Preface	xiv
Acknowledgements	xviii
 PART ONE: THE NEED FOR A STRUCTURED HUMAN FACTORS METHOD TO SUPPORT SYSTEM DEVELOPMENT	 1
Chapter 1: On Human Factors Contributions to the Development of Interactive Systems	2
1.1. General Problems of Human Factors Contribution to System Development	2
1.2. Existing Means of Human Factors Contribution to System Development	11
1.3. Alternative Conceptions of the System Design Cycle: Rapid Prototyping versus Structured Analysis and Design Methods	18
1.4. Structured Analysis and Design Methods: Enhancement of Human Factors Contribution to System Development	24
 PART TWO: DEVELOPMENT AND OVERVIEW OF MUSE – A STRUCTURED HUMAN FACTORS METHOD	 34
Chapter 2: The Development of MUSE	35
2.1. Required Enhancements of the Design Coverage of Existing Human Factors Techniques	36
2.2. Required Enhancements of the Methodological Characteristics of Existing Human Factors Techniques	37

2.3.	Required Enhancements of the Context for Applying Existing Human Factors Techniques	43
2.4.	A Conception of Human Factors Support for System Development	45
2.5.	Structuring Human Factors Support Throughout System Development	57
2.6.	Development of a Structured Human Factors Method	62
2.7.	Chapter Summary	63
Chapter 3: An Overview of MUSE		65
3.1.	General Characteristics of the Human Factors Method	65
3.2.	Structure of the Human Factors Method	68
3.3.	Design Notations and Documentation Schemes of the Human Factors Method	69
3.4.	System, Sub-System and Interaction Design Levels of the Human Factors Method	79
3.5.	Description Format of the Human Factors Method	79
3.6.	Choice and Scope of the Case-Study Illustration of the Human Factors Method	81
3.7.	Exercise and Sample Solution	82
PART THREE: DETAILED ACCOUNT OF MUSE – A STRUCTURED HUMAN FACTORS METHOD		84
Chapter 4: The Elicitation and Analysis Phase of MUSE		85
4.1.	The Extant Systems Analysis (ESA) Stage	85
4.2.	The Generalised Task Model (GTM) Stage	116
4.3.	Exercises and Sample Solutions	126
Chapter 5: The Synthesis Phase of MUSE		128
5.1.	The Statement of User Needs (SUN) Stage	128
5.2.	The Composite Task Model (CTM) Stage	136
5.3.	The System and User Task Model (SUTaM) Stage	147
5.4.	Exercises and Sample Solutions	156
Chapter 6: The Design Specification Phase of MUSE		161

6.1.	The Interaction Task Model (ITM) Stage	161
6.2.	The Interface Model (IM) and Display Design (DD) Stages	171
6.3.	Exercises and Sample Solutions	197

PART FOUR: THE INTEGRATION OF HUMAN FACTORS
WITH STRUCTURED SOFTWARE ENGINEERING METHODS 213

Chapter 7: Pre-requisites and Examples of the Integration of Human Factors with Structured Software Engineering Methods	214
---	-----

7.1.	General Requirements for Integrating Structured Human Factors and Software Engineering Methods	215
7.2.	Pre-Requisites and Concerns to be Addressed during the Integration of Structured Human Factors and Software Engineering Methods	218
7.3.	MUSE*/JSD – Structured Integration of MUSE with the Jackson System Development (JSD) Method	223
7.4.	Examples of Other Integration of Human Factors with Structured Software Engineering Methods	242

PART FIVE: SYNOPSIS 261

Chapter 8: Assessment and Future Development of MUSE and MUSE*/JSD	262
--	-----

8.1.	An Overview and Assessment of Method Development Activities of MUSE and MUSE*/JSD	262
8.2.	An Assessment of MUSE and MUSE*/JSD	265
8.3.	Further Developments to Extend and Support MUSE and MUSE*/JSD	279
8.4.	Concluding Summary	283
