

Contents

List of contributors	page ix
Acknowledgments	xi
1. Introduction: problems and methods in the study of politics IAN SHAPIRO, ROGERS M. SMITH, AND TAREK E. MASOUD	1
Part I. Description, explanation, and agency
2. Problems, methods, and theories in the study of politics, or: what’s wrong with political science and what to do about it IAN SHAPIRO	19
3. The politics of identities and the tasks of political science ROGERS M. SMITH	42
4. Political science as a vocation ANNE NORTON	67
5. The politics of policy science FRANCES FOX PIVEN	83
6. The study of black politics and the practice of black politics: their historical relation and evolution ADOLPH REED, JR.	106
7. External and internal explanation JOHN FEREJOHN	144
	vii

viii Contents

Part II. Redeeming rational choice theory?

8. Lies, damned lies, and rational choice analyses	167
GARY W. COX
9. Problems and methods in political science: rational explanation and its limits	186
ALAN RYAN
10. An analytic narrative approach to puzzles and problems	201
MARGARET LEVI
11. The methodical study of politics	227
BRUCE BUENO DE MESQUITA

Part III. Possibilities for pluralism and convergence

12. The illusion of learning from observational research	251
ALAN S. GERBER, DONALD P. GREEN, AND EDWARD H. KAPLAN
13. Concepts and commitments in the study of democracy	274
LISA WEDEEN
14. Problems chasing methods or methods chasing problems? Research communities, constrained pluralism, and the role of eclecticism	307
RUDRA SIL
15. Method, problem, faith	332
WILLIAM E. CONNOLLY
16. Provisionalism in the study of politics	350
ELISABETH ELLIS
17. What have we learned?	377
ROBERT A. DAHL, TRUMAN F. BEWLEY, SUSANNE HOEBER RUDOLPH, AND JOHN MEARSHEIMER
Index	395