

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-40948-3 - Political Theory and Postmodernism

Stephen K. White

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

	page	ix
Preface
Acknowledgments		xiii
1 Introduction: The postmodern problematic	1
I Increasing incredulity toward metanarratives	4
II New awareness of dangers of societal rationalization	7
III New informational technologies	8
IV New social movements	10
V Initial directions	12
2 Understanding the modern–postmodern tension	13
I The battle lines	13
II Two senses of responsibility	19
III Two dimensions of language	23
IV Between modernity and postmodernity	28
3 Heidegger’s ambiguous legacy for postmodernism	31
I Politics, will, and intersubjectivity	33
II Heidegger and a postmodern politics	42
4 Heidegger and responsibility to otherness	55
I Finitude and action	55
II Other thinking	63
5 “From/after this laughter and this dance . . .”	75
I Derrida’s resituating of responsibility	76

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-40948-3 - Political Theory and Postmodernism

Stephen K. White

Table of ContentsMore information

viii

CONTENTS

II	Toward a sublime of everyday life	85
III	A bearable lightness of care	90
6	Difference feminism and responsibility to otherness	95
I	The significance of care in feminism	96
II	From the intimate to the ethical-political	102
7	Rethinking justice	115
I	A new pluralist justice	117
II	The phenomena of injustice	122
III	Fostering and constraining otherness	126
8	Conclusion	149
	Index	151