

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-48186-1 - Sir Arthur Newsholme and State Medicine, 1885-1935

John M. Eyles

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

Illustrations	page ix
Preface	xi
Abbreviations	xvii

PART I. THE MEDICAL OFFICER OF HEALTH AND THE LOCAL
SANITARY AUTHORITY

1	The Medical Officer of Health and his town	3
	The appointment of a new M.O.H.	3
	The town and its reputation	8
	The local health authority	15
2	Fact, theory, and the epidemic milieu	27
	The methods of epidemiology and the work of the M.O.H.	27
	The causes of epidemics	41
3	The urban environment and the M.O.H.'s authority	52
	Households and drains	52
	Infant mortality and public hygiene	56
	Meat inspection and the butchers' revolt	64
	Housing and public health	72
4	The municipal hospital and the isolation of acute infectious diseases	85
	The facilities: Sanatorium, Grange, and laboratory	85
	Management and outcome	97
5	The epidemiology of infected food and the limits of sanitary jurisdiction	119
	Typhoid fever and oysters	119
	Scarlet fever and milk	127
6	Tuberculosis: Public policy and epidemiology	142
	Administration	142
	Epidemiology	165

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-48186-1 - Sir Arthur Newsholme and State Medicine, 1885-1935

John M. Eyer

Table of Contents

More informationviii Contents

PART II. NEWSHOLME AT THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD
7	Poverty, fitness, and the Poor Law	195
	Poverty, evolution, and character	195
	The Poor Law, the Webbs, and a unified medical service	207
8	The Local Government Board and the nation's health policy	220
	The Medical Officer of the L.G.B.	220
	The L.G.B. and the coming of National Insurance	227
9	Launching a national tuberculosis program	239
	Notification and its uses	239
	National Insurance and local authority tuberculosis schemes	249
10	The Great War and the public health enterprise	265
	Contraction: Public health on the home front	265
	Expansion: The state venereal disease service	277
11	Infant and maternal mortality, interdepartmental conflict, and Newsholme supplanted	295
	Why mothers and babies die	295
	Interdepartmental conflict	316
PART III. THE OLD WORLD AND THE NEW: NEWSHOLME AS ELDER STATESMAN
12	Newsholme's trans-Atlantic retirement	341
	Answers to the biometricians	341
	Social hygiene and moral evolution	349
	The socialization of medicine: Newsholme's international studies of health care systems	354
13	Assessments of a career	377
	Select bibliography	395
	Index	417