

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51668-6 - The Kantian Sublime and the Revelation of Freedom

Robert R. Clewis

Index

More informationIndex

- the absolutely great, the sublime defined as, 64, 66
- Adickes, Erich, 228
- admiration and the sublime, 186
- adoptive virtues, 38–9
- the aesthetic and the practical, relationship between, 54
- aesthetic enthusiasm, 30, 169–70, 218
- as affect, 170, 171, 176–7, 181, 182, 184–6
- characteristics of, 231
- in The Conflict of the Faculties, 173–6, 191, 192, 200
- defined, 169
- as dependent sublimity, 96, 191–4
- evolution of Kant's thought on, 1, 170
- false sublimity, Kirwan's view of enthusiasm as, 181–2, 190
- fanaticism distinguished, 4, 40, 170–3
- four moments of pure/merely reflective aesthetic judgment and, 64, 170, 174, 176, 184, 194
- freedom and, 11, 41, 170, 172–3, 179, 196–9
- for French Revolution/republic; see French Revolution, enthusiasm for
- imagination enlarged and expanded by, 171, 173
- interest and disinterestedness, 11, 175, 187–9
- mental states, as sublime of, 91, 169, 184
- moral apathy or affectlessness preferred to, 190
- moral constraints on, 191
- moral idea, as response to, 117, 197–8
- morality and, 9, 140, 170, 172–3, 179–81, 196–9
- morally ambiguous nature of, 170, 172, 178–83, 214
- morally based interest in, 165, 169
- natural objects not stimulus of, 182
- nature, sense of self as in harmony with, 140
- only one form of, 182
- patriotism, association with, 41
- Platonic origins of concept of, 11, 24, 171, 183
- practical enthusiasm distinguished, 3, 42, 169, 203, 210, 231
- pre-Critical theory of, 39–42, 50–2, 55, 170, 194–6, 218
- reason and, 177, 178, 179, 181
- spectator, enthusiast's perspective as, 211
- the sublime, as aesthetic feeling of, 16, 19, 30, 170, 183–91
- sympathy and, 5
- transition problem, 29
- aesthetic judgment; see judgment of the sublime
- affect
- aesthetic enthusiasm as, 170, 171, 176–7, 181, 182, 184–6
- defined, 176–7
- Kirwan's view of, 182
- mental states, sublime of, 90, 92
- morality, relationship between, 92
- the sublime, as experience of, 184–6
- affectlessness or apathy, moral, 92–4, 167, 190
- the agreeable, feelings of, 187
- Allison, Henry
- on intellectual categorical imperative, 74
- on the mathematical sublime, 66
- on maxims, 211, 212
- on morality and the sublime, 11, 19
- on Observations, 34
- on respect, as moral feeling, 129
- on sublime of mental states, 89, 95–6
- on transcendental illusion, 72
- ambiguity, moral
- of aesthetic enthusiasm, 170, 172, 178–83, 214
- of the sublime, 178
- ambition and the noble sublime distinguished, 54
- anarchic state of nature, duty to establish sovereignty in, 209
- anthropocentrism of Kant's view of nature, 141–2
- apathy or affectlessness, moral, 92–4, 167, 190

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51668-6 - The Kantian Sublime and the Revelation of Freedom

Robert R. Clewis

Index

More information

Index

251

- Arendt, Hannah, 211
- Aristotle, 216
- art
- deception and, 160
  - morality and the sublime, 140
  - morally based interest in, 160–2, 166
  - the sublime, elicitation of, 58, 116–25, 222–3
- astonishment and the sublime, 184–6
- awe, 172
- the beautiful
- aesthetic enthusiasm not a feeling of, 187
  - in art, 120, 125
  - characteristics of, 231
  - empirical interest in, 155, 155–8
  - free/dependent distinction in, 98
  - morality and, 10, 16, 135
  - morally based interest in, 155, 158–63
  - the sublime distinguished from, 34
  - transition problem, 9
  - the ugly and the monstrous vs., 115
- Beiner, Ronald, 15
- biocentric critique of Kant's view of nature, 141–2, 144
- bodily health; see health, bodily
- Boileau, Nicolas, 13
- Bosanquet, Bernard, 15, 161
- Bouchet, Louis-André-Gabriel, 1, 2
- Bouillon, Pierre, 1
- Budd, Malcolm
- on alternative grounding of the sublime, 28, 31, 215, 220, 222
  - on dependent and free sublimity, 96, 102–6, 107
  - on interest and disinterestedness, 152, 155
- Burke, Edmund
- astonishment, association of sublime with, 184
  - empirical interest in sublimity and, 163
  - on French Revolution, 200
  - on moral ambiguity of the sublime, 178
  - on opposition of beauty and sublimity, 163
  - physiological account of the sublime by, 224–5
  - theories of the sublime, 13, 15
- categorical imperative, 74, 201, 208–9
- Cato the Younger, 1, 41, 51–2
- Charles I (king of England), 115
- Christian theology as de-sublimization of Jewish law forbidding graven images, 173
- civil disobedience, non-violent, 208
- Collingwood, R. G., 221
- the colossal, 57, 108
- Conflict of the Faculties*, The aesthetic enthusiasm in, 173–6, 191, 192, 200
- constraints, moral
- on aesthetic enthusiasm, 191
  - on the moral sublime, 86, 96
- Critical and pre-Critical theory
- aesthetic enthusiasm, evolution of Kant's thought on, 1, 170
  - morality and the sublime in pre-Critical theory compared, 52–5
  - on the sublime, 14
- Crockett, Clayton, 21, 22
- Cromwell, Oliver, 206
- Crowther, Paul, 164–5
- de Saussure, M., 67, 124
- deception and artifice, 160
- deduction of the sublime, 136–9
- delusion of mind or loss of wits (Wahnwitz), fanaticism compared to, 171
- delusion of sense (Wahnsinn), enthusiasm compared to, 171, 178
- Dennis, John, 23
- dependent/free distinction applied to the sublime, 28, 57, 96–108, 154, 191–4
- desire
- disinterestedness as not having, 149
  - interest as, 146, 147, 148, 152, 167
- despotic government, 205, 209
- determinate and indeterminate concepts, 206–7
- disgust, 111, 114, 115
- disinterestedness; see interest and disinterestedness
- drives, 148
- Dunham, Barrows, 59, 91, 118
- Dutton, Denis, 98
- the dynamical sublime, 18, 29, 54, 67–9
- fear elicited by, 68, 113
  - free/dependent distinction applied to, 105, 107
  - imagination enlarged and expanded in, 173
  - the moral sublime not subset of, 87
  - practical freedom revealed by, 17, 67–8, 139
  - sublime of mental states not subset of, 94
  - table of objects eliciting aesthetic judgment of, 232
- ecological sensibilities, 141–5; see also nature
- economics, concept of interest in, 147
- education, moral; see moral education
- Émile* (Rousseau), 46
- empirical interests, 148, 154–5
- in beauty, 155–8
  - grounding of sublimity in freedom, possibilities of rejection of, 223–5
  - social aspect of, 157
  - in sublimity, 163–4

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51668-6 - The Kantian Sublime and the Revelation of Freedom

Robert R. Clewis

Index

More information

252

Index

ends

Kant's theory of means and ends, 204–5, 208–14

moral, rational, or prudential: beauty, morally based interest in, 163; disinterestedness as not attempting to achieve, 149; interest as attempt to achieve, 147–8

engagement or interaction

disinterestedness requiring, 150, 167

interest as, 147, 148

spectator, enthusiast's perspective as, 211

enthusiasm, 2

aesthetic; see aesthetic enthusiasm

as affect, 170, 171

defined, 169

fanaticism distinguished, 4, 40, 170–3

for French Revolution/republic; see French Revolution, enthusiasm for

Platonic origins of concept of, 11, 24, 171, 183

practical, 3, 42, 169, 203, 210, 231

environmental sensibilities, 141–5; see also nature

error theory, subreption as, 72

exposition of the sublime, 136–7

false sublimity, Kirwan's view of enthusiasm as,
181–2, 190fanaticism distinguished from enthusiasm, 4, 40, 170–3

fear

dynamical sublime eliciting, 68, 113

moral sublime not eliciting, 87 feelings; see also specific feelings, e.g. moral feeling genuine moral worth, lack of, 179 judgment, relationship to, 58–61

table of characteristics of, 231

Fenves, Peter, 5, 20, 128, 182, 195, 214

first-order interests, 148, 151–4

Fontenelle, Bernard le Bovier de, 130 form/formlessness of that which elicits the sublime, 56, 69–72, 121

Forsey, Jane, 222

four moments of pure/merely reflective aesthetic judgment, 61–4, 170, 174, 176, 184, 194

freedom, 2, 215–19

aesthetic enthusiasm and, 11, 41, 170, 172–3, 179, 196–9

art as well as nature eliciting the sublime, 116–25

dynamical sublime, practical freedom

revealed by, 17, 67–8

French Revolution, enthusiasm for: aesthetic enthusiasm as revelatory of 196; concept of republic and, 205–7

imagination and, 79–83

as independence or self-sufficiency, 46–7, 88 judgment and feeling, relationship between, 61

luxury threatening, 46, 47

mathematical sublime: dependent/free distinction applied to, 100, 107; infinity and, 66; transcendental freedom experienced via, 17, 18

metaphysical, 49

the monstrous and, 109, 116

moral freedom, 48–9

moral sublime, as revealed by, 18

morality and the sublime: presupposition of, 135–9; sublimity supporting morality by encouraging belief in freedom, 139, 215, 226–7

nature vs., 7

political freedom, 47

practical; see practical freedom

pure and free used by Kant as synonyms, 99
reason and, 79–83

in Remarks, 45

and the sublime: dependent/free distinction applied to, 28, 57, 96–108, 154, 191–4;
grounding in freedom, 28, 31, 78, 215, 219–26; morality supported by sublimity by encouraging belief in freedom, 139, 215, 226–7; morally based interest in art and, 117; presupposition of freedom by, 135, 135–9; Remarks, relationship between freedom and
sublimity in, 45, 49–50

subreption and, 78

transcendental; see transcendental freedom

transition problem, 3, 6, 29, 31, 216

virtue, freedom, and aesthetic feeling, 37–9, 49–50

French Revolution, enthusiasm for, 31, 200–1, 218

as aesthetic response bordering on or closely resembling enthusiasm, 214

Burke's lack of, 200

in The Conflict of the Faculties, 173–6, 191, 192, 200 consistency of Kant's position regarding, 201–4, 208–14

critique of Kant's position as inconsistent, 201–4

as dependent sublimity, 192–3

and freedom: aesthetic enthusiasm as revelatory of, 196; concept of republic and, 205–7

intellectual interest in the sublime, 16, 26

Louis XVI, execution of, 115

maxims, 204–5, 206–7, 211–13

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51668-6 - The Kantian Sublime and the Revelation of Freedom

Robert R. Clewis

Index

More informationIndex

253

- means and ends, Kant's theory of, 204–5, 208–14
- moral progress, as sign of, 5, 6, 197, 207, 210–14, 226
- practical judgment in Kant's theory of means and ends, 204, 205, 211–13
- practical vs. aesthetic enthusiasm, 203, 210
- Reign of Terror, 212
- spectator, enthusiast's perspective as, 211
- the sublime, aesthetic enthusiasm as experience of, 2, 20, 26, 30
- success of Revolution, Kant's skepticism regarding, 210
- violence as means, Kant's condemnation of, 208–10
- Gadamer, Hans-Georg, 14
- game theory, concept of interest in, 147
- Gasché, Rodolphe, 28
- Geier, Manfred, 193
- genius, 25, 118, 161
- Goldthwait, John, 35
- government
anarchic state of nature, duty to establish sovereignty in, 209
- despotic government, 205, 209
- Kant's refusal to allow overthrow of, 208–10
- Kant's two forms of, 205
- graven images, Jewish law forbidding, 172–3
- greatness, necessity of enthusiasm for, 194–6
- Grier, Michelle, 28, 57, 72–9
- grotesque the, 27, 28, 35–7, 113
- Guérin, Pierre-Narcisse, 1
- Guyer, Paul
on art and the sublime, 117
- on deduction of the sublime, 137
- on form/formlessness of that which elicits the sublime, 69
- on free/dependent distinction applied to the sublime, 96, 105–7
- on freedom as independence, 46
- on French Revolution, enthusiastic response of spectators of, 214
- on interest and disinterestedness, 28
- on morality and the sublime, 9, 19, 170
- on Observations, 33
- on subreption, 78
- on the ugly, 70–1
- Haller, Albrecht von, 35
- happiness, 81, 138
- health, bodily
affects positively affecting, 176
- the sublime positively affecting, 167
- sublimity in, 223–5
- Heidegger, Martin, 222
- hierarchy of maxims, 211
- Hill, Thomas E., Jr., 210
- historical judgment, 189
- Hobbes, Thomas, 36
- Home, Henry, Lord Kames, 23, 24, 67
- humanity, Kant's concept of, 72, 219–20
- Hume, David, 15, 33, 158
- Hutcheson, Francis, 15, 33, 44
- ideality in judgment of the sublime, 63
- ideas, moral, 117, 197–8, 206–7
- imagination, 79–83, 138, 171, 173, 217
- impartiality, disinterestedness as, 149
- Incorporation Thesis, 204
- independence or self-sufficiency, freedom as, 46–7, 88
- indeterminate and determinate concepts, 206–7
- inequality, luxury leading to, 46
- infinity, 66, 70–1, 121, 132
- interaction or engagement
disinterestedness requiring, 150, 167
- interest as, 147, 148
- spectator, enthusiast's perspective as, 211
- interest and disinterestedness, 28, 30, 146, 167–8, 217
- abstraction or distance, disinterestedness not to be interpreted as, 150
- aesthetic enthusiasm, 11, 175, 187–9
- attempt to achieve rational, moral or prudential end: beauty, morally based interest in, 163; disinterestedness as not attempting, 149; interest as, 147–8, 152
- different senses of disinterestedness in Kant's writings, 149–51
- different senses of interest in Kant's writings, 146–9
- empirical interests; see empirical interests
- first-order and second-order interests, 148, 151–4
- in game theory, sociobiology, and economics, 147
- impartiality, disinterestedness as, 149
- maxims based on interest, 204
- positive or negative, taking an interest as, 148, 152
- pre-Critical account of, 53
- the sublime, intellectual interest in, 16, 26
- universal validity and disinterestedness, 151
- Jewish law forbidding graven images, 172–3
- Johnson, Gregory R., 5
- judgment and feeling, relationship between, 58–61

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51668-6 - The Kantian Sublime and the Revelation of Freedom

Robert R. Clewis

Index

More information

254

Index

- judgment of the sublime
  - disinterestedness of, 61–4, 135
  - four moments of pure/merely reflective
    - aesthetic judgment, 61–4, 170, 174, 176, 184, 194
  - historical judgment, 189
  - ideality in, 63
  - lingering in contemplative pleasure of, 150
  - moral idea as true referent of, 117
  - nature, dependent judgments in, 102
  - necessity in judgment, 61–4, 222
  - purity of aesthetic judgment, Kant's concept of, 98–101, 119
  - singularity of pure aesthetic judgment, 97
  - subjective purposiveness of, 61–4
  - table of objects eliciting, 232
  - universal validity of, 61–4, 135, 151, 174, 222
- judgment, practical, in Kant's theory of means and ends, 204, 205, 211–13
- Kames, Lord [Henry Home], 23, 24, 67
- Kelly, Michael, 150, 151
- Kirwan, James, 59, 98, 181–2, 190, 221
- Kneller, Jane, 152, 155, 214
- Lacan, Jacques, 113
- Lehmann (editor of Kant), 42, 228
- Leibniz, Gottfried, 158
- lingering in contemplative pleasure of aesthetic judgment, 150–1
- Löbenichtsch Tower, Kant's view of, 142
- Longinus, Cassius, 12
- Louden, Robert, 132
- Louis XVI (king of France), 115
- Luther, Martin, 4
- luxury, 46, 47
- Lyotard, Jean-François, 20
- Makkreel, Rudolf, 17, 21, 184
- marginalia in Observations; see Remarks, the mathematical sublime, 17, 29, 55, 64–6
  - freedom: dependent/free distinction, 100, 107; infinity and, 66; transcendental, 17, 18
  - imagination enlarged and expanded in, 173
  - infinity, 66, 70–1, 121, 132
  - lingering in contemplative pleasure of aesthetic judgment, 150
  - Lyotard on, 22
  - the monstrous and, 109
  - the moral sublime not subset of, 87
  - sublime of mental states not subset of, 94
  - table of objects eliciting aesthetic judgment of, 232
  - universally valid (subjective) standard, judgments grounded on, 65
- maxims, 204–5, 206–7, 211–13
- McAdoo, Nick, 98
- means and ends, Kant's theory of, 204–5, 208–14
- Melville, Herman, 108, 109, 110
- Mendelssohn, Moses, 33
- Menninghaus, Winfred, 114
- mental states, the sublime of, 19, 84, 88–96, 169, 184, 232
- Menzer, Paul, 44
- metaphysical freedom, 49
- meteors, as monstrous, 112
- Moby Dick*, or The Whale (Melville), 108, 109, 110
- monarchs and monarchy
  - execution of monarchs, 115
  - universal monarchy, monstrosity of, 113
- the monstrous, 27, 29, 55, 57, 108, 231
- Montaigne, Michel de, 36, 52
- moral ambiguity
  - of aesthetic enthusiasm, 170, 172, 178–83, 214
  - of the sublime, 178
- moral apathy or affectlessness, 92–4, 167, 190
- moral character, fanaticism not requiring improvement of, 172
- moral constraints
  - on aesthetic enthusiasm, 191
  - on the moral sublime, 86, 96
- moral education
  - aesthetic enthusiasm and, 198, 199
  - examples for, 199
  - moral sublime in, 85–6
  - morality and the sublime, 140
- moral feeling
  - aesthetic enthusiasm not an instance of, 187–9
  - of respect; see respect, as moral feeling
- moral freedom, 48–9
- moral ideas, 117, 197–8, 206–7
- moral interest, 148, 151–4
- moral law
  - moral sublime as aesthetic experience of, 84
  - pre-Critical account of, 53
  - respect for, 127–31; see also respect, as moral feeling
- moral, rational, or prudential end
  - beauty, morally based interest in, 163
  - disinterestedness as not attempting to achieve, 149
  - interest as attempt to achieve, 147–8
- moral satisfaction, 131
- the moral sublime, 29, 57, 84–7, 216
  - aesthetic enthusiasm and, 19
  - constraints on, 86, 96
  - defined, 17, 84
  - existence of, 84–7
  - freedom revealed by, 18

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51668-6 - The Kantian Sublime and the Revelation of Freedom

Robert R. Clewis

Index

More information

Index

255

- Kant's examples of, 85–6
 mental states, the sublime of, 19, 84, 88–96, 169, 184, 232
 not subset of mathematical or dynamical
 sublime, 87
 pre-Critical noble sublime and, 55 respect differentiated from, 84–6 scholarly neglect of form of, 27
 significance of, 56
 subreption, likelihood of, 86
 table of objects eliciting aesthetic judgment of, 232
 morality and the sublime, 30, 126–7, 215–19
 aesthetic enthusiasm and, 9, 140, 170, 172–3, 179–81, 196–9
 affects and morality, relationship between, 92
 artwork, 140
 awareness of moral vocation, 140
 the beautiful and, 10, 16, 135 education, moral, 140 freedom: presupposition of, 135–9; sublimity supporting morality by encouraging belief in freedom, 139, 215, 226–7
 French Revolution, enthusiasm for, 5, 6, 197, 207, 210–14, 226
 the grotesque, 35–7
 Guyer on, 10
 interest and disinterestedness, 11, 135, 139
 the monstrous and, 116
 pre-Critical and Critical theory compared, 52–5
 support of morality by the sublime, 139–41
 transition problem, 3, 6, 29, 31, 216
 universal validity, 135
 virtue, freedom, and aesthetic feeling, 37–9, 49–50
 morality, second-order interest in, 148 morally based interests, 154, 154–5; see also
 interest and disinterestedness
 in aesthetic enthusiasm, 165, 169
 in art, 160–2, 166
 in beauty, 155, 158–63
 existence of object not central to, 156
 Kant's use of intellectual and morally based interests as terms, 10
 in sublimity, 164–7
 music, Kant's lack of admiration for, 122
 Myskja, Bjørn K., 62, 192, 193 nature
 aesthetic enthusiasm, natural objects not stimulus of, 182
 anarchic state of, duty to establish government in, 209
 art as well as nature eliciting the sublime, 58, 116–25
 biocentric critique of Kant's view of, 141–2, 144 dependent judgments of the sublime in, 102 duties regarding, 28
 ethical treatment of, 141–5
 fear of, 68
 freedom vs., 7
 luxury contrasted with, 46
 no intrinsic value to nature in Kant's ethics, 141 as a power, 67
 sense of self as in harmony with, 140
 transition problem, 3, 6, 29, 31, 216
 necessity
 of aesthetic enthusiasm, 174
 in judgment of the sublime, 61–4, 222
 of subreption in experience of the sublime, 76–8
 Neiman, Susan, 202, 203, 213
 new forms of the sublime, discovering, 223–5
 the noble sublime, 35, 54, 55
 obligation, 48
Observations, 29, 33–4, 216
 aesthetic enthusiasm in, 39–42
 art and splendid sublime, 122
 Critical theory on morality and the sublime
 compared to, 52–3
 the grotesque in, 27, 28, 35–7, 113
 importance of examining, 27, 32
 Kant's marginal notes in; see Remarks the sublime in, 13, 34–7
 subreption in, 73
 virtue, freedom, and aesthetic feeling in, 37–9
On the Sublime (Peri hypsous), pseudo-Longinus, 12, 124, 234
 P<sub>1</sub> and P<sub>2</sub> (Grier), 72–9 pain; see pleasure/pain passion
 fanaticism as, 171
 in Remarks, 50–2
 patriotism, 36, 41
Peri hypsous (On the Sublime), pseudo-Longinus, 12, 124, 234
 philosophy of economics, concept of interest in, 147
 Plato, origins of concept of enthusiasm in, 11, 24, 171, 183
 pleasure/pain
 disinterestedness as not taking pleasure, 149 interest as pleasure, 146, 147, 148, 151, 154, 156, 167

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51668-6 - The Kantian Sublime and the Revelation of Freedom

Robert R. Clewis

Index

More information

256

Index

- pleasure/pain (cont.)
 lingering in contemplative pleasure of
 aesthetic judgment, 150–1
 of respect, as moral feeling, 128–30, 131, 132
 of the sublime, 35, 62, 132, 135
 in table of characteristics of feelings, 231
 political freedom, 47
 power, 67
 the practical and the aesthetic, relationship between, 54
 practical enthusiasm, 3, 42, 169, 203, 210, 231 practical freedom
 dynamical sublime revealing, 17, 67–8, 139
 moral sublime and, 86
 pre-Critical notion of moral freedom resembling positive practical freedom, 48
 transcendental freedom presupposed by, 6, 49
 practical judgment in Kant's theory of means and ends, 204, 205, 211–13
 pre-Critical Kantian thought, 216; see also Observations; Remarks
 on aesthetic enthusiasm, 39–42, 50–2, 55, 170, 194–6, 218
 on interest and disinterestedness, 53
 on moral law, 53
 on morality and the sublime, 52–5
 noble sublime and moral sublime, 55 practical freedom, pre-Critical notion of moral freedom resembling, 48
 on respect, as moral feeling, 53
 prudential, moral, or rational end
 beauty, morally based interest in, 163
 disinterestedness as not attempting to achieve, 149 interest as attempt to achieve, 147–8 pseudo-Longinus, 12, 124, 234
 purity of aesthetic judgment, Kant's concept of,
 98–101, 119
- Quine, W. V., 14
- Raymaekers, Bart, 11
 realism, transcendental, 75 reason and the sublime, 217
 aesthetic enthusiasm and, 177, 178, 179, 181
 free/dependent judgments of the sublime and idea of reason, 102, 105
 freedom and imagination, 79–83 interest as that through which reason becomes practical, 148
 moral, rational, or prudential end: beauty,
 morally based interest in, 163;
 disinterestedness as not attempting to achieve, 149; interest as attempt to achieve, 147–8, 152
 nature, ratiocentrism of Kant's view of, 141–2
 respect and the sublime, similarities and differences between, 132, 133
 subreption, 73–5
 Reciprocity Thesis, 79
 red, as color of sublimity, 110
 Reign of Terror, 212
 Reiss, H. S., 202
Remarks, 8, 29, 42–5, 216, 228
 aesthetic enthusiasm in, 50–2
 Critical theory on morality and the sublime
 compared to, 53–4
 freedom in, 45
 importance of examining, 27, 32, 43–5
 subreption in, 73
 transition problem in, 7
 treated separately from Observations, 32 republic
 enthusiasm for idea of; see French Revolution, enthusiasm for
 as one of Kant's two forms of government, 205 repulsion, 111, 116
 respect, as moral feeling, 127–31, 217
 aesthetic and moral aspects of the sublime, preserving, 134–5
 aesthetic enthusiasm not replacing, 197
 characteristics of, 231
 defined, 73, 127
 development of capacity for, 133
 general concept of respect vs., 131
 interest and disinterestedness, 127, 131, 133
 moral sublime differentiated from, 84–6 object of, 127, 130–1
 pleasure/pain of, 128–30, 131, 132
 pre-Critical account of, 53
 the sublime compared and contrasted, 131–3
 subreption and, 72, 73, 77, 130, 133
 temporality of, 128
- Riley, Patrick, 202
 Rischmüller, Maria, 228
 Robinson, Jenefer, 61
 Rousseau, Jean-Jacques, 33, 44–5, 46, 54
- Saint Girons, Baldine, 163
 St. Peter's Basilica, Rome, 123, 185
 Sartre, Jean-Paul, 58
 satisfaction, moral, 131
 Saussure, M. de, 67, 124
 Schaper, Eva, 98
 Schilpp, Paul, 44–5
 Schmucker, Joseph, 44

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51668-6 - The Kantian Sublime and the Revelation of Freedom

Robert R. Clewis

Index

More information

Index

257

- Schubert, Friedrich Wilhelm, 42, 228
 Schwaiger, Clemens, 228
 second-order interests, 148, 151–4
 self-interest
   disinterestedness as not pursuing, 149 interest used in sense of, 147, 149
 self-sufficiency or independence, freedom as, 46–7, 88
 sensibility, 80
 sermons, 124
 servitude, 47
 Shell, Susan, 45
 Sidgwick, Henry, 49
 singularity of pure aesthetic judgment, 97
 slavery, 47
 the social sublime, 223–5
 sociobiology, concept of interest in, 147
 Socrates, 24, 50, 183
 spectator, enthusiast's perspective as, 211
 the splendid sublime, 35, 54, 122
 Stoic apathy (moral affectlessness), 92–4 subjective purposiveness of judgment of the sublime, 61–4
 the sublime, 2, 56–8, 215–19
   the absolutely great, defined as, 64, 66 admiration and, 186
   aesthetic enthusiasm as form of, 16, 19, 30, 170, 183–91
   aestheticization of, 134–5
   affect as experience of, 184–6
   art as well as nature eliciting, 58, 116–25, 222–3
   astonishment and, 184–6
   the beautiful distinguished from, 34 characteristics eliciting feeling of, 34
   characteristics of, 231
   deduction of, 136–9
   development of capacity for, 133
   dynamical; see dynamical sublime
   empirical interest in, 163–4
   evolution of concept of, 12
   exposition of, 136–7
   false sublimity, Kirwan's view of enthusiasm as, 181–2, 190
   feeling and judgment, relationship between, 58–61
   form/formlessness of that which elicits, 56, 69–72, 121
   four moments of pure aesthetic judgment, 61–4, 174, 176, 184, 194
   freedom and; see under freedom
   French Revolution, aesthetic enthusiasm for,
     2, 20, 26, 30
   the grotesque, relationship to, 35–7 healthy effects of, 167
   interest and disinterestedness; see interest and disinterestedness
   judgment of; see judgment of the sublime Kant's theory of, 13
   lingering in contemplative pleasure of
     aesthetic judgment, 150–1
   mathematical; see mathematical sublime of mental states, 19, 84, 88–96, 169, 184, 232
   the monstrous related to, 57, 108 moral ambiguity of, 178
   moral idea as true referent of judgment of, 117 moral sublime; see moral sublime morality and; see morality and the sublime moralization of, 134–5
   morally based interest in, 164–7
   nature, duties regarding, 28
   necessary validity of judgment of, 61–4, 222
   new forms of, discovering, 223–5
   noble-sublime, 35, 54, 55
   number and types of, 64
   in Observations, 13, 34–7
   pleasure/pain of, 35, 62, 132, 135
   in pre-Critical Kantian thought; see Observations; Remarks
   as process, 61
   reason; see reason and the sublime respect compared and contrasted with, 131–3 splendid sublime, 35, 54, 122
   subreption of; see subreption
   table of objects eliciting aesthetic judgment
     of, 232
   terrifying sublime, 35, 36, 37, 54
   transcendence, intimate connection to, 2, 56–8, 215–19
   transition problem, 3, 6, 29, 31, 216
   universal validity of judgment of, 61–4, 135, 151, 174, 222
   virtue, freedom, and aesthetic feeling, 37–9, 49–50
 subreption, 72–9
   aesthetic enthusiasm as dependent sublimity, 193 art, sublimity elicited by, 120, 223
   defined, 74
   distinguishing grounding of sublimity in freedom from, 219–20
   free/dependent distinction and, 107 judgment and feeling, relationship between, 60
   the moral sublime and likelihood of, 86
   nature, sense of self as in harmony with, 140
   respect for persons as, 72, 73, 77, 130, 133
   transcendental illusion and, 28, 57, 72–9 suicide of Cato, 1, 41, 51–2 sympathy and enthusiasm, 5

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-51668-6 - The Kantian Sublime and the Revelation of Freedom

Robert R. Clewis

Index

More information

258

Index

- temporality of respect, as moral feeling, 128
- the terrifying sublime, 35, 36, 37, 54
- terrorism, Kantian approach to, 210
- tragedies, 124
- transcendence and the sublime, intimate
  - connection between, 222
- transcendental exposition, 136
- transcendental freedom
  - aesthetic enthusiasm and, 196
  - defined, 6, 17
  - in mathematical sublime, 17, 18
  - practical freedom and, 49, 17
  - timelessness implied by, 18
- transcendental illusion, doctrine of, 28, 57, 72–9
- transcendental realism, 75
- transition problem, 3, 6, 29, 31, 216
- the ugly, 72–9
- universal monarchy, monstrosity of, 113
- universal validity of judgment of the sublime,
  - 61–4, 135, 151, 174, 222
- universalizability test, categorical imperative as,
  - 208–9
- violence as means, Kant's condemnation of,
  - 208–10
- Virgil, 52
- virtue
  - adoptive virtues, 38–9
  - freedom, and aesthetic feeling, relationship
    - to, 37–9, 49–50
  - moral apathy or affectlessness required for, 94
- von Haller, Albrecht, 35
- vorgiebt*, Kant's use of, 194, 196
- Wahnsinn* (delusion of sense), enthusiasm
  - compared to, 171, 178
- Wahnwitz* (delusion of mind or loss of wits),
  - fanaticism compared to, 171
- war, Kant's praise of, 86
- Wasianski, E. A. Christian, 142
- whiteness, 109, 110
- Williams, Howard, 36, 202, 209, 214
- Wittgenstein, Ludwig, 21
- Wood, Allen, 128
- Žižek, Slavoj, 113