

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-38768-2 - New Australian Cinema: Sources and Parallels in American and British Film

Brian McFarlane and Geoff Mayer

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	ix
Preface	xi
1 INTRODUCTION	1
I THE CLASSICAL CINEMA AND THE MELODRAMATIC TRADITION	13
2 CLASSICAL HOLLYWOOD CINEMA	14
Basic narrative principles	15
Melodrama	27
The form persists: 60 years on	39
3 AUSTRALIAN CINEMA SINCE PICNIC AT HANGING ROCK	52
A mid-Atlantic cinema?	52
Peter Weir and the classical narrative cinema	54
The melodrama of isolation and defeat	60
Reworking the classical narrative	98
II 'HIGH' BRITISH CINEMA AND NEW AUSTRALIAN CINEMA	109
4 THE TWO 'BOOM' PERIODS	110
Towards a national cinema	110
Two cinemas with a common narrative source	128
Melodrama—neglected and/or despised	134

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-38768-2 - New Australian Cinema: Sources and Parallels in American and British Film

Brian McFarlane and Geoff Mayer

Table of Contents

More information

Matters of mise-en-scène	139
Taking on the opposition: governments intervene	141
Why can't Britain or Australia compete with Hollywood?	153
5 THE FILMS: BRITAIN (1940–60) AND AUSTRALIA (1970–90)	164
Literary links	172
Projecting the national life	190
The pursuit of realism	201
Disdaining melodrama	215
III AFTERWORD	237
6 OBSERVATIONS AND CONCLUSIONS	238
Selected Bibliography: New Australian Cinema	244
Index	247