

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-47732-1 - Governing Prosperity: Social Change and Social Analysis in Australia in the 1950s

Nicholas Brown

Table of Contents

More information

Contents

List of figures and tables	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
Abbreviations	xi
Introduction	1
1 A part of Asia	13
The reflexive image	13
From 'the Pacific' to 'Asia': the inter-war years	17
'The new forces of an aroused Asia': the challenge of the 1940s	20
'Close to us . . . and disturbed in a dozen different directions': the search for initiative, 1950-55	30
'The Asian upheaval which everybody finds so quaint': the consolidation, 1955-60	42
Asia and 'that ample basket of meaningless slogans'	49
2 'A test of our quality as a nation'	51
The modern and the primitive	51
'Natives are something very much more than an asset': inter-war paternalism	56
'The seal of peace gives warrant to our intrusion': ASOPA, reform and reconsideration, 1945-55	62
'A colonising process taking place after the colonial age has ended': Hasluck and the new paternalism	72
'A culture developed on the basis of social order and integrity': changing images of New Guinea	80
'No longer willing to be the ruler of a colony'	84
3 The milk bar economy	87
Governing the consumer	87
'Free to experiment': inter-war economics	90

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-47732-1 - Governing Prosperity: Social Change and Social Analysis in Australia in the 1950s

Nicholas Brown

Table of Contents

More informationvi Contents

‘Science camouflaged to suit the prejudices of Everyman’: the 1940s	93
‘A citizenship of consumers’: the claims of prosperity	101
‘A shareholders’ democracy’: accepting prosperity	111
‘Personal problems’: the consumer-as-worker	119
‘The small, rich, industrial country’	123
4 Decentralisation and the organisation of life	126
‘A man deprived of space is reduced in stature’	126
‘The millennium in government’: another variant on the inter-war liberal impasse	130
‘Man’s superficial reconciliation with the many’: the politicisation of the 1940s	134
‘Progress through individual effort’: the decentralised citizen	147
Public and private space: the ‘thoroughgoing crisis in social relations’	154
‘A minor social revolution in community life’	164
5 Concepts of self and society	166
‘The new “plastic” man’	166
‘This increasingly difficult problem of self-mastery’: demobilising the self in the 1940s	168
‘Showing us to ourselves’: images of personality	180
‘The instinctive make-up’: social psychology, the self and sex	193
‘The bud in its dark leaves’: images of self and society	198
‘Life was much more complex’	204
6 ‘A community with a climate of its own’	206
The national interest?	206
‘The boundaries of the State should be the boundaries of the university’: themes to 1939	207
‘A ruling or an administrative education is an education of a most illiberal character’: the 1940s	212
‘The world today suffers more from social inadequacy than it does from technical inefficiency’: the pure vs the applied	220
‘An eagle’s life is worth a world of crows’: the consolidation of the later 1950s	234
‘A fairly cosy relationship?’	241
Notes	244
Index	293