Cambridge Studies in Historical Geography encourages exploration of the philosophies, methodologies and techniques of historical geography and publishes the results of new research within all branches of the subject. It endeavours to secure the marriage of traditional scholarship with innovative approaches to problems and to sources, aiming in this way to provide a focus for the discipline and to contribute towards its development. The series is an international forum for publication in historical geography which also promotes contact with workers in cognate disciplines.

Preface

Except for those by Harley and Woolf, the following essays were originally presented as papers to a conference, Iconography in Historical Geography, convened by the volume editors for the Historical Geography Research Group, at the University of Nottingham in July 1984. Thanks are due to the HGRG for financial assistance with some of the illustrations in this volume.
