

Index

- absolutism: limits to the power of seventeenth-century “absolutist” German states, 22–23, 31–33, 80; meaning of, 16–17
- Anderson, Perry, 3
- Anton, Paul, 122, 164, 166
- Arndt, Johann, 95–99, 107, 110, 125, 144n, 185, 186, 192
- Bach, Johann Sebastian, 98, 99n
- Becher, Johann Joachim, 39, 31
- Bible: Canstein Bible Institute, mass production of Bibles by, 191, 198; Czech and Polish translation of, role of Halle Pietism in, 192; the “Elizabeth” Russian
 Bible, 193; use in the schools of the Halle
Anstalten, 157; use in the theology program at the University of Halle, 164–66
- Boehm, Anton Wilhelm, 185, 198
- Brandenburg, Mark: conditions in, 36–39,
 43, 48–49, 51, 53, 71–72, 221–22, 264,
 265
- Brandenburg-Prussia (i.e. the Hohenzollern state up to 1713): catastrophes of the early seventeenth century, 38;
 continuities in policy between the Great
 Elector and Frederick III (I), 60–61;
 famine and plague of 1708–10, 71–72;
 Frederick III(I)’s modifications of the Great Elector’s policies, 61–71; the Great
 Elector, state-building under, 44–59;
 Louis XIV, relations with 56–57, 59, 60, 73, 77; Northern War, success in, 49; the period 1640–1713, overall significance of,
 14–16, 73–79; Reformed confessionalism, advent of, 42–44; territorial composition of, 39–41; War of Spanish Succession, role in, 66, 73; weakness in the sixteenth century, 36–37. See also Frederick III(I), Frederick William (“the Great Elector”)
- Breithaupt, Joachim Justus, 122, 126, 129, 164, 201
- Buddeus, Johann Franz, 114n, 221
- cameralism, 29–31, 117n, 241–42
- Canstein, Carl Hildebrand, Freiherr von,
 123–24, 131, 179, 191, 198, 201, 209
- Christianity, traditional: its role in inhibiting bureaucratization, 84–86
- Cleve-Mark, 39, 41, 45, 47, 49
- confessionalism: beginnings of, 20–21;
 continuing importance after the Religious Wars, 34; significance in Germany, decline of 277–79. See also Lutheran confessionalism, Reformed confessionalism
- Danckelmann, Eberhard, 61, 64, 71, 128
- Dannhauer, Johann Konrad, 105
- Dorn, Walter, 268
- East Prussia, originally the Duchy of Prussia: 36, 38, 41, 47, 49, 51, 57, 64–65,
 72, 214, 216–17, 219–20, 246, 248,
 252–55, 256, 259, 264, 279, 280n
- Elers, Heinrich Julius, 177n, 178, 182, 183,
 191, 192n, 198
- Elvin, Mark, 280
- Enlightenment (Aufklärung), 275–79
- Ernest the Pious, Duke of Saxe-Gotha,
 93–94, 125, 184
- Evans, Richard J., 281, 283
- Finckenstein, Finck von, 235
- Fischer, D. Johann, 134, 135n
- Francke, August Hermann: administrative methods of, 179; Anglo-American evangelicals, contacts with, 184–86;
 controversies with the Halle clergy and Magdeburg Regierung, 129–30, 132–37;
 conventicles, de-emphasis on, 136; death of, 198; early life and conversion of,
 125–26, 138–40; Frederick I, conflict with, 203–04; Frederick William I, relationship with, 203–04, 208–10,

- Francke, August Hermann (cont.)
 215–22, 225; Glaucha, pastorate at, 128–29, 133; illness and medicine, theory of, 172; legalism of, 143–45, 153–54, 158–60, 166–68, 253, 283; Leipzig “revival,” involvement in, 117–18, 139; material wealth, attitude toward, 176–77; Orthodox church, plans for reform of, 186–87; pedagogical theory, 155–56, 159–61, 164; Pietist-Hohenzollern collaboration, proposal for, 201–02, 222; spiritualism, relationship with, 126, 130, 147–48; spirituality, contrasted with Spener’s, 140–49; Swedish Lutheranism, relations with, 193, 195; University of Halle, appointment at, 61, 122, 128, 133; utilitarianism of, 146–47, 160–62, 168–69; “world reform,” vision of, 150–53. See also Halle Anstalten, Halle Pietism, Promethean spirituality
- Francke, Gotthilf August, 198
- Frankfurt/Oder, 43, 45, 46, 54–55, 241
- Frederick II (“the Great”), 1, 2, 5, 237, 273–80
- Frederick III (I), elector of Brandenburg, king in Prussia (beginning in 1701): clique of the “3 W’s,” importance of, 67, 71–72; confessional union, policy of, 62–63, 202–03; coronation as king in Prussia, 64–65; court of, 64, 66; crisis of 1708–10, 71–72; death of, 247; economic policies, 65–68, 76–77; fiscalism under, 67, 76; Magdeburg region, policy toward, 128–30; Pietist movement, relations with, 61–63, 70–71, 120–24, 128–37, 202–04; prosperity of Berlin under, 66–67; reconciliation with estates, policy of, 64–65, 133, 202; Reformed religion, personal commitment to, 60, 62n, 63n; rulership, concept of, 62, 64–65, 74; social problems under, 68–72; subsidies, dependence on, 65–66; taxes and state revenues under, 66–67; University of Halle, reasons for founding, 61–62; welfare policies, 69–71. See also Brandenburg-Prussia
- Frederick William (“the Great Elector”): army under, 47–48, 57–58; bureaucracy under, 46–47, 52–55; domain policy, 52–53; ecclesiastical policies, 44–45, 50–52, 69; economic policies, 48, 54–59, 76, 179n, 180n; estates, relationship with, 49–55; grain-export policies, 71; guild policy, 55–56; historical significance, standard view of his, 14–16; immigration policies and their impact, 45–49, 59, 76; medical practice under, 69; Northern War, importance for his reign, 49–50; Reformed upbringing and faith of, 43–44; rulership, concept of, 74–75; state-building achievements, limits to, 55–59, 74–76; state-building prospects at his accession, 39–42; subsidies, acceptance of, 58–59; taxes and state revenues under, 52–54, 75; welfare policies, 70. See also Brandenburg-Prussia
- Frederick William I: anti-Semitism of, 240n; cadet corps, founding in Berlin by, 234; cameralism, promotion of, 241; confessional union, policy toward, 211, 216; crown prince, role in father’s government as, 72, 210–11, 213; early life and religious conversion, 204–05; economic development strategy, 249–51, 255–56, 258–59, 262–63, 266–68; Enlightenment, receptivity toward, 276; fiscalism practiced by, 248; Frederick II, methods of “educating,” 273–74; garrison system, institution by, 229–30; General Directory, creation by, 243; historians’ treatment of, 6–12; inspection, surveillance, and exhortation of subordinates by, 224–25, 235–39, 242–46, 252, 255; legalism of, 207, 224, 234–36, 239, 245–46, 283; life work, formulation of basic strategy for, 210–13; Lutheran church, campaign against ceremonialism of, 275; parsimony of, 248–49; pedagogical methods, parallels with Francke, 271–72; Pietism, relationship with, 207–10, 215–22; Potsdam military orphanage, founded by, 227; relationship with his predecessors and their policies, 9–10, 14–16, 223, 229, 230–31, 237–38, 247–48, 270; rulership, concept of, 211–12, 271, 277–78; spirituality of, 11–12, 205–07, 210–14; utilitarianism of, 234, 241–42; vocation, concept of, 211–13, 225, 232–33, 244–45, 251–52, 255. See also Promethean spirituality, Prussia
- Fuchs, Paul, 47, 61, 123, 125, 202, 203
- Gedicke, Lampertus, 122, 215, 216n, 225–26, 227n
- George William, elector of Brandenburg, 43, 50
- Gerhard, Johann, 93, 96
- Goffman, Erving, 156n, 157n, 173, 176, 178n
- Habsburg dynasty and lands, 25, 29, 31, 32–33, 38, 46, 49, 66, 187–89, 194–95, 274, 278–79

Cambridge University Press

0521431832 - Pietism and the Making of Eighteenth-Century Prussia

Richard L. Gawthrop

Index

More information

Index

303

- Halle, city of, 55, 126–28, 132
- Halle, University of: Collegium Orientale Theologicum, 165, 186; expulsion of Christian Wolff from, 197, 218; founding of, 61; Frederick William I, relationship with, 215–16, 218, 220–21, 225–26, 241, 242n; Halle Anstalten, relationship to, 131, 163; medical clinic, 171–73; medical faculty, 170–71; Seminarium Praeceptorum, 169, 174; students, growth in numbers of, 173–74; theological faculty, appointment and composition of, 122, 129, 133, 203, 209–10; theology program under the Pietists, 163–69, 195–97
- Halle Anstalten (also known as the “Franckesche Stiftungen”): administration of, 178–79; building campaigns for, 190; donations to, 131, 177–78; epidemic of 1698–99 at, 170; founding of, 130–31; German school, 130, 155–57, 161, 163, 173; Latin school, 130, 155, 157, 161, 163, 173; manufacturing enterprises, failure of, 179–81; medicines, dispensing of free, 171, 182; mission in India, 185–86; mission in Russia, 186–87, 193–95, 216; mission in the Habsburg lands, 187–88, 194–95; the Naturalienkabinett, 162, 190; the orphanage, 131, 169–70, 178, 180–83; orphanage press, output of, 190–93; the Paedagogium, 130, 156–57, 161–63, 173, 235n; parallels with post-1713 Prussia, 271–72; privileges granted to, 131–32, 135, 177; schools, pedagogy in, 155–63; self-sufficiency of, 176–77, 181, 189–90; trade in books and medicines, 181–84, 188–89. See also Francke, August Hermann; Prussia
- Halle Pietism: deaths of Francke and most of his collaborators, 198; decline in enthusiasm at the University of Halle, 195–97, 281–82; economic growth of the Halle Anstalten, 176–84, 188–90; imprint on the Prussian collective mentality of, 220–22, 268–69; in Brandenburg, 221–22; in East Prussia, 194, 217, 219–20; in Pomerania, 194, 217–19; mission outside Germany, 184–88, 190–95; parallels with the Enlightenment, 276–77; pedagogy, long-term impact of, 281–84; the Prussian civilian church, influence on, 252–55; the Prussian military church, influence on, 215, 217, 225–28; the Prussian officer corps, influence on, 234–37; Spenerian Pietism, contrasts with, 120, 124, 129, 136n, 137–50; split within, 275–76. See also Francke, August Hermann; Prussia
- Hinrichs, Carl, 7–9
- Hintze, Otto, 37
- Hornejus, Johann Gottfried, 218–19, 227n, 275
- Huguenots, 46, 48, 55, 59, 60–61, 63, 76n, 128
- Jablonski, Daniel Ernst, 62
- Jena, University of, 114, 221
- Jews, 48, 54–55, 66, 76n, 128, 240n
- John Sigismund, elector of Brandenburg, 42–43, 50
- Jones, Griffith, 185
- Juncker, Johann, 171–73, 190, 198
- Junkers, 2–4, 15, 36–39, 75, 77–79, 230–37, 263, 273, 280
- Knyphausen, Dodo von, 52–53
- Königsberg, University of, 61n, 219–20, 226n, 253
- Krautt, Christian Friedrich, 128
- Krautt, Johann Andreas, 260–62
- Krieger, Leonard, 8
- Leipzig, 117–18, 124, 179, 182
- Leopold, Prince of Anhalt-Dessau, 207, 223–24, 236–37
- Lessing, Gotthold Ephraim, 5
- Lifton, Robert Jay, 152–53, 155, 158n, 165, 173, 196–97
- Löscher, Valentin, 202
- Ludolf, Heinrich Wilhelm, 184–87
- Lutheran confessionalism: eschatology of, 90–92, 95; impact of Puritanism on, 99–100; neo-scholasticism in, 92–93, 98–99, 101, 165; orthodox opposition to Halle Pietism, 126–37, 202–03; orthodox opposition to Spenerian Pietism, 116–19; pedagogical efforts of, 21, 90–91, 94–95, 154–55; piety of, 90–91, 95–101; reconciliation of Pietist and orthodox factions, 275; relationship with German states, 89, 94–95, 101–03; tension between traditional and modernizing elements in, 87–103
- Lutheran Pietism: in Württemberg, 119, Leipzig “revival” of 1689–90, 117–18; persecutions of 1690s, 118–19; Puritanism, relationship to, 8, 11, 104–05, 107–08, 141, 144n, 145n, 147, 148n, 160, 284; quietist tendency in, 119–20; stereotypes of, 7–8. See also Francke, August Hermann; Halle, University of; Halle Anstalten; Halle Pietism; Lutheran confessionalism; Spener; State Pietism

- Lutheranism: connection between Luther and the modern German state, 86–87; reputation for political passivity, 7–8 Lysius, Heinrich, 122, 215
- Magdeburg region, 41, 54, 72, 126–27, 179–80, 279n
- Mather, Cotton, 186, 188
- Maximilian I, duke/elector of Bavaria, 21, 74
- McNeill, William H., 224
- Melton, James Van Horn, 281–82
- Merton, Thomas, 153, 195–96, 283–84
- Michaelis, Philipp, 216, 226
- Natzmer, Dubislav Gneomar von, 123, 203, 208–09
- Neubauer, Georg, 131, 169, 178–80, 198
- Peter I, tsar of Russia, 187, 195
- Pietism. See Lutheran Pietism
- Poggi, Gianfranco, 270
- police ordinances, 19–20, 29
- Pomerania, 36, 39, 41, 47, 48, 54, 57, 72, 216–19, 256, 262, 279n
- Porst, Johann, 122, 216, 221–22
- Printzen, Marquard Ludwig von, 203
- Prothetean spirituality: definition, 83–84, 87; of Francke, 142n, 143n, 148–49, 153n, 195–96; similarities between spiritualities of Francke and Frederick William I, 205–07, 210–14, 233, 241n, 252–53, 270
- Prussia (i.e. the Hohenzollern state after 1713): agricultural sector, 261, 263, 265; armaments industry, 260, 262, 264; Berlin cadet corps (Kadettenanstalt), 231, 234–36; bureaucracy, military influence on, 242; bureaucracy, Pietist ethos of, 244–46; bureaucracy, recruitment and training of, 238–46; common soldiers, discipline and training of, 223–30; common soldiers, economic role of, 225, 250; common soldiers, recruitment of, 215–16, 223, 225–28, 248; continuity between reigns of Frederick William I and Frederick II, 6, 273–80; domain officials (Pächter), 241n, 261, 263, 265; economic growth under Frederick William I and Frederick II, 264–66, 273; economic system, parallels with Halle Anstalten, 259, 264, 272; economic system, parallels with Soviet-type command economy, 266–68; entrepreneurs, policies toward, 259–61; fiscals, surveillance role of, 245–46; garrison schools, 227–28; garrisons, relations with host communities, 229–30; the General Directory, 243–45, 255, 257; guild policy, 256–58, 267; historiography of, 1–13; immigration policies, 249–50; the Lagerhaus, 250, 258, 260–62; medical education, improvements in, 241n; military church, 215, 217, 225–28; officer corps, economic role of, 250, 261; officer corps, ethos of, 233, 237; officer corps, recruitment and training of, 231–37; Potsdam military orphanage, 218, 227–28, 251, 261; school building program, 254–55; state revenues, 265–66; tax commissars (Steuerräte), 242, 250; textile industry, 233n, 249n, 250–51, 257–60, 262, 264, 267; welfare policies, 250–51. See also Frederick William I, Halle Pietism, State Pietism
- Prussian Historical School, 6, 14–15
- Puhle, Hans-Jürgen, 4
- Puritanism, English, 8, 11, 99–100, 104–05, 107–08, 111, 113, 141, 144n, 145n, 147, 148n, 160n, 253n, 284
- Raëff, Marc, 29
- Rebeur, Philippe de, 204, 211
- Redlich, Fritz, 228
- Reformed confessionalism: conflict with Halle Pietism, 202–04, 209–10, 216; phenomenon of the “Second Reformation,” 42–43, 74; post-1613 connection of Hohenzollerns with west European Calvinism, 43–44. See also Frederick III(I), Frederick William (“the Great Elector”)
- Reinbeck, Johann Gustav, 215, 276
- Reinhardt, Carl Friedrich, 259–60
- “representation,” as a means of bolstering elite authority, 27–28, 93–94
- Richter, Christian Friedrich, 170–71, 178n, 182
- Rogall, Georg Friedrich, 219–20
- Rosenberg, Hans, 15
- Salzburg, Lutherans forced to emigrate from, 195, 246, 249
- Schade, Johann Caspar, 118, 124–25, 129
- Schindler, Severin, 260
- Schinmeyer, Johann Christoph, 219
- Schmidt, Johann, 104
- Schmoller, Gustav, 14, 246
- Schultz, Franz Albert, 220, 253–55, 275–76
- Seckendorff, Ludwig von, 61, 128, 129–30
- Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge (SPCK), 184–86

Index

305

- Spener, Philipp Jakob: as court preacher in Saxony, 117–18, 120, 138; conventicle at Frankfurt, 108–09; death of, 203; early training and experience, 105–06; leadership abilities of, 113–14; meliorist eschatology of, 107–09, 147; Pia Desideria, reform ideas in, 103, 105–09, 112–13; Pietist movement, initiator and early leader of, 113–24; relationship with Francke, 117, 120, 130, 134, 136, 137–48; relationship with government of Frederick III(I), 61, 70–71, 120–24; role in the “confessional controversy” in Berlin, 124–25, 129; social reform initiatives, 70–71, 114–15; spirituality of, 110–11, 140–48
- Splitgerber & Daun, 260, 262n
- State Pietism, 213, 222, 232–34, 244–46, 252, 268, 279–80, 283
- state-building: in eighteenth-century Europe, 80–84; in seventeenth-century Germany, 23–35; in sixteenth-century Germany, 16–23
- Steinmetz, Adam, 188, 218
- Stettin, 56–57, 217–19, 264n
- Strauss, Gerald, 155
- Swabian League, 18
- Teschen, 187–88, 194, 218
- Thirty Years’ War: economic impact of, 23–24; effect on princely power in Germany, 24–25; German states’ efforts to recover from, 28–31, 33–34; impact on Brandenburg-Prussia, 38–39; impact on Halle, 127
- Thomasius, Christian, 61, 277n
- Vierhaus, Rudolf, 266
- Voigt, Christian, 187–88, 194
- Weber, Max, 8, 82–83, 280
- Wendland, Walter, 221
- Westphalia, Peace of, 25, 32, 41
- Whitefield, George, 185
- Wolff, Abraham, 219–20
- Wolff, Christian, 196–97, 218, 276, 277n
- Zweig, Stefan, 268–69