185, 196, 275
- lying, 271–2

INDEX

- McCarthy, Michael H., 280, 281
MacIntyre, Alisdair, 263 “malicious lie” example, see imputation maxims
 and criterion of reasonableness, 88–9, 91, 126–7, 204–5, 208–10, 211, 239
 definitions of, 86–94
 of holiness, 170–1, 173, 176, 179
 and imperatives, 87, 254
 and interests, 89, 90–1, 209, 213, 240–1, 262
 as life rules (Lebensregeln), 91–3, 204 material, 88, 96, 135
 and moral worth, 111–12, 212–3
 and objective practical principles, 86–9, 94, 261
 and practical laws, 86, 87, 89, 131, 212
 and practical rules (Vorsätze), 91, 92–4, 142, 262 as self-imposed, 88, 89–90, 96
 and universalizability, 68, 94, 101, 205, 210–13, 268
 and virtue, 165, 168–9, 170–1
 see also Beck, Lewis White; categorical imperative; Gesinnung; imperatives; Incorporation Thesis; laws; O’Neill, Onora; radical evil; rational agency; Willkür
- Meerbote, Ralf, 76–82, 260
 on deliberation, 78–9
 on reflective judgment, 77
Menzer, Paul, 66, 67, 258–9
Metaphysic of Morals, 112, 114, 162
 Wille–Willkür distinction in, 130–5 passim Metaphysical Lectures I, distinction between practical and transcendental freedom in, 59–64, 68, 258 moral conversion, 139, 143, 169–71, 208 moral fanaticism, 122, 155, 182, 183 moral law
 as authoritative (binding), 119–20, 125, 151–52, 195, 246–8, 282 deduction of, 3, 195, 201–6, 216, 218–22, 225–8, 230, 233–9, 243–5, 258 as determining ground of will, 150, 256
 and fact of reason, 3, 67, 224, 228, 230–3, 234–8, 240–3 impossibility of deliberate defiance of, 133–6, 150, 241 as incentive to morality, 121–3, 149, 195, 206, 234, 248
 as law of causality, 244–5 as product of pure practical reason, 234–5, 239–40, 244 reality and objective necessity of, 68–9, 201, 216, 236 as self-imposed (self-legislated), 125, 203, 237, 245 as synthetic a priori, 214–15, 220, 225–7 and theological eudaemonism, 69–70 and unconditional practical law, 89, 195, 202–3, 208–9, 210–13 unconditioned status of, 237, 238 validity of, 216–17, 230, 231, 237, 249 see also autonomy; categorical imperative; duty; fact of reason; interest; law; Reciprocity Thesis; self-conceit in conflict with moral law
- moral laws contrasted with pragmatic laws, 66–7, 234 moral weakness, 157–60, 164, 168–9 moral worth and actions from duty, 2, 6, 85, 107, 108–19, 167, 186, 209 “battle citation” model, 114, 126–7, 164 and duty motive, 116–17, 118, 120, 126, 165–6, 266 fitness report model, 114–16
 and “friend of man” example, 103, 109–10, 113, 119 and good will, 107–8, 116, 120, 136, 187, 190, 209, 226, 265, 266 and “honest shopkeeper” example, 109–10, 112, 113, 114, 189–90 and inclination-based actions, 102–3, 109–14, 117–20, 149, 150, 182–4, 186, 189, 191 and moral virtue, 115–16, 209 and problem of overdetermination of actions, 114–18, 190 and self-interest, 109–10, 112 see also good will; Groundwork; inclination; maxims; respect for the law; sympathy
- morality, 233, 237, 259 distinction between principle of discrimination (principium diiudicationis) and principle of execution (principium executionis), 68, 122, 195, 233 as requiring transcendental freedom, 2, 62
motivation, 50–1, 68, 237 and duty and inclination, 67, 109–11, 113–20, 164–7, 240–1, 246, 248; in Hegel’s critique, 186–90; in Schiller’s critique, 182–3, 275; in Williams’ critique, 192–7 nonmoral, 35, 102–5, 114
 our uncertainty of, 118, 159, 176–7 see also duty; inclination; respect for the law motive, 50, 113, 117, 233, 241 and Incorporation Thesis, 189–90

INDEX

- and intention, 186–91, 198
see also incentive (motive); moral worth
- Nagel, Thomas, 82, 260–1
- necessitation, 40–1, 202, 226, 234, 240 causal (natural) and rational, 40–1, 202, 226 practical, and moral compulsion, 67–9, 234 see also inclination; motivation
- Newton, 4, 13
- noumena, 2, 133, 250, 281
- noumenal ground, 71, 73, 138, 140–1, 190
- O'Conner, Daniel, 271
- O'Neill, Onora, 272, 276
on maxims, 91–4, 262–3
- passions, 260
- “patchwork theory,” 54, 56–8, 219
- Paton, H. J., 261, 265
on deduction, 219, 220, 226, 228, 283
- Paul, Saint, 157
- permissibility, 209–10
- phenomenal–noumenal distinction relation to freedom, 2, 30, 72, 226 and resolution of antinomy of judgment, 73, 75–6 and two types of character, 31–2
see also transcendental idealism
- Piper, Adrian, 276
- Pippin, Robert, 254, 277
- Pistorius, Hermann Andreas, 29, 41
- Plato, 13, 139
- postulate
in first and second Critiques, 67, 258, 285 of God and immortality, 67, 171–2
- Potter, Nelson, Jr., 269
- practical freedom, 260 and absolute spontaneity, 26, 257
and autonomy, 96–9, 140
in Canon and Dialectic, 54–9, 257 and incompatibilism vs. compatibilism, 54, 56, 58, 61–2, 64, 207, 258 as independence from necessitation, 55, 58–61, 64–5, 67, 85, 234, 257 as sufficient for morality, 62, 67, 85
see also transcendental freedom
- practical principles distinction between objective and subjective, 86–8, 124, 204
and maxims, 86–9, 94, 131, 261
and practical laws, 86, 89
- practical spontaneity, see spontaneity, practical
- Prauss, Gerold, 134–5, 181, 263, 269, 272, 275
- prediction, 33, 254
- predisposition (Anlage) to good, 148–50, 160–1, 164, 170
three elements in, 148–50
see also propensity
- principle of sufficient reason, 16, 17–19, 21, 22, 28
see also Leibniz, G. W.
- propensity, 147
acquisition of, 152–4
distinguished from predisposition, 152 to evil (Hang), 151, 153–60, 167, 169–70, 171, 174–5, 179, 239; universality of, 152–7, 158, 271 to good, 152, 155; and holiness, 156–7
see also Gesinnung
- psychology
empirical, 32, 59, 253
Kant's rejection of, as science, 31–2, 33, 43, 253 rational, 59–60, 62
see also anthropology
- purposiveness, 1, 33
- Pybus, Elizabeth M., 272
- Quinn, Philip L., 274
- radical evil, 94, 143–4, 162, 170, 179, 208, 246 and adoption of maxims, 143, 147–8, 151, 208 and Kant's rigorism, 146–52 and self-deception, 158–61, 170
and temptation, 157, 159, 164, 167
three stages (degrees) of, 157–61, 169 see also Groundwork; propensity; rigorism, virtue; Willkür
- rational agency, 5, 26, 74, 81, 218, 249 and capacity to act on imperatives, 35–6, 38, 44–5, 85–6 and empirical and intelligible character, 5, 29, 30, 38–9, 80–1 and idea of intelligible world, 220–3, 225
and maxims, 90–1, 204–5
and moral agency, 29, 62, 66, 79
and moral law, 221, 222, 233, 242
and pragmatic anthropology, 33, 46 and rational being, 218, 223 speculative doubt about, 63–5 and timeless acts, 47–52
and transcendental apperception, 40
see also Groundwork; rational agent, concept of; rational beings

INDEX

- rational agent, concept of, 45, 57, 62, 145, 150, 213, 226, 228, 247 see also rational agency; will
- rational being, concept of, as ground of morality, 206–7, 213, 278–9, 281
- rational beings, 215, 218, 220, 234 distinct from rational agents, 63, 221, 258 and idea of freedom, 215–16
see also rational agency
- rational egoism, 206, 211, 213
- rational psychology, 59–60, 62
- Rawls, John, 284
- reason
 causality of, 30–3, 47–51, 56, 63, 64–5, 73–81 passim, 223, 224, 244 fact of, see fact of reason as free in its epistemic capacity, 217, 222 as pure spontaneity, 222, 243 theoretical, 215, 217, 222, 243, 244; contrast with practical, 192, 195, 223 unity of, 231, 244–5, 284 see also incentive (motive); spontaneity; will
- reasons—causes distinction, 49–52, 72, 75, 77, 186, 188–90
- Reath, Andrews, 102–3, 126, 267, 268
- Reciprocity Thesis, 7, 134, 230, 249, 283 argument for, 201–13
 and deduction of moral law, 214–15, 217–21, 222, 228, 239, 248
see also transcendental freedom
- Rehberg, August Wilhelm, 50
- Reiner, Hans, 275
- Reinhold, Carl Leonhard, 133–5
- Religion within the Limits of Reason Alone*, 29, 39, 108, 129, 134, 163, 168, 169 adoption of maxims in, 93 Gesinnung in, 138, 140–1
 holiness in, 173–5
 propensity to evil in, 271
 radical evil in, 146–7, 149, 152, 161, 162
 response to Schiller in, 181–3
- respect for the law, 120–8, 155, 176, 267
 and autonomy, 125–6, 240
 as incentive to morality, 120–3, 125–8, 147–9, 206–7, 237–8, 240
 and moral worth, 107, 209
 and radical evil, 146, 147–8, 156
 and self-approbation, 125
 and self-love, 123–5
see also duty; moral worth; virtue
- responsibility, 72, 74, 138; see also imputation
- rigorism, 91, 144, 168
 and latitudinarianism, 147
 and radical evil, 146–52, 154–7, 160
- Rogerson, Kenneth, 277
- Ross, W. D., 178, 283
- rule of judgement, 233, 234, 235
- Sartre, Jean-Paul, 139, 143
- Schiller, Friedrich, 146, 197, 270 “beautiful soul,” 181, 183, 185 critique of Kantian conception of moral worth, 110, 180–4, 185, 275
- Schopenhauer, Arthur, 16, 21, 23, 139, 230, 251
- Second Analogy, 2, 14, 16, 21, 33–4, 48, 73, 253
- self-conceit, in conflict with moral law, 123–7, 267, 268
- self-control, 163–5, 246, 285
- self-deception, 158–61, 164, 170, 177, 204, 246, 272; see also radical evil
- self-evaluation, 177
- self-interest, 105, 109–10, 112; see also inclination
- self-love, 102, 103, 142, 148, 151, 159, 264 distinguished from self-conceit, 123–4, 126
- self-regard, 123–4
- self-satisfaction, 158
- Sellars, Wilfrid, 63, 65, 260
- Sidgwick, Henry, 205
- Silber, John, 260, 263, 269
- Sims, Walter, 258
- Singer, Marcus, 205
- Sinnesart* (mode of sense), 47, 141
- Spinoza, Benedict de, 196
- spontaneity, 5, 207
 absolute, 15, 25–6, 55, 243; contrast with relative (spontaneitas secundum quid), 60, 61–2, 64, 257 and apperception, 36–7, 78–9, 90 epistemic (theoretical), 37, 63, 194, 217, 222–3 and intuition, 37
 practical, 45, 63, 65, 96, 134–5, 194, 196; and inclinations, 5, 39–41, 111, 189, 246 of reason, 35–6, 38, 40, 133–4, 222; and of understanding, contrast between, 36–8, 222, 254, 260 see also autonomy; practical freedom; Willkür
- Strawson, P. F., 21, 22–3, 45
- sympathy, 119, 166, 167, 193, 264
 and moral worth, 109–10, 112–13
- temptation, 155–7, 163–5, 167, 184; see also inclination; radical evil
- Third Antinomy, see Antinomy of Pure Reason

INDEX

- timelessness
and choice of Gesinnung, 50–2, 138–9, 140–1, 143–4, 153–4, 269
and rational agency, 47–52
- Transcendental Aesthetic, 234–5
Transcendental Analytic, 34
Transcendental Deduction, 37
- transcendental freedom as absolute spontaneity, 25–6, 55, 60, 257 in deduction, 226, 230, 239, 241, 284 distinguished from logical freedom, 62–3, 195
as divine freedom, 60, 61
and justification of maxims, 207–10, 239
and practical freedom, 54–65, 207–8, 228, 247, 256–7, 278
and Reciprocity Thesis, 202, 204, 207–10, 212–13, 228, 239, 248
as stumbling block of empiricism, 1–2
in Third Antinomy, 14, 15, 19, 20, 22, 25–8, 54
see also autonomy; fact of reason
- transcendental idea of freedom, 25, 26, 45– 6, 57–8, 145, 217–18, 244
regulative function of, 26, 45–6, 145, 247, 255
- transcendental idealism, 1, 77, 225, 228, 234–6, 246, 248, 264
and resolution of Third Antinomy, 22, 25
and transcendental ground of phenomena, 225
and transcendental realism, 21, 99, 101, 264
“two-aspect” reading of, 3–4, 43, 73
and two “points of view,” 4, 52, 71–2, 223–4
see also character
- transcendental object, 44, 255
- transcendental realism, 1, 12, 19, 21, 99, 103, 252, 264
- tropism, 63, 165, 224
typic, 233, 234
- understanding, 36, 38, 69, 254; see also
spontaneity
- van Inwagen, Peter, 260
- verificationism in Third Antinomy, 20, 22, 27
- vice, 157, 160, 168–9
virtue, 160, 266, 275, 285 critique of Aristotelian conception of, 168 distinguished from vice, 168–9 and divine grace, 174–5
and duty, 162–3, 168, 175, 182, 184, 246 and happiness, 70, 171–2
and holiness, 162, 163, 170, 171–9, 183
and radical evil, 160, 169–71
as requiring sympathy, 166–7 and respect for the law, 165 and self-control, 163–5
and self-evaluation, 177
and sensitivity to beautiful in nature, 167–8
as struggle with evil, 169–71, 179 as worthiness to be happy, 70 see also duty; maxims, moral worth virtue ethics, 197
- Walker, Ralph, 269
- wickedness, 158–60, 169; see also vice
- Wildt, Andreas, 184–5, 262, 275
- will arbitrium liberum (free will) vs. arbitrium brutum (animal will), 55, 59–60, 68, 122, 132, 135
as capacity to impose practical laws, 95–9, 105–6, 204
divine, 121–2, 267
empirical character of, 32–3, 34, 58 as law giver, 104–6, 130, 202
as practical reason, 86, 129, 130, 227, 228, 232–3
and rational agents, 215–20 passim, 223, 224, 225
as self-determining, 203
see also autonomy; divine will, free will (arbitrium liberum); holy will
- Wille, 161, 202, 218, 226, 234
and autonomy, 132–3
formulations of, 130–2
- Wille–Willkür
distinction between, 95, 129–36, 226, 256, 268, 269
see also Gesinnung
- Willkür, 39, 55, 100, 122, 129–36, 171, 246 contrast between negative and positive aspects of, 132–3
and imperatives, 130, 226
and maxim selection, 130–2, 151, 256
and radical evil, 151–2, 153
as spontaneity, 132–6
- Williams, Bernard, 239
critique of Kantian rational agency, 2, 180, 185, 191–8, 277
and rejection of Incorporation Thesis, 192–3
- Williams, T. C., 265, 283
- Wojtowicz, Randy, 251
- Wolff, Robert Paul, 263
- Wolffian school, 220
- Wood, Allen, 28, 77, 81, 255, 260, 269

INDEX

- Wood, Allen (cont.)
causal determinist theory of action, 49–50, 188–90, 255
critique of Kantian account of moral motivation, 185–90, 192, 276
on holiness, 173, 174–5, 273–4 on malignant will, 150
on psychological hedonism, 35
on timeless agency, 47–51
- Zumbach, Clark, 251