Unity Temple: Frank Lloyd Wright and Architecture for Liberal Religion is the first comprehensive study of one of the seminal works of America's most renowned twentieth-century architect. In this study, Joseph Siry examines Unity Temple in light of Wright's earlier religious architecture, his methods of design, and his innovative construction techniques, particularly the use of reinforced concrete, which he here explored and expressively deployed for the first time. Siry also sets Unity Temple against the tradition of the liberal Unitarian and Universalist religious culture, the institutional history of the Oak Park congregation that commissioned the building, and the social context in which the structure was conceived and built. Throughout, Unity Temple is treated as a work of art that embodies both Wright's theory of architecture and liberal religious ideals.

This project developed over eight years with the help, advice, and encouragement of many persons. Those who helped provide access to archival materials and photographs include Barbara Ballinger, former Head Librarian, Oak Park Public Library; former Rev. Frank Baldwin and Rev. Ed Bergstraesser, First United Church, Oak Park; Lorna Condon, Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, Boston; Rev. Thomas Chulak, First Unitarian Church of Chicago; former Rev. Scott Giles and Rev. F. Jay Deacon, The Unitarian Universalist Church in Oak Park; Rev. Neil Gerdes, Librarian, Meadville-Lombard Theological School, Chicago; Rev. Peter B. Godfrey, Minister Secretary, London District, Unitarian and Free Christian Churches, England; Elaine Harrington; Thomas Heinz, Evanston, Illinois; Michael Houlahan, Hedrich Blessing Photographers, Chicago; William Jerousek, Oak Park Public Library; Karl Kabelac, Manuscripts Librarian, Rush-Rhees Library, University of Rochester; Carol R. Kelm, Curator, The Historical Society of Oak Park and River Forest; Margaret Klinkow, Research Center Director, The Frank Lloyd Wright Home and Studio Foundation, Oak Park; Pat Kostopulos, Unity Temple Restoration Foundation, Oak Park; Daniel Meyer, Special Collections Department, The Joseph Regenstein Library, University of Chicago; Harold L. Miller, Reference Archivist, The State Historical Society of Wisconsin, Madison; Dreama Monty, formerly of the Unitarian Universalist Church in Oak Park; Oscar R. Muñoz, Administrator, and Bruce Brooks Pfeiffer, Director, The Frank Lloyd Wright Archives; Janet Parks, Curator of Drawings, Avery Architectural and Fine Arts Library, Columbia University; Franklin W. Porter, Richardson, Texas; Paul Rocheleau, Richmond, Massachusetts; Deborah J. Slaton, Project Architect/Historian, Wiss, Janney, Elstner Associates, Inc., Chicago; Philip A. Turner, Architectural Photography, Chicago; Wim de Wit, formerly Curator, Chicago Architectural Archive, Chicago Historical Society; Timothy N. Wittman, Commission on Chicago Landmarks; Mary Woolever, Architectural Archivist, Burnham Library, Art Institute of Chicago; and Linda Ziemer, Department of Prints and Photographs, Chicago Historical Society. Additional individuals and institutions are acknowledged in captions to photographs, and in the notes. If anyone who helped with this study does not see his or her name above, its omission is inadvertent, and their efforts are most appreciated.

The College Art Association granted permission for use of material from my earlier article on Unity Temple in the Art Bulletin, as did the Society of Architectural Historians for material from my article on the Abraham Lincoln Center in the society's journal.

Scholars and experts who have shared their knowledge and enthusiasm include Daniel M. Bluestone, University of Virginia; Robert J. Clark, Princeton University; Richard A. Etlin, University of Maryland; Robert A. Furhoff, Chicago; Rev. Thomas E. Graham, University of Winnipeg; John O. Holzhueter, State Historical Society of Wisconsin; Anthony Jones, Rector, Royal College of Art, London; John Quinan, State University of New York at Buffalo; Peter Reed, The Museum of Modern Art; Alan Seaburg, Curator of Manuscripts, Andover Harvard Theological Library, Harvard Divinity School; Lisa D. Schrenk, Department of Architecture, The University of Texas at Austin; Edgar J. Tafel, F.A.I.A., New York City; and the faculty and graduate students in the Program in History, Theory, and Criticism of Architecture, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

My colleagues in the Program in History of Art, and throughout the Art Department, at Wesleyan University have been unfailingly and generously supportive of this project. Wesleyan provided a project grant and supplementary grants in support of scholarship to help defray costs of research and photographs. The late Stephen Lebergott, Head, and his colleagues at Interlibrary Loan, Olin Library, Wesleyan, were invaluable helpful at every stage. Also, my students over the last eleven years at Wesleyan have been a pleasure to teach and to learn from.

Dr. Beatrice Rehl, Fine Arts Editor, Mr. Alan Gold, Production Manager, and their colleagues at Cambridge University Press, have guided the book through to realization with reassuring dedication and skill.

Finally, my family has been deeply supportive beyond all measure throughout the long processes of research, writing, editing, and production. To them it is gratefully dedicated.
