This book describes the history of peasants in Catalonia, the politically dominant and wealthiest part of the medieval Kingdom of Aragon, between the ninth and fifteenth centuries. It focuses on the period from 1000 to 1300 when free peasants who had held property under favorable frontier conditions were progressively subjugated by their lords. Between 1462 and 1486 Catalan peasants mounted the most successful peasants' war of the Middle Ages, and achieved the formal abolition of servitude.

Professor Freedman seeks to explain both the process by which servitude was strengthened over the centuries, and its eventual weakening before a direct moral and military challenge. He addresses both the causes of enserfment and the limitations on its effectiveness.

The book integrates archival evidence with the theories of society elaborated by medieval jurists. Comparisons are drawn between Catalonia and other European regions, and its experience is situated within a spectrum of different social and economic conditions.

Preface

In the course of many years of work on serfdom in Catalonia I have amassed innumerable debts to colleagues, archivists, and friends. I am grateful to all who have helped me so generously with their time, advice, learning, and support, and it is a pleasure to be able to acknowledge them here, if only in this cursory fashion that does not adequately express my deep sentiment of obligation.

I received a warm welcome and patient assistance from archivists and librarians throughout Spain and France. I wish to acknowledge in particular the kindness shown to me by the late Mons. Eduard Junyent of the Cathedral Archive of Vic and by his successors and colleagues Dr. Miquel Gros Pujol, Dr. Antoni Pladevall i Font, Dr. Ramon Ordeig i Mata, and Ignàsia Font. Dr. Josep Maria Pons Guri of the Arxiu Fidel Fita has aided me immeasurably from his knowledge of legal history and in making easier the use of his extraordinary collection. I also acknowledge with sincere thanks the access and assistance granted by Rev. Josep Baucells i Reig of the Cathedral Archive of Barcelona, Rev. Benigne Marquès i Sala of the Cathedral Archive of La Seu d'Urgell, Dr. Gabriel Roure of the Archive of the Cathedral of Girona, Dr. Josep M. Marquès i Plangumà of the Diocesan Archive of Girona, Sylvie Caucanas and Philippe Rosset of the Departmental Archives of the Pyrénées-Orientales, Dr. Frederic Udina i Martorell and Dr. Rafael Conde and their staff at the Archive of the Crown of Aragon, and the other directors and staff of libraries and archives that I was able to consult.

So many individuals in Catalonia have helped me in so many ways that I can only begin to list and acknowledge them. I am grateful to my dear friends over many years Montserrat Orriols de Genís, Alexandre Genís i Canal, Montserrat Puig d'Orriols and Joan Orriols. I have received wise advice and unfailing encouragement from members of the Faculty of Geography and History at the University of Barcelona, especially from Professors Josep Maria Salrach and Manuel Riu. I am also very grateful to Professors Carme Batlle Gallart, Imma Ollich i Castanyer and Josep Maria Font Rius, and to Rev. P. Agustí Altisent. I have benefited greatly from the generosity of the following who have allowed me to read and cite their as yet unpublished studies: Jordi Bolòs i Masclans, Albert Benet i Clarà, Gaspar Feliu i Montfort, Josep Fernàndez i Trabal, and Elisenda Gràcia i Mont. Philip Banks has helped me in more ways than he himself probably imagines. Coral Cuadrada furnished me with her works, published and unpublished. Along with Josep Maria Salrach she has encouraged me to think in new ways about the Catalan peasantry.

Many scholars in the United States, Spain, and England have read and commented on all or part of the present study and their remarks and suggestions have vastly improved what would otherwise have been an ill-digested set of notes. They are, of course, in no way responsible for errors and misstatements contained herein. In this connection I acknowledge with sincere gratitude Professors Thomas N. Bisson, Stephen Bensch, Teófilo Ruiz, Peter Sahlins, David Abulafia, J. H. Elliott, Miquel Angel Ladero Quesada, Josep Maria Salrach, Lluís To Figueras, Giles Constable, and Peter Linehan. I have also received valuable help from Father Robert I. Burns, Professor Jill Webster and my colleagues at Vanderbilt: Philip Rasico, James Epstein and Francis Weislo. My mother, Marcia Freedman, translated Lydia Milskaya's Russian study of peasants in New Catalonia. I received the editorial assistance of Dr. Dale Sweeney and my wife, Bonnie Roe.

Research for this project and time to write were made possible by fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities (Fellowship for Independent Study and Research, and a Summer Stipend award), the American Council of Learned Societies (under a program supported by the National Endowment for the Humanities), and the American Philosophical Society (Johnson Fund.) A year spent at the Institute for Advanced Study was not only enjoyable and intellectually stimulating but crucial for my undertaking of the implications of my research beyond the confines of strictly Catalan history. I have also received fellowships and research grants from the Vanderbilt University Research Council, and a travel fellowship from the Comité Conjunto Hispano-Norteamericano por Asuntos Culturales y Educativos. I have been enabled to attend conferences in Barcelona through the support of the Generalitat de Catalunya, the Institut d'Estudis Catalans, the University of Barcelona, and the Reial Academia de Bones Lletres de Barcelona. The Program for Cultural Cooperation Between Spain's Ministry of Culture and United States Universities kindly granted a publication subvention. I extend my heartfelt thanks to these foundations, and governmental and educational entities.

I thank the Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies in Toronto for permission to reproduce in Appendices 2 and 3 my transcriptions of two passages from Escorial d.II.18 which originally appeared in Mediaeval Studies 48 (1986).

To cite all these obligations is a reminder to me of how fortunate I have been in my chosen subject and in receiving the unfailing kindness of so many individuals and institutions.
