

Contents

1. INTRODUCTION	1
2. AUTONOMY AND THE LIBERAL IDEAL	10
The idea of autonomy	10
The liberal society	15
Critics of the liberal ideal	20
3. ENDING LIFE	30
The ethics of suicide	30
A moral right to die?	36
Decriminalising suicide	39
Multicultural attitudes to death and dying	41
Choosing for those who cannot choose for themselves	45
The quality of life	48
The liberal society and the right to die	52
Death and the hospital	55
4. BEGINNING LIFE	63
New ways of birth and family formation	63
Bearing a child for another	69
Questions about surrogacy	73

Consequences of surrogacy	81
Feminist views on reproductive technology	88
‘Third wave’ feminist views	96
Social and legal implications	102
 5. DISTRIBUTING HEALTH-CARE RESOURCES	 107
The problem of scarce resources	107
Utilitarian approaches	111
A health system in a liberal society	117
Patient and physician	120
Health-care resource allocations: four examples	123
Reaching community consensus	142
Two forms of community consultation	145
The limits to planning	153
 6. CONSENSUS IN A LIBERAL SOCIETY	 160
The liberal ideal and bioethical realities	160
Ethical agreement in a multicultural society	162
Conclusion	167
 INDEX	 169