

Cambridge University Press

0521467187 - Mr Bligh's Bad Language: Passion, Power and Theatre on the Bounty

Greg Denning

Frontmatter

More information

Canto is an imprint offering a range of titles, classic and more recent, across a broad spectrum of subject areas and interests. History, literature, biography, archaeology, politics, religion, psychology, philosophy and science are all represented in Canto's specially selected list of titles, which now offers some of the best and most accessible of Cambridge publishing to a wider readership.

Cambridge University Press

0521467187 - Mr Bligh's Bad Language: Passion, Power and Theatre on the Bounty

Greg Denning

Frontmatter

More information

MR BLIGH'S BAD LANGUAGE

Cambridge University Press

0521467187 - Mr Bligh's Bad Language: Passion, Power and Theatre on the Bounty

Greg Denning

Frontmatter

More information

Mr Bligh's
Bad Language

Passion, Power and Theatre on the Bounty

GREG DENING

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press
0521467187 - Mr Bligh's Bad Language: Passion, Power and Theatre on the Bounty
Greg Denning
Frontmatter
More information

Published by the Press Syndicate of the University of Cambridge
The Pitt Building, Trumpington Street, Cambridge CB2 1RP
40 West 20th Street, New York, NY 10011-4211, USA
10 Stamford Road, Oakleigh, Melbourne 3166, Australia

© Cambridge University Press 1992

First published 1992
Canto edition 1994

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data available.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

ISBN 0-521-38370-6 hardback
ISBN 0-521-46718-7 paperback

Transferred to digital printing 2002

Cambridge University Press

0521467187 - Mr Bligh's Bad Language: Passion, Power and Theatre on the Bounty

Greg Denning

Frontmatter

More information

For the memory
of my father,
Alec Seymour Denning
(1898–1953).
He was a sailor
and told me many yarns of the sea.
I wish he had heard mine.

Contents

List of Illustrations	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii

PROLOGUE I

ACT ONE. THE SHIP 17

Scene i. Narrative / 35

Fatal Histories (35) Mr Bligh's Bad Language (55)
 Mr Christian's Lot (88) Sad Passions and Damned
 Oeconomy (96)

Scene ii. Reflection / 113

Some Cliometrics of Violence (113) Some Non-Cliometrics of Violence (124) Iudicatio (law) and Coercitio (force) (130) Dreams of Perfect Naval Discipline
 (133) Midshipmanship (140) Captaining (142) Texts
 for Discipline (147) White Jacket (153)

ENTR'ACTE

SHARKS THAT WALK ON THE LAND 157

ACT TWO. THE BEACH 175

Scene i. Narrative / 189

Between Land and Sea (189) An Icon of the Beach
 (213) Flags and Feather Girdles (217) Interlude: On Sacrifice (222) Another Sort of Altar Stone (230) Managing the Sublime (239)

Scene ii. Reflection / 253

In the Name of the Revolution . . . of the King . . .
 of the President (253) Going Native (257) Possessing Others with a Laugh (262)

ENTR'ACTE

RALPH WEWITZER: THE FIRST 'CAPTAIN BLIGH' 283

ACT THREE. THE ISLAND 305Scene i. Narrative / 309

A Murderous Settlement (309) 'Innocence Better
 Imagined than Described' (324) 'Poore Orfing' (329)
 Politics on Pitcairn (334)

Scene ii. Reflection / 339

Representation and the Contribution of Errol Flynn,
 Clark Gable, Marlon Brando and Mel Gibson to Cultural Literacy (339)

EPILOGUE 369

Notes 375

Reference Bibliography 397

Index 429

Illustrations

Figure 1.	Robert Dodd, 'Lieutenant Bligh Leaving the Bounty '.	page 7
Figure 2.	The Tomb of William Bligh.	14
Figure 3a–d.	Spaces of the Bounty .	28
Figure 4a–1.	The Faces of the Bounty .	48
Figure 5.	The Voyage of the Bounty to Tahiti.	72
Figure 6.	Tubuai and 'Fort George'.	93
Figure 7a–d.	The Launch Voyage.	109
Figure 8a–d.	Processions and Landings.	164
Figure 9a–e.	The Beach and Island of Tahiti.	183
Figure 10.	The Struggle between the Tahitians and the Dolphin at Matavai.	194
Figure 11a–d.	The God 'Oro and the Paraphernalia of his Presence.	209
Figure 12.	The Pandora 's Last Voyage.	241
Figure 13.	The Wreck of the Pandora .	244
Figure 14.	Wallis Takes Possession of Tahiti from 'Queen Oberea'.	265
Figure 15.	Oberea, the Enchantress.	270
Figure 16.	Cook's Second Apotheosis.	273
Figure 17.	The Tahitian Prophet.	289
Figure 18.	The Bounty 's Last Voyage.	315
Figure 19.	The Poore Orfing, John Adams.	330
Figure 20.	Mr Bligh's Other Bad Language.	342
Figure 21.	The Real Gentleman Triumphs.	367

Acknowledgements

I feel sad now, as I count my debts, that my long voyage with the Bounty is nearing its end. The Bounty has been bountiful to me. I cannot say who gave her the name or whether there was any discussion of its aptness to the ambitions that sent her into the Pacific to deliver a source of mass subsistence, the breadfruit, to West Indies slave plantations. But the hours of enjoyment, the years of learning have been a bounty for me. The Bounty is my first acknowledgement.

My second is my students. For twenty years they have represented the Bounty to me in narratives, reflections, poetry, plays and even paintings. They will find in this book how much I owe them.

An older generation of scholars has made research into all things concerned with the Bounty much easier than they themselves experienced. Markedly these were Owen Rutter, George Mackaness and John C. Beaglehole. I have two mentors, Harry E. Maude and Douglas Oliver, whose contributions will be just as lasting.

There are some modest cliometrics in this study. Pat Grimshaw helped me in the collation of data on which the statistics are based. Wayne Westcott helped in the counting. Mark Gallagher, of the University of Hawaii, managed an experimental computer programme for me.

The University of Melbourne, in the research leave given me; the Faculty of Arts, through various research grants; the Department of History, in the prolonged assistance of its administrative staff, led by Lynn Wrout, and the support of academic colleagues, made the creation of this book possible for me. The Institute for Advanced Studies, Princeton, New Jersey, housed and fed me in the final year, 1988–9, of research and writing. More importantly, the permanent fellows – notably Clifford Geertz, Joan Scott and John Eliot – and the cohort of scholars who shared my good fortune nourished my mind and spirits. A Senior Fulbright Fellowship got me to this academic nirvana.

Donna, my wife, has read everything I have written and has saved me from myself innumerable times. My true bounty in the Bounty has been the freedom her care has allowed me.

Vivienne Burrows puzzled with me over how best the land- and sea-scapes of the voyages in this book could be represented. Her maps are my delight.

The list of institutions and persons to which and to whom I am beholden for giving me permission to publish material in their care and possession is long. Their courtesy is acknowledged in the appropriate places in this book. The institutions are these: The Museum of Art and the Baillieu Library of The University of Melbourne; the National Maritime Museum, Greenwich; the Mitchell Library, Sydney, State Library of N.S.W.; the National Library of Australia, Canberra; the Museum of Garden History, Lambeth; the Manx Museum, Isle of Man; the National Portrait Gallery, London; the Newberry Library, Chicago; the British Museum, London; the Bishop Museum, Honolulu; the New Yorker Magazine, Inc. I also thank these authors for allowing me to use their material: John McKay, Gavin Kennedy, Douglas Oliver, Harry Maude, Niel Gunson, J. B. Handelsman.

'Nothing is written until it has been read' has been a tenet of my teaching for many years. Among the readers who have helped make me a writer are Frank Smith, Executive Editor of Cambridge University Press, New York. His wisdom and enthusiasm have supported me greatly. Shelley Abelson, Copy Editor, and Judi Steinig, Production Editor, have eased my pain in discovering how error prone I am with kind encouragement and a sure eye. Dr Elizabeth Wood Ellem, a Pacific scholar in her own right, contributed the index. Although I count her as my student, she has been my teacher too. I thank all these readers for their crafting skills.