

Contents

|   |             |     |
|---|-------------|-----|
| Acknowledgments   | page | xii |
|   |             |     |
| Introduction  |             | 1   |
| 1 Conditions for propositional knowledge                  |             | 13  |
| 1.1 Belief  |             | 13  |
| 1.2 Truth as minimal correspondence                       |             | 23  |
| 1.2.1 Truth as correspondence                             |             | 24  |
| 1.2.2 The minimal correspondence definition               |             | 26  |
| 1.2.3 Criticisms and replies                              |             | 29  |
| 1.3 Epistemic justification                               |             | 35  |
| 1.4 Conclusion  |             | 45  |
| 2 Minimal epistemic reasons                               |             | 47  |
| 2.1 Minimal epistemic reasons for belief                  |             | 47  |
| 2.2 Propositional probability-makers                      |             | 52  |
| 2.2.1 Against the Thesis of Self-Probability              |             | 55  |
| 2.2.2 Against Probability Infinitism                      |             | 56  |
| 2.2.3 Circular Probability and ProbabilityCoherentism |             | 60  |
| 2.2.4 Summary and generalized argument                    |             | 63  |
| 2.3 Nonpropositional probability-makers                   |             | 69  |
| 2.3.1 Against Externalism                                 |             | 71  |
| a. Against Radical Externalism                     |             | 71  |
| b. Against Moderate Externalism                    |             | 74  |
| c. A positive lesson                               |             | 77  |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| 2.3.2 Internalism and unconditional probability-makers | 77  |
| a. Modes of awareness                           | 80  |
| b. Unconditional probability-makers             | 88  |
| c. Internalism unified                          | 107 |
| 2.4 Internalism and derivative probability-makers      | 112 |
| 2.5 Nonoccurrent probability-makers and memory         | 117 |
| 2.6 Conclusion   | 125 |
| 3 Justifying epistemic reasons                     | 126 |
| 3.1 Justification and overbalancing probability        | 126 |
| 3.1.1 Unconditional overbalancing probability          | 127 |
| 3.1.2 Derivative overbalancing probability             | 131 |
| 3.1.3 The insufficiency of overbalancing probability   | 134 |
| 3.2 Justification and maximal probability              | 136 |
| 3.2.1 Unconditional and derivative justifiers          | 136 |
| 3.2.2 Justifiability and justifiedness                 | 141 |
| 3.2.3 Some logical matters                             | 145 |
| 3.3 Having a justifying reason for belief              | 151 |
| 3.4 The evidential basing relation                     | 156 |
| 3.5 Against justification skepticism                   | 158 |
| 3.6 Conclusion   | 164 |
| 4 Foundationalism and some alternatives            | 166 |
| 4.1 Foundationalism is not a mistake                   | 166 |
| 4.1.1 Two problems for coherentism                     | 172 |
| a. A dilemma for internalist coherentism        | 173 |
| b. The isolation objection                      | 176 |
| 4.1.2 Against epistemological behaviorism              | 183 |
| 4.2 The given is not a myth                            | 186 |
| 4.3 Epistemic reliabilism and relevant worlds          | 194 |
| 4.3.1 Three variations on reliabilism                  | 195 |
| 4.3.2 Normal-world reliabilism                         | 196 |
| 4.3.3 Reliabilism rejected                             | 202 |
| 4.4 Conclusion   | 204 |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| 5 Procedural epistemic rationality                               | 205 |
| 5.1 Cartesian truth-seekers                                      | 210 |
| 5.2 A plethora of epistemic objectives                           | 213 |
| 5.2.1 Purely quantitative approaches                             | 213 |
| 5.2.2 Nonquantitative approaches                                 | 217 |
| 5.3 An evidential epistemic objective                            | 223 |
| 5.4 Conclusion   | 231 |
| 6 Propositional knowledge  | 232 |
| 6.1 Epistemic explanation and the Gettier problem                | 235 |
| 6.2 Knowledge and truth-resistant evidence                       | 242 |
| 6.3 Knowledge skepticism and meta-justification                  | 255 |
| 6.3.1 Knowledge and a Cartesian Dreamer Hypothesis               | 255 |
| 6.3.2 Explanatory particularism and the problem of the criterion | 260 |
| 6.4 Conclusion   | 265 |
| References   | 267 |
| Index  | 281 |