

Cambridge University Press 978-0-521-62938-6 — Renegotiating Ethics in Literature, Philosophy, and Theory Edited by Jane Adamson , Richard Freadman , David Parker Table of Contents More Information

Contents

	Introduction: the turn to ethics in the 1990s DAVID PARKER	page 1
I:	ETHICS, LITERATURE, AND PHILOSOPHY
1	Deepening the self The language of ethics and the language of literature SIMON HAINES	21
2	Martha Nussbaum and the need for novels CORA DIAMOND	39
3	The concept of dread Sympathy and ethics in Daniel Deronda LISABETH DURING	65
4	Against tidiness Literature and/versus moral philosophy JANE ADAMSON	84
II:	ETHICS AND AGENCY
5	What differences can contemporary poetry make in our moral thinking? CHARLES ALTIERI	113

vii

Cambridge University Press 978-0-521-62938-6 — Renegotiating Ethics in Literature, Philosophy, and Theory Edited by Jane Adamson , Richard Freadman , David Parker Table of Contents More Information

Contents

6	Moral luck in Paris: A Moveable Feast and the ethics of autobiography RICHARD FREADMAN	134
7	The unseemly profession Privacy, inviolate personality, and the ethics of life writing PAUL JOHN EAKIN	161
8	The patient writes back Bioethics and the illness narrative JOHN WILTSHIRE	181
III:	POLITICS AND ETHICS
9	Literature, power, and the recovery of philosophical ethics C. A. J. COADY AND SEUMAS MILLER	201
10	The literary imagination in public life MARTHA C. NUSSBAUM	222
11	Ethics in many different voices Annette C. Baier	247
12	Common understanding and individual voices RAIMOND GAITA	269
	Index	289