

Index

- Abelard, Peter, 18, 208
- Academic scepticism, 208; Cicero as major source, 16, 204, 207, 208; see also Cicero; Pyrrhonism; scepticism
- active life: vs contemplative life, 22–23, 28, 65, 77
- Aesticampianus, Johannes, 142
- Agricola, Rudolf: admired by Celtis, 117; biography of Petrarch, 111; education and career, 110–11; On Dialectical Invention, 110, 111, 216
- Agrippa von Nettesheim, Heinrich Cornelius, 219; sceptical ideas in Vanity, 209–11, 218; translated into English and French, 210
- Alberti, Leon Battista, 69, 72, 75, 76, 181; both humanist and artist, 90–91; describes rules of linear perspective, 90; writes On the Family, 64–65
- Alcalá, University of, 131, 164, 165, 187; its trilingual college, 143
- Alciati, Andrea, 176
- Alexander of Villedieu, 45, 112; scorns literary curriculum, 46; see also Doctrinale
- Alfonso, king of Naples, 40, 65
- Alighieri, Dante, see Dante
- Altdorfer, Albrecht, 188
- Andrelini, Fausto, 156, 157
- Antal, Friedrich, 73
- Antiquity, classical, 1, 5, 9–11, 20, 21; humanists' difficulty in viewing it critically, 173–74, 222–23; idealized by humanists, 22, 152; loss of faith in, 205–06, 217–18, 221–22; medieval dependence on, 16–17, 21; see also classical texts
- Antonino, archbishop of Florence, 66
- Aquinas, Thomas, Saint, 15, 17, 18, 204; critics of his rationalism, 205, 208; revival of influence, 214–15
- Argyropoulos, Johannes, 67, 70
- Ariosto, Ludovico, 182
- Aristotle, 16, 18, 20, 23, 24, 62, 66, 67, 68, 70, 123, 198, 204, 213, 217, 218; attacked by anti-rationalists, 208, 211–15; attacked by Bruno, 212; attacked by Cardano, 214; attacked by Fracastoro, 213; attacked by humanist reformers and Protestants, 214; attacked by Italian 'philosophers of nature', 211–13; attacked by Luther, 141, 143, 213; attacked by Paracelsus, 213; attacked by Ramus, 216–17; attacked by Sanches, 211; criticized by Agricola, 111; diminished role in Wittenberg curriculum, 142–44; dominates university teaching till seventeenth century, 3, 9, 201, 206; first edition in Greek, 123; humanistic translations, 33, 108, 121, 135, 138, 205; Melanchthon restores teaching of his books at Wittenberg, 213; and modern philosophy, 215; moral doctrines inferior to Cicero, 23; new science demolishes authority, 201; Poetics influences late Renaissance, 202; pseudo-Aristotelian works, 38
- ars dictaminis*, 5, 49
- artists, social status of, 97, 101
- Ascham, Roger, 192, 196
- 'Athenians', Hellenists at Cambridge, 195–96
- Auberinus, Caius, 125–26, 129
- Augustine, Saint, 20, 23, 66, 67, 207, 208
- Aurispa, Giovanni, 37
- Avicenna, 67
- Bacon, Sir Francis, 217, 221–22
- Bade, Josse, 120, 155, 161
- Baer, Ludwig, 166
- Barbaro, Ermolao, 43, 74, 122, 174
- Barbaro, Francesco, 64
- Baron, Hans, vii, 14, 30; criticisms of, 32–33
- Barzizza, Gasparino, 120

- Basle, 136; Erasmus' early visits, 163; Erasmus settles there, 166–67; Peter Luder settles there, 109
- Beatus Rhenanus (Beát Bild von Rheinau), 114
- Beaufort, Henry, Cardinal, 108
- Beaufort, Lady Margaret, 126, 127, 195
- Bebel, Heinrich, 134
- Béda, Noël, 121, 166, 170
- Bekynton, Thomas, 108
- Bellay, Joachim du: see du Bellay, Joachim
- Bellini, Giovanni, 93
- Bembo, Pietro, 182
- Bergen, Hendrik van, bishop of Cambrai, 155, 156
- Bernard of Clairvaux, 223; critic of scholastic rationalism, 208
- Bernini, Gianlorenzo, 95
- Beroaldo, Filippo, 103
- Bessarion, Joannes, Cardinal, 67
- Black, Robert, 52–3
- Blount, William, Lord Mountjoy, 156
- Boccaccio, Giovanni, 5, 27, 32, 76, 181, 183; promotes Petrarch's fame, 26
- Bodin, Jean, 177
- Boiardo, Matteo, 182
- Bologna, University of, 5, 102, 110
- Boscán, Juan, 186
- Botticelli, Sandro, 95
- Bouwsma, William J., vii
- Bracciolini, Poggio, 11, 77, 78; discovers classical manuscripts, 37; in England, 108
- Bramante, Donato, 96, 101
- Brant, Sebastian, 124, 209
- Brassicanus, Johannes, 138
- Brethren / Sisters of the Common Life, 104–05, 106
- Briçonnet, Guillaume, bishop of Meaux, 153
- Bruegel, Pieter, the Elder, 191
- Brués, Guy de, 218
- Brunelleschi, Filippo, 83–85, 88, 90, 92
- Bruni, Leonardo, of Arezzo, 66, 67, 69, 75, 77, 107; Cartagena attacks his translation of Aristotle, 108, 135; 'civic' humanism, 32–33; criticizes imperial myth, 32; republican ideology, 31–33; transforms humanism, 34; translator from Greek, 37
- Bruno, Giordano, 211–13, 221
- Bucer, Martin, 144, 169, 173, 195
- Budé, Guillaume, 43, 152, 165; and French critical tradition, 174; and Roman law, 175–76; secular nature of publications, 151
- Buonarroti, Michelangelo: see Michelangelo
- Burckhardt, Jakob, ix, 1, 2–4, 5, 21, 30; on Renaissance festivals, 197–98
- Busche, Hermann von dem, 114, 136, 137; share in Letters of Obscure Men, 149
- Cabala/Cabalism: as ancient wisdom, 70, 74, 75, 148, 211, 217, 218; in Ficino, 70; in Giovanni Pico, 74; in Reuchlin, 116
- Calvin, John, 154, 173, 183, 214
- Cambridge, University of: centre of early 'Erasmian' Protestantism, 195; Erasmus teaches at, 162; growth of collegiate teaching, 126–29, 192; rise in social status of students, 130; role of humanist teachers, 106, 125–29
- Campanella, Tommaso, 211–12, 221
- Capito, Wolfgang Fabricius, 167, 169, 162, 172
- Cardano, Girolamo, 214
- Cartagena, Alonso de, 130; criticizes Bruni's translation of Aristotle, 108, 135
- Casaubon, Isaac, 43, 222; demonstrates inauthenticity of Hermetic writings, 175; and 'French school' of critics, 175
- Castellesi, Adriano da Corneto, Cardinal, 208
- Castiglione, Baldassare, 36; and courtly humanism, 73, 182, 192; on Platonic love, 181
- Catherine of Aragon, queen of England, 194
- Cato, Marcus Porcius (Censor), 23
- Cecil, William, 196
- Celtis, Conrad, 117–18, 135–36; founds humanist sodalities in German cities, 117–18; heads humanistic college at Vienna, 118; inaugural lecture at Ingolstadt, 117; non-religious character, 150
- Cervantes (Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra), 187
- Chalcondyles, Demetrius, 123
- Charles IV, Holy Roman Emperor, king of Bohemia, 107
- Charles V, Holy Roman Emperor, king of Spain, 131, 163, 168
- Charles V, king of France, 107
- Charles VIII, king of France, 118
- Charron, Pierre, 221
- Cheke, John, 195–96
- Chrysoloras, Manuel, 27, 37, 67
- Cicero (Marcus Tullius Cicero), 18, 20–22, 23, 26, 30, 31, 33, 34, 44, 46, 47, 49, 50, 52, 53, 60, 62, 66, 67, 108, 111, 115,

244 Index

- Cicero (Marcus Tullius Cicero) (cont.)
119, 121, 159, 198, 218, 223; becomes ideal model for Latin prose style, 50, 51, 52; exemplifies Roman humanistic education, 12–13, 15, 201; Petrarch judges moral doctrine superior to Aristotle's, 23; source for Academic scepticism, 15–16, 204, 207–08, 220; and Stoic philosophy, 204, 206
- Cimabue, Giovanni, 81
- Cisneros: see Ximenes de Cisneros
- classical texts, 16; application of philological criticism, 202; changing standards of Latin style, 48–50; decreased use in thirteenth-century schools, 46–47; effect of printing, 61; gradual restoration to schoolrooms, 47–48; loss of authority in late Renaissance, 222–23; rediscovery of, 10–11, 22, 26, 36–38; Renaissance approach to, 17–19, 20, 173–75; vernacular translations of, 198–99; see also Antiquity; humanism
- Colet, John, 122–23, 124; hostile to pagan classical literature, 151; relations with Erasmus, 157, 161–62
- Collège Royal (Royal Readers; Collège de France), 178; Ramus lectures at, 217
- Colonna, Vittoria, 59
- Complutensian Polyglot Bible, 131, 164, 186
- Constantinople: ruled by Latins, 10
- Contarini, Gasparo, Cardinal, 173
- Copernicus, Nicolaus, 212
- Cousturier, Pierre (Petrus Sutor), 166
- Cranach, Lucas (the Elder), 188
- Cranmer, Thomas, archbishop of Canterbury, 193
- Cromwell, Thomas, 125, 193–94
- Crotus Rubianus (Johannes Jäger), 140, 149
- Dalberg, Johann von, 111
- Dante (Dante Alighieri), 55, 77, 80, 81, 108, 182; praised by Bruni as ideal man, 32; and medieval culture, 7, 8
- Dati, Agostino, 49–50
- della Robbia, Luca, 90
- Descartes, René, 4, 204, 217, 221
- Devotio Moderna*: see Modern Devotion
- dictamen*: see ars dictaminis
- Dionysius the Areopagite (pseudo-), 67, 70, 73, 222; Erasmus suspects authenticity, 175; Ficino makes new translation, 69; Grocyn questions authenticity, 123; influence on Lefèvre d'Étaples, 122, 152; Scaliger establishes true date, 175; source of ancient wisdom, 211; Valla suspects authenticity, 175
- Disticha Catonis*, 47
- Doctrinale*, medieval grammar book, 45, 46, 105, 112–13, 121, 134, 137, 138; persists in use through sixteenth century, 46, 48, 50; see also Villedieu, Alexander of
- Dominici, Giovanni, 29
- Donado*: see Ianua
- Donatello, 83, 84, 88, 90, 92, 96; creator of Quattrocento sculptural style, 85; expert on ancient sculpture, 91
- Donation of Constantine, forgery of, exposed by Valla, 40–41, 194
- Donatus, manual of grammar, 45, 48, 121, 136, 138
- Dorat, Jean, 174
- Dorp, Martin van, 165
- Dringenberg, Ludwig, 114
- du Bellay, Joachim, 184
- du Cange, Charles, 178
- Dürer, Albrecht, 168, 188
- Eck, Johannes, 140
- education: affected by invention of printing, 61–62; fostered by Luther, 179; humanistic reforms evaluated, 52, 200–01; humanistic reforms in northern Europe, 54; humanistic 'revolution', in Italy, 47–48, 52–54; medieval, in Italy, 44–45; role of schools in diffusing humanism, 105–06, 107, 113–14, 179–81; social utility of humanistic studies, 14–16; of women, 55–56; see also schools; universities
- Edward IV, king of England, 109
- Edward VI, king of England, 195, 196
- Elizabeth I, queen of England, 196
- Elyot, Sir John, 192
- Epicurus/Epicurean philosophy, 69, 206, 212, 213
- Erasmus, Desiderius, 21, 43, 119, 120, 124, 125, 139, 144, 148, 153, 179, 192, 204, 205, 222, 223; alleged dependence on Colet, 157, 161; attacked by Noël Bêda, 121, 170; biblical scholarship attacked, 165–66; books placed on Index, 171; and comma Johanneum, 63; connections in England, 156–57, 161–62, 193–96; criticized by Lefèvre d'Étaples, 165; disapproved by Loyola, 180; early life and education, 155–61; edits St Jerome, 162, 164; efforts to heal religious schism, 173; exploits power of the press, 154–55; Henrician reformers translate works,

- 193–95; programme of humanistic religious reform (philosophia Christi), 152, 154, 157, 158–67, 163–64, 167, 172; influence in Spain, 186–87; influences Alciati's legal humanism, 176; influences Dürer, 168, 188; influences English Reformation, 193–95; and Protestant Reformation, 167–69; publishes Valla's Annotations on the New Testament, 42, 160–61; pupil of Hegius, 105, 114; questions authenticity of pseudo-Dionysius, 175; relations with Luther, 167–70; revered by younger German humanists, 139, 162, 164; scholarly heir of Valla and Poliziano, 174, 201; settles in Basle, 166–67; settles in Louvain, 166; teaches at Cambridge, 162; uses sceptical and rhetorical arguments against Luther, 208–09, 216; visits Italy, 157–58; see also humanism, Christian
- Erasmus, major works of: Adages, 156, 157–58; Book Against the Barbarians, 155; Colloquies, 160, 173; edition of Greek New Testament, 161, 164–65; Handbook of a Christian Knight (Enchiridion), 159–60, 163, 188; Praise of Folly, 160, 162, 163, 173, 209–10
- Erfurt, University of, 110, 117, 136, 148; decline after 1521, 140; inaugural lecture of Peter Luder, 109; successes of humanist reformers, 138–40
- Estienne, Henri, 174–75, 207
- Estienne, Robert, 174
- evangelicals, French, 154
- Eyb, Albrecht von, 110
- Eyck, Jan van: see van Eyck, Jan
- family life, humanistic treatises on, 64–65
- Fedele, Cassandra, 57–58
- Ferdinand I, king of Spain, 131
- Ferguson, Wallace K., vii
- Ferrara: Este court patronizes Renaissance culture, 35, 182; school / university as centre for humanistic learning, 108–09, 117, 123
- Ferrara–Florence, Council of, 37, 67
- Fichet, Guillaume, 119–20
- Ficino, Marsilio, 21, 35, 74, 75, 95, 204, 205, 208, 212; attacks Aristotelian materialism and rationalism, 68, 70; doctrines attractive to Florentine elite, 73; education as Platonist, 68; on human nature, 69, 72; immortality in his philosophy, 68, 70; influence on Celtis, 117; influence on Colet, 123; influence on Italian 'philosophers of nature', 211–12; influence on Lefèvre d'Étaples, 122; influence on Reuchlin, 116; occultist interests, 70, 71–73, 217; philosopher, not humanist, 69, 205; philosophy minimizes need for grace, 73; on Platonic love, 69, 181; translates Plato, Hermes, and Neoplatonists, 68–69; uncritical towards sources, 175; vernacular translation of Plato's Symposium, 181; see also Plato/Platonism/Platonists (Neoplatonism/Neoplatonists)
- Filelfo, Francesco, 37
- Fisher, John, bishop of Rochester, 126, 129, 162, 163, 192, 195, 196
- Flemmyng, Robert, 108
- Florence, 123, 191; and birth of Renaissance art, 83; centre of early humanism, 26–27, 60; cultural hegemony in Quattrocento, 25–28; cultural change in Medicean period, 66, 69, 73–74; culturally backward in Middle Ages, 6; republican ideology did not imply democracy, 33–34; Rome replaces as cultural centre, 60, 95; social matrix for humanism, 13–14
- Fracastoro, Girolamo, 213
- Francis I, king of France, 153, 178, 183, 191, 216
- Frederick III, emperor, 117
- Frederick (the Wise), elector of Saxony, 142, 168
- Free, John, 108
- Freiburg-im-Breisgau, 167
- Froben, Johann, 155, 163, 164; Froben press, 167
- Frulovisi, Tito Livio, 108
- Gaguin, Robert, 120, 122, 156, 157; not a religious reformer, 151
- Galen, 213
- Galilei, Galileo, 4, 215
- Gardiner, Stephen, bishop of Winchester, 194–96
- Garin, Eugenio, 76
- Gellius, Aulus, 12
- Geneva Academy, 173
- Gentile da Fabriano, 83
- George, duke of Saxony, 136, 137
- Ghiberti, Lorenzo, 83, 85, 90, 91–92; describes linear perspective, 85
- Gilmore, Myron P., 3
- Giorgione, 96
- Giotto di Bondone, 80–82, 88
- Góngora (Luis de Góngora y Argote), 187

246 Index

- Gothic art: in late medieval Italy, 81–83; in northern Europe, 188, 191
- Gournay, Marie de, 59
- Grammar (Latin), manuals: see Doctrinale; Donatus; Ianua (Donado); Perotti
- Gratius, Ortwin, 114, 136, 149
- Greek language, 114, 123, 124, 127, 132, 174–75, 178, 180, 205; Cambridge controversy over pronunciation, 195–96; crucial role in humanist educational reforms, 37–38; introduced at Florence by Chrysoloras, 27; mastered by Valla, 42; mastered by Poliziano, 43; mastered by Erasmus, 157–58; mastered by Budé, 152; salaried professorship at Erfurt, 139; salaried professorship at Wittenberg, 142
- Gregory VII, pope, 223
- Grendler, Paul F., 53
- Grey, William, bishop of Ely, 108
- Grindal, William, archbishop of Canterbury, 196
- Grocyn, William, 123, 124, 157
- Groote, Geert, 104
- Gropper, Johannes, 173
- Grünewald, Matthias, 188
- Guarini, Battista, 110
- Guarini, Guarino, of Verona, 37, 53, 57, 91, 108, 109
- Gunthorpe, John, 109
- Haneron, Antonius, 111–12
- Haskins, Charles Homer, 3
- Hauser, Arnold, 73
- Hay, Denys, 3
- Hebrew studies, 74, 116; salaried chair at Wittenberg, 142
- Hegius, Alexander, 105–06, 114, 134, 155
- Henry, king of Navarre (Henry IV, king of France), 219
- Henry II, king of France, 191
- Henry V, king of England, 108
- Henry VI, king of England, 108, 109, 127
- Henry VII, king of England, 109, 126, 192
- Henry VIII, king of England, 123, 125, 157, 161, 162, 191, 192, 193, 194–95, 196
- Hermes Trismegistus/Hermetic literature, 70–71, 74, 222; Bruno regards as divine revelation, 212; influence on Lefèvre d'Étaples, 122; influence on Reuchlin, 116; intellectual shoddiness, 218; proved inauthentic by Casaubon, 175; source of ancient wisdom, 68, 70, 211, 217; translated by Ficino, 68
- Herrera, Fernando de, 186
- Hochstraten, Jakob von, 146, 147–48
- Hofmann, Crato, 114
- Holbein, Hans (the Younger), 191
- Hotman, François, 176, 177
- Howard, Henry, earl of Surrey, 184
- human nature: according to Quattrocento humanists, 65–66; in Ficino's philosophy, 69, 72; in Giovanni Pico's philosophy, 69, 75–76; influence of moral philosophy, 204; Machiavelli's pessimistic view, 75
- humanism/humanistic studies, ix, 1, 7, 102–03; and active life, 64–65, 69; adapted to despotism, 35–36, 191–92; and church reform, 150–51; 'civic' humanism, 14, 30–34, 67, 69, 77–80; conflict with scholasticism, 20, 62–63, 201–02, 205–06; as culture of elite groups, 27, 30, 34–35, 36, 42, 53–54, 60, 180–81, 196–97, 200, 202–03; definition, ix, 1–2, 8–13, 221; diffused by schools and universities, 108, 125–31, 145; distinct intellectual method, 17–20, 38–43, 62–63, 173–78, 201, 218, 222–23; as educational programme, 12–13, 16, 132–35, 172–73, 197; in England, 123–30, 192–95; failure in late Renaissance, 201, 205–06, 217–18; in France, 118–22; in French and Spanish municipal schools, 178–80; generational differences among humanists, 133; in Germany, 107, 109–18, 132–35, 138–44, 145; historical consciousness of, 19–21, 32; on human nature, 16, 64–66, 69, 72, 75–76, 204; as intellectual solvent, 205–06, 217–19, 222; Italy as major source, 104, 106; in Jesuit education, 144, 180; as lay culture, 64–65; and legal education, 175–76; limited scope of, 8–9, 12–13, 201; medieval studies, contribution to, 176–78; misconstrued as a philosophy, 2–4, 8–9, 12, 20–21, 204–05, 221; and moral philosophy, 15–16, 51–52, 201, 204; and neoclassical literary aesthetic, 184, 202; opposition to, in Florence, 29–30; opposition to, in German universities, 135–38; and origin of classical philology, 39–41, 174–75, 178, 202; permeates European high culture, 202–03; philosophical implications of, 13, 14–16, 20–21, 201, 204–05; and printing, 60–62; and Protestant Reformation, 115, 118, 169, 170–71, 193–95; as qualification for public office, 129–31; relation to 'liberal arts', 8; relation to Renaissance art,

- 91–92; and religion, 1–2, 63–64, 150; republicanism, affinity to, 13, 14, 25–26, 32–34, 66–67, 191, 202–03; and Reuchlin affair, 147–50; rhetoric, connection to, 15, 216; social criticism in, 202–03, 223; sodalities in Germany, 118, 145; in Spain, 131, 186–87; textual naiveté of early humanists, 38–39, 42; transformed but not destroyed by Protestant Reformation, 163, 171, 202; and university reform, 132–33; use of press in controversies, 133, 145–50; usefulness to society, 13, 14–15, 16, 17, 197–99; and vernacular cultures, 76–77, 181–87, 197–99; see also humanism, Christian; studia humanitatis
- humanism, biblical: see humanism, Christian
- humanism, Christian: blamed for Protestant Reformation, 169–70; concept of reform in Erasmus, 154, 159–61, 163–64, 167; concept of reform in Lefèvre, 152–53; condemned by conservative Catholics, 171; devastated by Reformation, 169–70; divisions caused by Reformation, 172; invented by Lefèvre and Erasmus, 151–70; young Erasmians become leaders of Reformation, 169
- Hume, David, 204, 210
- Humphrey, duke of Gloucester, 108
- Hutten, Ulrich von, 154, 194; involved in Letters of Obscure Men, 149; publishes Valla's Donation of Constantine, 41
- Ianua (Donado)*, manual of grammar, 45, 47
- Index of Forbidden Books*, 171, 173
- Innocent III, Pope, 65
- International Gothic style, 82–83, 88
- Isabella, queen of Spain, 131; invites Cassandra Fedele to court, 58
- Italy: culture dominated by laymen, 4–5; effects of French and Spanish invasions, 78–80, 95–96, 101, 118; links to northern European society, 102; main source of northern humanism, 104, 106–07; medieval cultural backwater, 11, 17
- Jerome, Saint, 152, 159, 162, 164, 208
- Jesuit order (Society of Jesus): educational activities, 144, 179–80, 221
- Jimenez de Cisneros: see Ximenes de Cisneros
- Jonas, Jodocus, 139
- Jonson, Ben, 185
- Jouenneaux, Guy, 120
- Julius II, Pope, 95, 97, 161
- Kant, Immanuel, 204
- Key, Thomas, 195
- Kristeller, Paul Oskar, vii, 9, 12, 205
- Labé, Louise, 59
- Lachmann, Karl, 174
- Lactantius, 61, 66
- Landino, Cristoforo, 74, 77, 181
- Lasco, John, à, 195
- Latimer, William, 123–24
- Latini, Brunetto, 7, 8
- Latomus, Jacobus (Jacques Masson), 165
- law, Roman, humanistic reform of (mos gallicus), 175–76
- lawyers and early humanistic culture, 5, 6, 13
- Lazarillo de Tormes* (anonymous novel), 186
- Lee, Edward, 165
- Lefèvre d'Étaples, Jacques, 140, 161, 170, 179, 183; attacked by Bêda, 121; criticizes Erasmus, 165; early career, 121–22; lacks critical acumen, 175; and reform of Aristotelian philosophy, 121–22, 152; and reform of diocese of Meaux, 153; and religious reform, 152–54; turns to biblical and patristic studies, 122, 152
- Leo X, Pope, 148, 167, 168; accepts dedication of Erasmus' New Testament, 164
- León, Luís de, 186
- Leonardo da Vinci, 81, 96–97, 101
- Lescot, Pierre, 191
- letrados*, role of, in Spanish administration, 130–31
- Letters of Obscure Men*, 149–50
- Lily, William, 123–24
- Limbourg brothers, 88
- Linacre, Thomas, 123, 124, 151, 157
- Lippi, Fra Filippo, 92, 93
- Lipsius, Justus, 200, 206
- Locher, Jakob, 115
- logic: Agricola displaces old textbooks, 216; central role of, in universities, 112–13, 138–39; domination over theology criticized, 201–02; humanists criticize dominance in university curriculum, 132–34; rhetoric as rival to, 216; search for new logic, 215–17
- Lombard: see Peter Lombard
- López Zúñiga, Diego (Jacobus Stunica), 165

248 Index

- Loschi, Antonio, 35
 Louvain university of, 110, 111, 139, 148, 150, 165; Erasmus matriculates in faculty of theology, 159, 166; founding of trilingual college, 143
 Lovati, Lovato dei, 6, 21, 22
 Loyola, Ignatius de, 64, 180
 Lucian: translated by More and Erasmus,
 124, 159; translated by Rabelais, 183
 Lucretius, 212, 213
 Luder, Peter, 109–10, 133, 135, 143, 150; aims to restore ‘good letters’, 109
 Lull, Ramón, 122
 Luther, Martin, 139, 148, 150, 158, 160, 166, 172, 179, 207; discovers revolutionary power of press, 145–46; early reform proposals interpreted as Erasmian, 139, 167; Erasmus’ sceptical arguments against, 209, 216; hostility to Aristotle, 213; influence on Dürer,
 168–69, 188; initially endorsed by Christian humanists, 154, 167–69; leads reforms at Wittenberg, 140–44;
 promotes education for all children, 179;
 relation to humanism, 141, 142; relations with Erasmus, 167–70; repudiates scholasticism, 141, 144; Thomas More writes against, 125; uses books of Lefèvre d’Etaples and Erasmus, 141, 152

 Mabillon, Jean, 178
 McConica, James, 194
 Machiavelli, Niccolò, 75, 223; active political career, 78–79; as civic humanist, 34, 78–80; draws radical conclusions from classics, 202–03; moral doctrines, 79–80; prefers ‘balanced’ republican government, 79; rationality and chance in politics, 80; relations with political reformer Soderini, 78–79
 magic: in Campanella and Bruno, 211–12;
 in Ficino, 71–73; role of demons in,
 71–72; see also occultism
 Maneken, Carl (Carolus Virulus), 111
 Manetti, Giannozzo, 30, 69, 75, 77; on human nature, 65–66, 72
 Mannerism, 96, 101
 Mantegna, Andrea, 92–93, 188
 Manutius, Aldus (Aldo Manuzio), 125,
 155, 157–58
 Marguerite, duchess of Angoulême, 153,
 183; as author and patron of humanists,
 59
 Marlowe, Christopher, 184
 Marot, Clément, 183
 Marshall, William, 194

 Marsili, Luigi, 26
 Martin, Alfred von, 73
 Mary I, queen of England (Mary Tudor),
 195, 196
 Masaccio, 88, 90, 91, 92, 93, 188
 Masson, Jacques, see Latomus, Jacobus
 Maximilian I, Holy Roman Emperor, 117,
 135, 147; founds humanistic college at Vienna, 118
 Mayerne-Turquet, Louis de, 210
 Medici, Cosimo de’, 66, 91–92; interest in reviving Platonism, 68
 Medici, Florentine family, 33–34, 35, 66,
 68, 73, 78; restored to power, 96; abolish republican constitution and take ducal title, 96
 Medici, Lorenzo de’, 74, 77, 78, 92, 95;
 patron of humanism, 43; vernacular poetry, 77, 181–82
 Medici, Piero de’, 34
 Melancthon, Philip, 169, 173, 195; leads Protestant educational reforms, 142–44,
 173; restores teaching of Aristotle at Wittenberg, 213
 Mena, Juan de, 107–08, 130
 Michelangelo (Michelangelo Buonarroti),
 81, 96, 97–101; vernacular poetry, 182
 Middle Ages/medieval age, 1–3, 19–20,
 118, 181, 198; lack of historical sense,
 41, 167; and origins of French law,
 176–77; scorned by Petrarch, 21
 Milton, John, 184, 200, 202–03
 Modern Devotion (Devotio Moderna), 104, 208; alleged role in education, 104–06
modistae (speculative grammarians), 114,
 134
 Mommsen, Theodor E., vii
 Montaigne, Michel de, 223; accepts Marie de Gournay as literary executor, 59; as neo-Stoic, 206; as sceptical philosopher, 210, 219–21; uses Sextus Empiricus’
 sceptical tropes, 221
 Montaigu, Collège de, 119, 121, 156
 Montemayor, Jorge de, 185, 187
 Montfaucon, Bernard de, 178
 Montreuil, Jean de, 107
 moral philosophy, linked to humanism, 15,
 51–52, 132, 201
 More, Sir Thomas, 122, 124–25, 157, 192,
 196; secular nature of humanist works,
 151; translates Gianfrancesco Pico’s life of Giovanni Pico, 124
 Moryson, Richard, 194
 Mosellanus, Petrus: see Petrus Mosellanus
 Münster, humanistic school at, 114, 137
 Mussato, Albertino, 6, 21

- Mutianus Rufus (Konrad Mut), 114, 138, 148; never an active reformer, 154
- Nanni di Banco, 85
- Nebrija, Antonio de, 130–31, 187
- Neoplatonism/Neoplatonists: see Plato/Platonism/Platonists
- Neumarkt, Johannes von, 107
- Newton, Sir Isaac, 221
- Niccoli, Niccolò de', 30, 32, 66, 91, 107; and search for classical texts, 36–37
- Nicholas of Cusa, Cardinal, 194, 204, 209
- Nicholas V, Pope, 38, 60, 95
- Nogarola, Ginevra: educational career ends upon marriage, 56–57
- Nogarola, Isotta: adopts pious and reclusive lifestyle, 57; falsely accused of moral turpitude, 57; famous humanist belittles her efforts, 57; gains classical education, 57
- notaries: professional identity of Salutati, 26–27; role of, in early humanism, 5, 6, 13
- occultism: in Ficino, 71–73; in Giovanni Pico, 74–75; in Reuchlin, 116–17; reflects intellectual confusion of age, 217–18; see also magic
- Ockham, William of, 205, 218
- Oecolampadius, Johannes, 169, 195
- Oresme, Nicolas, 107
- Orpheus: in G. Pico's works, 74; source of ancient wisdom, 211
- Overfield, James, 147
- Oxford, University of, 106, 123, 124, 157; and humanism, 125–29; rise of collegiate teaching, 126–29, 192; rise in social status of students, 130
- Pace, Richard, 192
- Padua, university of, 5, 6, 74, 102, 108, 109, 110, 123; see also 'pre-humanism'
- Palencia, Alfonso, de, 130
- Palmieri, Matteo, 65, 69, 75, 77, 181
- Pannartz, Arnold, 60
- papacy: becomes major patron of Renaissance art, 96; as employer of humanists, 37–38, 60; securely restored to Rome, 95
- Paracelsus (Theophrast Bombast von Hohenheim), 213–14
- Paris, University of, 74, 102, 119, 148, 150, 156, 166, 183; faculty condemns Lefèvre and Erasmus, 170; has humanist lecturers from early date, 119
- Parlement of Paris, 153, 170, 177
- Parr, Catherine, 195
- Pasquier, Etienne, 177
- Patrizi, Francesco, 211–13
- Paul II, Pope, 60
- Pellikan, Conrad, 169
- Perger, Bernhard, 113, 135
- Perotti, Niccolò, 46, 48, 49, 53, 113, 121, 134
- perspective, aerial, 88; linear (single-point, vanishing point): in Brunelleschi and Donatello, 85, 88; described in Ghiberti's Commentarii, 85; discovered by Brunelleschi, 88, 90; in Masaccio, 88; method explained by Alberti, 90; not found in Giotto, 82
- Perugino, Pietro, 101
- Peter Lombard, bishop of Paris, 18, 144
- Peter of Ravenna (Petrus Tommai), 146–47, 149
- Petrarch (Francesco Petrarca), 7, 9, 16, 20, 21, 22, 27, 32, 34, 36, 39, 43, 47, 49, 53, 55, 61, 65, 67, 76, 77, 81, 106, 107, 119, 124, 153, 181, 182, 183, 184, 203, 204, 223; Agricola's biography of, 111; conception of history, 19–21, 22; conflict of active and contemplative ideals, 22–23; criticism of scholastic method, 18, 205; early education in France, 11; on human nature, 75; idea of 'Dark Ages', 3, 19; influences educational reformers, 13, 15, 24, 25, 44; seeks a 'Renaissance', 5, 21
- Petrus Hispanus (Peter of Spain), 121, 142, 216
- Petrus Mosellanus (Petrus Schade), 165
- Peuerbach, Georg, 110
- Pfefferkorn, Johannes, 147–49
- Philip II, king of Spain, 131
- 'philosophers of nature', Italian, 211–12
- philosophy: collapse of traditional authorities, 217–18; no major philosopher during Renaissance, 204; translators from Greek recover little-known philosophical authors, 206; see also Epicurus/Epicurean philosophy; humanism, misconstrued as a philosophy; humanism, philosophical implications of; Plato/Platonism/Platonists; scepticism; scholasticism; Stoicism
- Pico della Mirandola, Gianfrancesco, 124, 211, 218, 219; fideist outlook, 208, 217; publishes Examen vanitatis, 208; writes biography of Giovanni Pico, 124

250 Index

- Pico della Mirandola, Giovanni: debate with Barbaro on philosophy vs rhetoric, 74; early life and studies, 74–75; human nature, treatise on, 69, 74–76; influence on Italian ‘philosophers of nature’, 211; influence on Lefèvre d’Etaples, 122; influence on Reuchlin, 116; occultist interests, 74–75; Platonic philosopher, not humanist, 69, 76, 205; religious universalism, 75; studies Hebrew language and Cabala, 74
- Piero della Francesca, 92–95, 188
- Pirckheimer, Willibald, 103
- Pistoris, Maternus, 139
- Pithou, Pierre, 177
- Plato/Platonism/Platonists (Neoplatonism/Neoplatonists), 9, 35, 66, 67, 74, 76, 123, 175, 187, 198, 212, 218; affinity to despotic regimes, 73–74; appeals to small elite, 70; Council of Ferrara–Florence stimulates, 67; Ficino’s Platonic Academy, 68, 70; and Florentine culture; 69, 73–74; influence on Colet, 123; influence on Italian ‘philosophers of nature’, 211–12; influence on Lefèvre d’Etaples, 122, 152; influence on Reuchlin, 116; and magic, 71–73; influenced by late Byzantine culture, 67–68; medieval familiarity with, 67; and modern philosophy, 215; opinions on human nature, 72, 75–76; Platonic love, 69, 181; popularized in vernacular translations and literature, 77, 181, 185; and Renaissance art, 95, 97; result of Greek revival, 37–38; source for More’s Utopia, 124; universities did not teach, 206; works of Plato and major Neoplatonists translated by Ficino, 68–69; see also Ficino, Marsilio; Pico della Mirandola, Giovanni
- Pléiade*, the (French poets), 183–84, 219
- Pletho, Georgios Gemistos, 67–68
- Pliny the Elder (Caius Plinius Secundus), 38, 92, 198; Natural History replaces Aristotle at Wittenberg, 142, 213
- Plotinus, translated by Ficino, 69, 71
- Poets and Mathematicians, College of: see Vienna College of Poets and Mathematicians
- Poggio: see Bracciolini, Poggio
- Pole, Reginald, 123, 194
- Poliziano, Angelo, 35, 51, 74, 77, 123, 174, 181, 186; and critical evaluation of manuscripts, 42–43; influence on legal humanism, 175–76
- Pollaiuolo, Antonio del, 92
- Pomponius Laetus, 117
- Post, R. R., 105
- ‘pre-humanism’, at Padua, 6–7, 21–22
- printing: crucial to Erasmus’ career, 154–55; impact of, on humanistic scholarship, 61–62; introduced in Italy, 60–61; introduced at Paris, 119, 120; origin in Germany, 60; role of, in diffusion of humanism, 38, 61–62, 198–99; shops as centres for humanist careers, 145; use in polemics, 145–50
- Protestant Reformation, 141, 150, 167; allegedly caused by humanism, 169–70; efforts to end religious schism, 173; endangers Erasmus’ reform programme, 166, 168–69; reformers regard humanism as a means, not an end, 171; relations to humanism, 115, 118, 150, 169, 170–71; stimulates sceptical thought, 206–7; young Erasmian humanists become its leaders, 169; see also Christian humanism; humanism; Luther, Martin
- Pulci, Luigi, 74, 182
- Pyrrhonism: cited by Agrippa, 210; cited by Rabelais, 210; influenced Montaigne, 219–21; little interest in, during Middle Ages, 207; spreads in late Renaissance, 218; see also scepticism; Sextus Empiricus
- Pythagoras, 70, 211, 218
- Quattrocento art, 83–95
- Quintilian, 38, 40, 111; Institutes rediscovered, 37; as textbook of rhetoric, 142, 216
- Rabelais, François, 183, 205, 210–11
- Ramus, Peter (Pierre de la Ramée), 216–17, 218
- Raphael (Raffaele Sanzio), 81, 96, 101
- Raulin, Jean, 119
- Ravenna, Peter of: see Peter of Ravenna
- relativism, cultural: in late Renaissance, 222; in Montaigne, 220
- Renaissance, ix, 1–2; criticisms of term, 2–3; defined as change in mentality, 10–11; in Middle Ages, 2–4; influence on vernacular literatures, 181; misogynistic tradition continues, 54; role of classical revival in, 10–11, 16–19; seeks rebirth of Antiquity, 19; see also Petrarch, conception of history
- Renaissance art: High-Renaissance style, 96–101; in Italy, 80–101;

- Mannerist style, 96, 101; in northern Europe, 187–91; Quattrocento style, 83–95
- republics: foster growth of humanism, 14, 25–26, 30–34
- Reuchlin, Johann, 142, 154; controversy over Jewish books, 147–50; early career, 116–17; learns Greek at Paris, 119; most humanists stay neutral, 148; Platonic and occultist interests, 116–17; studies Hebrew and Cabala, 116
- rhetoric: Barbaro defends against Pico, 74; devalued by Florentine Platonists, 69–70; relation to humanism, 14–15; rival to rationalist logic, 201, 204, 215–16; seeks probable conclusions, 16
- Richard II, king of England, 129
- Richard III, king of England, 109
- Rienzo, Cola di, 107
- Rinuccini, Cino, 29
- Rojas, Fernando de, 130, 186
- Rome, 109, 123; Erasmus views as centre of corruption, 164–65; replaces Florence as cultural leader in sixteenth century, 95
- Ronsard, Pierre de, 184
- Rossi, Roberto de', 30
- Rubianus, Crotus: see Crotus Rubianus
- St Lebwin's School, Deventer, 105–06, 114, 155
- St Maur, Congregation of, 178
- St Paul's School, London, 123–24; Erasmus' role in foundation, 157, 161–62; Colet's original curriculum hostile to pagan classics, 151
- St Peter's basilica, 95, 101
- Salutati, Coluccio, 21, 31, 35, 36, 43, 49, 61, 64, 65, 66, 77; career, public and literary, 26–30; exemplar of active life, 28; introduces study of Greek, 27; promotes Petrarch's reputation, 26–27; rejects scholastic intellectualism, 116; retains use of medieval dictamen style in official documents, 49; transforms humanism, 34
- Sanches, Francisco, 219
- Sandford, James, 210
- Sannazaro, Jacopo, 185, 186, 187
- Santillana, marquis of (Íñigo López de Mendoza), 107, 130
- Sanzio, Raffaele: see Raphael
- Savonarola, Girolamo, 64, 77, 78
- Saxony, duke of: see George, duke of Saxony
- Scala, Alessandra, 58
- Scaliger, Josephus Justus, 43, 175, 222; proves late date of Dionysius the Areopagite, 175
- scepticism: ancient sources of, 208; in Agrippa, 209; in Castellesi, 208; Erasmus uses against Luther, 209; in Gianfrancesco Pico, 208; in Montaigne, 219–21; reflects failure of humanist aspirations, 217–18; in religious polemics, 218; stimulated by Reformation, 206–07; in Suares, 219; see also Academic scepticism; Pyrrhonism
- Schade, Petrus: see Petrus Mosellanus
- scholasticism, 17–18, 127, 211; compatible with occultist beliefs, 217; criticized by humanists, 16, 18, 24, 153, 201, 205–06, 215; criticized for reliance on Aristotelian logic, 215; disdained by Italian 'philosophers of nature', 212; as an intellectual method, 17–19, 20; intellectualism, 14–15, 215–16; Luther's determination to destroy it, 142–43, 213; neo-scholastic revival in sixteenth century, 214–15; partial survival in Wittenberg curriculum, 143–44, 213; remains dominant in university curriculum, 4, 9, 201–02; repudiated by Geert Groote, 104 theologians attack Erasmus, 165–66; theologians condemn Lefèvre and Erasmus, 170
- Schongauer, Martin, 188
- schools: and diffusion of humanism, 76, 105–06, 107, 113–14, 115, 179–81; in France and Spain, 179–80; in late medieval Italy, 44–54; Latin and abbaco types in Italy, 44–45; Jesuits and, 180; textbooks used, 44–48
- Scotus, John Duns, 205
- Sélestat, humanistic school at, 114
- Sextus Empiricus: cited by critics of Aristotelian rationalism, 208; criticizes sensory knowledge, 207; early influence of, 208; influence on Montaigne, 219–21; publication of works, 207, 210, 218; see also Montaigne, scepticism
- Shakespeare, William, 184–86, 200
- Sibylline oracles, 211
- Sidney, Sir Philip, 185
- Smith, Thomas, 195–96
- Socrates, 223
- Soderini, Piero, 78, 79
- Sohier, Hector, 191
- Spalatin, Georg, 140, 141
- Spenser, Edmund, 185
- Standonck, Jean, 119, 151
- Starkey, Thomas, 194

252 Index

- Stoicism, 9, 200, 204, 206; in Montaigne and Lipsius, 206, 219; rejected by Manetti, 65–66; rejected by Valla, 65
- studia humanitatis*, 8, 9, 11, 201, 204; classical origins, 12–13; philosophical implications, 13; see also humanism
- Stunica, Jacobus: see López Zúñiga, Diego
- Surigone, Stefano, 125
- Surrey, earl of: see Howard, Henry
- Sutor, Petrus: see Cousturier, Pierre
- Sweynheym, Conrad, 60
- Synthen, Johannes, 105
- Talon, Omer, 218
- Tartaret, Guillaume, 142
- Tasso, Torquato, 182, 187
- Taverner, Richard, 193
- Telesio, Bernardino: Epicurean materialism of, 212; one of Italian ‘philosophers of nature’, 211–13; works known to Francis Bacon, 221
- Terence, 50, 125–26, 129
- Thomas à Kempis, 104, 208
- Tifernate, Gregorio, 119
- Tiptoft, John, 108
- Titian (Tiziano Vecellio), 96
- Tottel’s Miscellany*, 184
- Toussain, Jacques, 174
- Traversagni, Lorenzo, 125
- Trent, Council of, 171, 180, 203
- trilingual colleges, 143
- ‘Trojans’, Cambridge conservatives, 195
- Uccello, Paolo, 92
- Udall, Nicholas, 195
- universalism, religious, 74–75
- universities: centres for diffusion of humanism, 107; early humanist masters hold subordinate positions, 112–13; English, 125–29; German, conflict over reforms, 134, 135–38; humanistic reform demands, 132–34; Italian organizational model differs from northern, 44; Luther as reformer of curriculum, 140–44; medieval arts curriculum emphasizes dialectic/logic, 106, 112; successes by German humanist academic reformers, 138–44; traditional scholasticism remains dominant, 4, 9
- Urbino, court of, 36, 73, 182
- Vadian (Joachim von Watt), 169
- Valdés, Juan de, 187
- Valla, Lorenzo, 21, 43, 51, 63, 66, 70, 113, 119, 120, 127, 174, 204, 206, 222, 223; Annotations on New Testament, 42, 160–61; Elegances, 40; Emendationes Livianae, 40; exposes Donation of Constantine as forgery, 40–41, 194; favours Quintilian over Cicero, 40; favours rhetoric over dialectic, 216; on historical development of language, 39–42; On Pleasure, 65; pioneer of textual criticism, 38–42, 174, 194, 201; questions authenticity of pseudo-Dionysius, 175; translates Greek authors, 42
- van Bergen, Hendrik: see Bergen, Hendrik van, bishop of Cambrai
- van Dorp, Martin: see Dorp, Martin van
- van Eyck, Hubert and Jan, 88, 188
- Vasari, Giorgio, 80–81
- Vega, Garcilaso de, 186
- Vega, Lope de, 187
- Veneziano, Domenico, 92
- Venice: preserves independence, 101; as printing centre, 61, 123, 157–58; slow to accept humanism, 35–36; Venetian style in art, 92–93
- Vergil (Publius Vergilius Maro), 50, 53, 115, 182, 183, 184, 186
- vernacular culture: humanist influence on, 181–87; in England, 184–86; in France, 183–84; in Italy, 181–82; in Spain, 186–87
- Verocchio, Andrea, 96
- Vienna College of Poets and Mathematicians, 118, 135–36
- Villani, Filippo, 82
- Villedieu, Alexander of, 45; see also Doctrinale
- Vinsauf, Geoffrey of, 49
- Virulus, Carolus: see Maneken, Carl
- Visconti, Giangaleazzo, duke of Milan, 28, 30
- Vitelli, Cornelio, 125
- Vitrier, Jean, 159
- Vittorino da Feltre (Vittorino Rambaldoni da Feltre), 39
- Wakefield, Richard, 193
- Warham, William, archbishop of Canterbury, 163
- Watt, Joachim von: see Vadian
- Waynflete, William, bishop of Winchester, 126
- Wilson, Thomas, 192
- Wimpheling, Jakob, 114, 115–16
- Windsheim, Congregation of, 104
- Wittenberg, University of, 136, 138; Luther leads curricular reforms, 140–44;

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-54781-9 - Humanism and the Culture of Renaissance Europe: Second Edition

Charles G. Nauert

Index

More information

Index

253

- survival of parts of scholastic curriculum, 143–44; as trilingual college, 143
- women: and humanistic learning, ix, x; effects of exclusion from Latin schools, 55–56; exceptional educated women face social discrimination, 56; lack of educational opportunities, 55–56; marriage as impediment to intellectual aspirations, 56–57; misogyny and social restrictions, 54–56; printing and vernacular translations mitigate exclusion, 55
- Wyatt, Sir Thomas, 184
- Wykeham, William of, bishop of Winchester, 126
- Wyle, Niclas von, 110
- Ximenes de Cisneros, Francisco, Cardinal, 131
- Zoroaster, as source of ancient wisdom, 74, 211
- Zwingli, Huldrych, 169