1 Introduction	1
Scope of the study	1
Important contributions	3
Plan of the study	5
2 Some basic tools and concepts	9
Utility maximization	9
A health production function	12
Intertemporal models	15
Introducing risk	17
Some further comments on risk	22
More complex intertemporal models	27
Appendix	30
3 Evaluating health changes in a certain world	33
Two money measures of a change in health	33
On the properties of compensated money measures	37
An example: using CV and EV	40
Overall versus instantaneous money measures	41
A health production function approach	43
Using market data to evaluate changes in health	47
Appendix	49
4 Money measures in a risky world	52
Introducing money measures in a risky world	52
A WTP locus	57
Evaluating changes in mortality, and the value of a statistical life	59
Endogenous risks and altruism	61
Changes in wealth and the value of health	63
Intertemporal models	65
Appendix	69

viii	Contents
5	Evaluating health risks: practical methodologies	71
	The contingent valuation method	71
	Closed-ended techniques	79
	A useful interpretation of WTP measures	83
	CVM studies of health risks	86
	The human capital approach	88
	Market-based estimation methods	89
	The value of a statistical life	93
	Appendix	96
6	Contingent valuation studies of health care	97
	Empirical studies of the WTP for health care: a brief review	97
	A study of high blood pressure	102
	The results	106
	Useful formulae for the computation of the mean WTP	113
	Appendix	114
7	Aggregation	115
	The social welfare function	116
	Project evaluations	119
	Pragmatic views on the aggregation problem	124
	An illustration: how to assess a treatment	126
	Altruism	127
	Altruism in cost-benefit analysis	130
	Appendix	134
8	Further evaluation issues in a risky world	135
	The value of information	135
	A health production function model	139
	Using the model to assess health changes	142
	On the value of changes in life expectancy	146
	Appendix	150
9	Concluding remarks on related approaches	153
	Qalys and hys	153
	Risk–risk and risk–dollar trade-offs	158
	Cost-effectiveness analysis	160
	Appendix	163
	Notes	168
	Bibliography	171
