

Contents

List of figures	page	xiii
List of tables		xiv
Preface: István P. Székely and David M. G. Newbery		xvii
Foreword: Mario Sarcinelli		xix
Acknowledgements		xxiv
List of conference participants		xxv
1 Introduction		1
István P. Székely and David M. G. Newbery
1 The Hungarian success story		1
2 The Hungarian transformation process: prospects and pitfalls		2
3 Enterprise reform		5
4 Credibility of the reform process		14
5 The role of aid and professional expertise		15
6 Potential hazards facing the transformation		16
7 Importance of the EC and West		21
8 Conclusion		22
Part One: Foreign trade		25
2 Economic consequences of Soviet disintegration for Hungary		27
László Csaba
1 Overall recession and trade with Eastern Europe: causes and consequences		27
2 Reorientation and systemic change		30
3 A 'lame duck' administration?		34
4 Prospects for the future		39

Cambridge University Press

0521440181 - Hungary: An Economy in Transition

Edited by Istvan P. Szekely and David M. G. Newbery

Table of Contents

More information

viii	Contents
3	Regional cooperation in East–Central Europe	44
	Kálmán Mizsei
4	Export supply and import demand in Hungary: an econometric analysis for 1968–89	51
	László Halpern and István P. Székely
1	Introduction	51
2	The regulation of exports and imports in Hungary during 1968–89	52
3	Previous empirical results on export and import functions for Hungary	53
4	An export supply function for Hungary	56
5	An import demand function for Hungary	60
6	Conclusions and policy implications	64
	Discussion of Part One	70
	Renzo Daviddi
	Part Two: Privatisation and competition policy	75
5	10 per cent already sold: privatisation in Hungary	77
	Zsigmond Járαι
1	Promising results	78
2	Buyers, sellers and intermediaries	80
3	Prospects for 1992	82
6	Hungary: a unique approach to privatisation – past, present and future	84
	Péter Mihályi
1	Introduction	84
2	Scholars looking for owners	85
3	Objectives of privatisation	90
4	Speed: just about right	106
	Appendix: A summary of SPA-initiated privatisation programmes for medium-size and large SOEs	110
7	Competition policy in transition	118
	János Stadler
1	Introduction	118
2	Characteristics of the Hungarian Competition Law	118

Cambridge University Press

0521440181 - Hungary: An Economy in Transition

Edited by Istvan P. Szekely and David M. G. Newbery

Table of Contents

More information

	Contents ix
3 Experiences in the first year of the Competition Law	121
4 The role of competition policy in shaping markets	124
Discussion of Part Two	125
John P. Bonin
Rumen Dobrinsky
Paul Seabright
 Part Three: The financial system and private savings	 135
 8 A short-run money market model of Hungary	 137
Júlia Király
1 Introduction	137
2 The segments of the money market	138
3 Tools of monetary policy	142
4 A simple money market model	143
5 Conclusions	147
 9 The modernisation of the Hungarian banking sector	 149
Éva Várhegyi
1 Introduction	149
2 The limitations of the first banking reform	149
3 The beginning of the 'second' banking reform	159
 10 Changing structure of household portfolios in emerging market economies: the case of Hungary, 1970–89	 163
István Ábel and István P. Székely
1 Introduction	163
2 Interest rates and the accumulation of financial assets	164
3 Structure of households' assets	166
4 Factors influencing real asset accumulation	171
5 The impact of reforms of the financial system	175
6 Conclusions	176
 Discussion of Part Three	 180
John P. Bonin
Lucian Ionescu
Colin Mayer

Cambridge University Press

0521440181 - Hungary: An Economy in Transition

Edited by Istvan P. Szekely and David M. G. Newbery

Table of Contents

More information

x Contents

Part Four: Foreign debt and monetary policy	191
11 Hungary's foreign debt: controversies and macroeconomic problems	193
Gábor Oblath
1 Introduction	193
2 The accumulation of foreign debt	194
3 The official debt strategy and its critics	206
4 The official debt strategy: expectations, assumptions and implications	209
5 Hungarian debt strategy and assistance from the West: what is to be expected?	219
Appendix: Hungary's debt in international comparison	220
12 Managing foreign debts and monetary policy during transformation	224
Werner Riecke
1 Hungary's convertible foreign debt, 1973–91	224
2 Monetary policy behind the increase of debt	227
3 Prospects for Hungary's economy	229
Discussion of Part Four	231
L. Alan Winters
Richard Portes
Part Five: Legislative and tax reform	237
13 A legal framework for the Hungarian transition, 1989–91	239
Tamás Sárközy
1 Introduction: now that the wall has been pulled down	239
2 Attempts to create a 'socialist market' model, 1967–88	240
3 The legal climate during the transition to a free market system	243
4 Are things looking up?	246
14 Tax reform in Hungary	249
Jenő Koltay
1 Introduction	249
2 Before the tax reform	250
3 Preparation and implementation of the tax reform	251
4 The new taxes	253

	Contents xi
5 The taxation of personal income	258
6 Corporate income taxation and 'dividend' payments of state enterprises	260
7 General and selective consumption taxation	262
8 Tax reform and the budget	264
9 The tax system and the economic system	268
Discussion of Part Five	270
Athar Hussain
Part Six: Labour markets, unemployment and social security	275
15 The transformation of shop floor bargaining in Hungarian industry	277
János Köllö
1 Introduction	277
2 Managerial attitudes towards wages and effort under state socialism	278
3 The means of bargaining	279
4 The sources of individual bargaining power	280
5 The problem of contract enforcement	284
6 The erosion of individual bargaining power	286
7 Conclusion	291
16 The social security crisis in Hungary	296
Mária Augusztinovics
1 Lessons from a simple example	296
2 The real-life system	306
Discussion of Part Six	321
David M. G. Newbery
David Winter
Part Seven: State desertion	327
17 State desertion and convertibility: the case of Hungary	329
István Ábel and John P. Bonin
1 Introduction: the economic black hole	329
2 The fiscal budget: state desertion and inflation	332
3 State-managed convertibility	334
4 Conclusion: 'shock therapy' versus 'slow but steady'	338

xii Contents

Discussion of Part Seven	341
David Begg
R. E. Rowthorn
Conclusion	342
Adam Ridley
Glossary	353
Index	355