Phylogenetic Origins of Communicative Gestures	82
Ontogeny of Gestures in Human Infants before 9 Months	92
Gestural Development from 9 Months: Order of Onset	95
Onset of Coordination of Gesture with Vocalization and Gaze	97
Change in the Gestural Repertoire from 9 to 15 Months and in Coordination with Vocalization and Gaze	102
Interrelationships among Gestures	105
Environmental Influences on the Gestural Repertoire	106
Relation of Gestures to Early Vocabulary and Later Language Acquisition	107
Conclusions	109
4 Symbolic Gestures and Symbolic Play	111
Theoretical Background	112
Symbolic Gestures in Nonhuman Primates	114
Symbolic Gestures in Human Infants	120
Our Observations of Symbolic Gestures	123
Symbolic Play	126
Our Research on Symbolic Play	134
Conclusions	139
5 Tool Use and Object Concept	140
Tool Use in Wild Apes	144
Tool Use in Captive and Ex-captive Apes and Monkeys	148
Circular Reactions	153
Conclusions	154
Object Concept in Apes and Monkeys	155
Conclusions	158
Early Findings in Favor of a Relationship between Tool Use and Communication in Human Infants	158
Methodological Problems in Means–Ends and Object Permanence Tasks	160
Results Relating Object Permanence Tasks to More Specific Aspects of Language Acquisition	162
The Specificity Hypothesis	163
Our Research Relating Piagetian Tasks to Communication	165
Object Constructions	166
Conclusions	169
