

Index

- Adult bookstores and sex shops, 50–1, 54
 Adult Film Association of America (AFAA), 207–8 advertising, 211
 age boundaries: and child pornography, 196–7; and experiments on effects of pornography, 188–9; for pornography performers, 176–7
 American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), and Meese Commission, 16 anti-pornography ordinance, 141–2 artistic merit, 110–11
- behavior and pornography, 74–5, 108
 Bible, 163
 books and magazines, pornographic, 35; monthly circulation of, 36
 Boston, “Combat Zone,” 62
 boycotts, and citizen action, 209–10
- cable and satellite television, 41
 Canadian Special Committee on Pornography and Prostitution, x, 25, 175; and feminist perspective on pornography, 153
 Casanova’s Mémoires, 118–19
 censorship: alternatives to, 198–217; and citizen action, 208–9; and John Milton, 114; and Johnson and Meese Commissions, xi–xii; versus inaction, as response to pornography, 198–217; and Williams Committee, 128–30 childhood, definitions of, 182–3, 190 child pornography: and age boundaries, 196–7; consumption and participation compared, 192–4; and criminal law protection, 191–6; definitional issues of, 182–3; extent of, 180–2; jurisprudence of, 195–6; and Meese Commission, 61–2; and pornography commissions, 180; and punishment of children, 194–5; and social values, 189–90; as victimless crime, 191; see also children child protection, as punishment, 194–5 children: capacity to make mature judgments, 183–4, 186; as consumers of and participants in pornography, 129–30, 185–7; and experiments on effects of pornography, 187–9; predation on, 184; as subjects in pornography, 179–85; see also child pornography citizen groups, 208–10
 civil remedies, for control of pornography, 141–2 clinical and experimental research, and sex crimes, 100–1 commercial sex, 62–6 computer bulletin boards, 43
 consumers, of pornography, 52–62; by gender, 53–6; Johnson Commission studies of, 53–62; by sexual orientation, 58–62
 crime commissions, 5–6 crime statistics, problems with, 86–7 criminal law, considered by Meese Commission, 140–1 criminal penalties, 139–41
- decriminalization of pornography, 72–3, 191–2
 definitions of pornography, 25–9, 162–6; as medium–message combination, 157–62; Meese Commission’s problems with, 94–5; by radical feminists, 154–63
 deregulation of adult pornography, 191–2
 Dial-a-Porn Services, and Meese Commission, 42
 Dworkin, Andrea, 30, 141, 151–74; see also MacKinnon, Catharine

- erotica: as defined by radical feminists, 151–2; definitions of, 21–9; impact of, Johnson Commission panel report on, 82–3
- experimental studies on relation of sexual violence and arousal, 103–4
- exploitation films, 33
- FBI, on organized crime and pornography, 65
- federal government, role in pornography regulation, 214–16
- Feinberg, Joel, 155
- Feminist Anti-Censorship Task Force, 112, 167
- feminists: internal debate of, over pornography, 166–7; support for pornography, 166–7
- First Amendment: calculus of balance under, 136–7; and censorship, 216; and limits of public law, 139–44; and pornography, 109–45, 219–20; and radical feminists, 168–9; and Supreme Court, 130–1; and U.S. pornography commissions, 130–8; see also Supreme Court
- free expression: and pornography, 74–5, 110–12; and radical feminists, 170–4; value of, 125–6
- gender inequality, as basis of pornography, 160–1
- hard-core pornography: imports from Scandinavia of, 37; and Johnson and Meese Commissions, 37–8
- Hefner, Hugh, 205
- Holbrook, David, 120
- homosexuals, 59–60
- human personality, development of, 110
- Johnson Commission, x, 7–10; and censorship, 119; and classification of sexually explicit materials, 67; and content analysis of Romance or Confession magazine stories, 45–6; criticisms of research, 82–5; and definition of erotica, 22; and definition of pornography, 21–2, 162; drafts of criminal statutes relating to pornography, 140; and empirical research, 17–18; and First Amendment, 132–3; and future trends, 69–73; history of, 9–10; legislative recommendations of, 6–7; members of, 8; model of relation between pornography and social harm, 87–8; and obscenity, 21; and pornographic communication as inducement to sexual action, 117; on pornography and children, 175; on pornography and organized crime, 64–6; report on traffic and distribution of pornography, 31–73; and scope of interests of pornography consumers, 46; and Senator McClellan, 9; and sexual education, 122; and social harm of pornography, 77–89, 107; specific tasks assigned to, 7–8; see also Meese Commission; pornography commissions; Williams Committee
- judicial scrutiny of pornography, legislative restrictions on, 135–6
- Kutchinsky, Berl: on child pornography, 181; on Scandinavian pornography, 92
- legal controls on pornography, 219–21
- Lockhart, William B., 8
- MacKinnon, Catharine, 141; on women who support pornography, 169–70; views on pornography, 151–74; see also Dworkin, Andrea
- mail-order sales: and Meese Commission, 37; of pornography, 36–7
- male supremacy: as major theme of pornography, 157–8; reality of and radical feminists, 170
- McClellan, John D., 9
- Meese Commission, ix–x, 13–16; and American Civil Liberties Union, 16; and censorship, 15; and citizen action against pornography, 208; and classification of sexually explicit materials, 67–9; conceptual problems of, 106–7; and content of pornography, 47–9; and definition of obscenity, 23; and definition of pornography, 23–4, 94–5; and dissociation between research findings and interpretation, 99–100; and distinction between pornography industry and mainstream entertainment, 68–9; on experimental studies of sexual violence and arousal, 103–4; and feminist perspective on pornography, 152–3, 162; and First Amendment, 132, 134–5, 137; and future trends, 69–73; history of, 14–16; and lack of interest in pornography consumers, 134–5; lawsuits against, 15–16; mandate of, 13; members of, 13–14; on Miller test, 131; and pornographic communication and promotion of moral decay and sexual action, 116–17, 118, 121; and pornographic motion pictures, 34–5; on pornography and children, 175–87; on pornography and organized crime, 64–6; and public attitudes toward

Index

235

- pornography, 98; public reaction to, 14–15; Recommendation 38, 176–7; recommendation 45, 178; Recommendation 53, 179; recommendations for legislative action on child pornography, 176–9; and research on pornography's harm, 94–107, 108; and restrictive regulation of pornography 142–4; on sex offenders and pornography, 99; and summary descriptions of selected pornography, 47–8; and symbolic denunciation of pornography, 225–6; and term “erotica,” 24; and volume of pornography, 30–1; and war on smut, 223–4; and Williams Committee definition of pornography, 27–8; see also Johnson Commission; pornography commissions; Williams Committee
- Memoirs of a Woman of Pleasure* (Cleland), 114–15
- Mill, John Stuart: On Liberty, 110; and victimless crime, 191
- Miller test, 130–1
- Milton, John, and censors, 114
- misogyny, equation of with pornography, 162–4
- motion pictures, 32–5
- movie-rating system, 33
- objectification, 157–61
- Obscene Publications Acts, English, 114
- obscenity: definitions of, 20–9, 133; and Johnson Commission, 21
- paraphilia, 60–1
- peep shows, 44
- policy: and definitions, 21; prescriptions for, 70; recommendations, on research, 108
- pornography: and adolescents, 56–7; and advertising, 211; and artistic merit, 110–11; audience aimed at, 46–7; availability of, xi; behavioral effects of, reasons for studying, 74–5; as cause of crime, 76; and children, 149–50, 175–97; censorship versus inaction in response to, 198–217; and commercial vice, 64–7; as communication, 109–25; compared with regulation of tobacco and alcohol, 193; control of, by civil remedies, 141–2; as crime, pure model of, 200–1; criminal crackdown on, 223–5; decriminalization of, 72–3, 221–3; definitions of, 20–9, 213–14; and degradation of women, 93; demand for, 53; distinction between printed and films, 219–20; effects of, 74–108, 164–6; and experts, 209; exposure to, 49–50, 124–5; and free expression, 74–5, 110–12; and freedom of expression, 109–45; governmental regulation of, 210–14, 214–16; governmental responses to, 198–217; home as venue of, 50; identity of its consumers, 52–3; industry, size of, in United States, 30–31; judicial standards of, 130–2; and male heterosexuals, 52–6; and misogyny, 162–3; modest tightening of legal controls of, 219–21; and moral values of youth, 121–2, and motion pictures, 32–5; and mysteries compared, 188; and organized crime, 64–6; places of display of, 49–52; policy options in relation to, 198–217; and prostitution, 62–64; as question of power, 168–9; and public law, xi; and rape, 164–5; response of private groups to, 198–217; restrictive regulation of, 142–4; scenarios of future control, 218–25; and sex offenders, 99; sexually provocative aspect of, 27–9; and social harm, 74–108; as source of information about sex, 111–12; and status of women, 151–74; in Sweden, 55; themes of, 45–9; in 2002, 225–6; and U.S. economic mainstream, 70–3; and zoning, 211–12
- pornography commissions: and child pornography, 180; comparative impact of lawyers on, 18; and consumers, 18–19; dominant role of legal profession in, 17; and empirical research, 17–18; era of, 3–4; fate of their recommendations, 7; and feminist perspective, 18; and members' backgrounds, 16–19; origins and composition of, 5–19; and pornography industry, 19; reasons for establishing, 6; and selection of members of, 16–19; see also Johnson Commission; Meese Commission; Williams Committee
- pornography consumers: by age, 56–8; in Canada, 58; scope of interests of, 46; sexual orientation of, 58–62
- pornography producers: outlaw tradition among, 206–7; and record keeping, 177–8
- private sector, and social control of pornography, 200–10
- Proal, Louis, 119
- prohibiting behavior, and regulation, 202–3
- prostitutes, as pornography performers, 64
- prostitution, 63; varieties of, 31
- public attitudes toward pornography, 122–4; and Meese Commission, 98
- public opinion polls, 98
- punishment, and child protection, 194–5
- Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act (RICO), 140–1

radical feminist critique of pornography, 151–74; and antipornography ordinance, 170–1; and classical liberalism, 171; on experimental research, 165–6; stipulative definition, 155–7

rape, 164–5

red light districts, 62

Renton ordinance, 143–4

retailers of sexually explicit materials, 68–9

romantic novels, as aid to seduction, 119

Salò, 112–13

San Francisco “Tenderloin” district, 62

self-regulation: by pornography industry, 205–8; prospects for in movie industry, 207–8

semicensorship, 141–4

7-Eleven stores, 203–5; and possible effects of antipornographer’s victory, 204–5

Sex and Character (Weininger), 162–4

sex crimes, and availability of pornography, 100–1

sex education, 186–7; federal role in, 215–16

sex newspapers 44–5

sex offenders, 99

sexual arousal, empirical research on, 115

sexual communication, 112–15

sexual explicitness in U.S. society, 68

sexually explicit materials, classification of, 67–9 sexually violent material, and social harm, 95

sexual offense statistics, and availability of pornography, 100–1

sexual orientation of pornography consumers, 58–62

sexual tastes, pornography catering to, 60–2

Simpson, A. W. B., ix, 114; 174; and offensiveness of pornography, 123; on radical feminist definition of pornography, 155 social values, and child pornography, 189–90

soft-core magazine industry, 206–7

status offenders, 192

stipulative definitions, 155

subordination–degradation hypothesis, 172–4

Supreme Court: and definition of obscenity, 130–1; and First Amendment, 130–1; and radical feminist antipornography ordinance, 170–1

Toolbox Murders, 103–4

van den Haag, Ernest, 115

vice, commercial, 62–6

Video Software Dealers Association, survey of members, 39–41

videotapes, 38–41

violence, lack of definition of, by Meese Commission, 102

war on smut, 223–5

Weston, John, 52; 207–8.

Williams Committee, ix, x, 10–13; and children as consumers of and participants in pornography, 129–30, 175, 185–6; criteria for evaluating the harm of pornography 127; and definition of erotic, 23; and definition of obscenity, 22; and definition of pornography, 22–3, 162; and feminist perspective on pornography, 152; and harm condition, 89–90, 125–6; history of, 11–13; members of, 11; and offensiveness of pornography, 123; and pornographic communication and promotion of moral decay and sexual action, 116, 118, 120–1; reactions of, 12–13; recommendations of, on censorship of pornography, 128–30; and relation between pornography and sex crimes, 91–2; and Salò, 113–14; selection of members, 11; and social harm of pornography, 89–94, 90–2, 107–8; standards for restricting pornography, 127; terms of reference of, 10; views on Johnson Commission research on social harm of pornography, 84–5; see also Johnson Commission; Meese Commission; pornography commissions zoning, 211–12.