

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-62071-0 - Disseminating Darwinism: The Role of Place, Race, Religion, and Gender

Edited by Ronald L. Numbers and John Stenhouse

Table of Contents

More information

 CONTENTS

List of contributors	vii	Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	(Ronald L. Numbers and John Stenhouse)		1
1. Science, region, and religion: the reception of Darwinism in Princeton, Belfast, and Edinburgh	David N. Livingstone		7
2. Darwin down under: science, religion, and evolution in Australia	Barry W. Butcher		39
3. Darwinism in New Zealand, 1859–1900	John Stenhouse		61
4. Environment, culture, and the reception of Darwin in Canada, 1859–1909	Suzanne Zeller		91
5. Darwinism in the American South	Ronald L. Numbers and Lester D. Stephens		123
6. Darwinism, American Protestant thinkers, and the puzzle of motivation	Jon H. Roberts		145
7. Exposing Darwin's "hidden agenda": Roman Catholic responses to evolution, 1875–1925	R. Scott Appleby		173
8. American Jewish responses to Darwin and evolutionary theory, 1860–1890	Marc Swetlitz		209
9. Black responses to Darwinism, 1859–1915	Eric D. Anderson		247
10. "The irrepressible woman question": women's responses to evolutionary ideology	Sally Gregory Kohlstedt and Mark R. Jorgensen		267
Index			295