

Contents

List of illustrations	page vii
Preface	ix
Acknowledgments	xv
1 Edmund Leach (1910–1989): achievements	1
2 Childhood and youth	6
3 Apprenticeship and the Second World War	30
4 The anthropologist at work: teacher and theorist	47
5 The Political Systems of Highland Burma	82
6 The Frontiers of “Burma”	122
7 Pul Eliya : the challenge to descent group theory	149
8 Hydraulic Society in Ceylon : contesting Wittfogel’s thesis and Sri Lankan mytho-history	210
9 The engagement with structuralism	235
10 The comparativist stance: us and them and the translation of cultures	259
11 The structural analysis of biblical narratives	290
12 Anthropology of art and architecture	318
13 Individuals, social persons, and masquerade	348
14 Leach and Lévi-Strauss: similarities and differences	361
15 A Runaway World?	380

vi	Contents
16	British anthropology and colonialism: challenge and response	405
17	Retrospective assessment and rethinking anthropology	429
18	The work of sustaining institutions: Provost of King's College (1966–1979)	456
19	Retirement, retrospection, and final illness	471
	Bibliography	490
	Index	505