Thanks are due to a number of people who assisted in bringing this project to completion. Veronica Kelly, who discussed the project with me at length and whose breadth of knowledge and enthusiasm were invaluable, must come first. The staff of the Fryer, Mitchell, La Trobe, Dennis Wolanski, Australian National and Alexander Turnbull libraries provided first-class research facilities, as did the Australian and the New Zealand Archives, the Australian War Memorial, and the Australian National Film and Sound Archive. Others who assisted include Thelma Afford, Barry Andrews, Brigadier M. Austin, Genny Blades, Ronald Conway, Ross Cooper, Sue Cullen, Peter Edwards, Ken Goswell, Ian Jobling, Alan Lawson, Harold Love, Jim McKay, Leo Power, Jeremy Ridgman, Clive Sowry, Alrene Sykes, Graeme Turner, and Lisa Whitcher.

Permission to reproduce photographs has been obtained from the above libraries and archives, from the Tate Gallery in London, from John Sexton Productions, and from the Greater Union Organisation. It has not always been possible to establish if copyright still exists in some early films; if copyright in any photograph has been inadvertently breached, the author would be happy to pay an appropriate fee.

Earlier drafts of some sections have appeared in Australasian Drama Studies (1, No.1), Sporting Traditions (5, No.2), and Australian Drama 1920-1955 (Armidale, 1986). I would also like to acknowledge the essential financial and technical assistance of the English Department of the University of Queensland, and finally thank Roslyn, Claire and Tom, for putting up with the stress which such a large project imposed on our family life for so long.
