

CONTENTS

Preface	page vii
Introduction	I
Part I Background
1 The defeat of Germany in 1918 and the European balance of power	11
2 National Socialist organization and foreign policy aims in 1927	23
3 The world through Hitler's eyes	30
Part II The Nazi system
4 The Nazi revolution: A war against human rights	57
5 Propaganda for peace and preparation for war	68
Part III Background for war
6 Hitler and England, 1933–1945: Pretense and reality	85
7 German foreign policy and Austria	95
8 Germany, Munich, and appeasement	109
9 A proposed compromise over Danzig in 1939?	121
10 The German generals and the outbreak of war, 1938–1939	129
11 Hitler's decision for war	146
Part IV World War II
12 German diplomacy toward the Soviet Union	153
13 The Nazi–Soviet pacts of 1939: A half century later	168
14 From confrontation to cooperation: Germany and the United States, 1917–1949	182
15 Pearl Harbor: The German perspective	194
16 Global conflict: The interaction between the European and Pacific theaters of war in World War II	205

Cambridge University Press
0521474078 - Germany, Hitler, and World War II: Essays in Modern German and World History
Gerhard L. Weinberg
Table of Contents
More information

vi	Contents
17	The “Final Solution” and the war in 1943	217
18	July 20, 1944: The German resistance to Hitler	245
19	D-Day after fifty years: Assessments of costs and benefits	254
20	German plans for victory, 1944–1945	274
21	Reflections on running a war: Hitler, Churchill, Stalin, Roosevelt, Tojo	287
22	Some thoughts on World War II	307
23	A new Germany in a new world	318
	Appendix: The end of Ranke’s history? Reflections on the fate of history in the twentieth century	325
	Index	337