There is currently much interest in the history of interpretation, reader-response and the sociology of sacred texts – in what the text does as much as what it means. Isaiah, ‘more evangelist than prophet’ according to Jerome and others, provides an ideal case study, because of his profound influence on the language and imagery of Christianity. With illustrations from art, music, literature and the media as well as commentaries, sermons and official church pronouncements, Professor Sawyer shows how Isaiah has been used in all kinds of context, from the cult of the Virgin Mary, mediaeval passion iconography and antisemitic propaganda to Christian feminism and liberation theology. This first attempt at a comprehensive critical study of an essential part of biblical interpretation will provide a model for further research, and ensure that commentaries will never be the same again.

Preface

In its earliest form The Fifth Gospel was a series of public lectures given in Bangor in 1987 and I would like to begin by thanking Max Wilcox, at that time Head of the Religious Studies Department at the University College of North Wales, and his colleagues for giving me the opportunity to start working on this project. A version of part of chapter 7 was published in Ritual and Remembrance. Responses to Death in Human Societies, ed. Jon Davies (Sheffield 1994), and part of chapter 13 in Currents in Research. Biblical Studies 3 (1995).

I am grateful to the staff of many libraries for the help they have given me, in particular, the university libraries at Newcastle, Durham, Lancaster, Edinburgh and Utrecht, Durham Cathedral Library, the Warburg Institute and the Courtauld Institute in London, and the Stichting Kerkelijk Kunstbezit in Nederland in Utrecht. I would like to express my gratitude to Newcastle University for granting me a sabbatical in 1991–2, and to the Leverhulme Trust for generously funding it, as well as to the British Academy and the US National Endowment for the Humanities for making possible a stimulating visit to Berkeley in the Summer of 1994. My thanks are also due to the Dean of St Paul's and 'Peaceable Kingdom' artist Karen van Heerden for material they kindly supplied, and to the editorial staff at Cambridge University Press, especially Alex Wright.

I have been greatly helped by the suggestions and criticisms of colleagues, students, friends and relations, among whom I would like to say a special word of thanks to Jon Davies, Graham Harvey, Brian Pearson, Sue Vernon, Paul Hilditch, Harry Tait, Ian Falconer, Archimandrite Ephrem, Eric Cross, Andrew Fairbairn, Richard Bailey, Peter Evans, Andrew Ballantyne, Jack Watt, Gerald Miller, Diana Crockford, Alexander Sawyer, Lindsay Sawyer, Claire MacGregor, Margaret Fergusson, Ann Loades, Chris Rowland, Robert
