

Contents

	Acknowledgments	page vii
	Note on texts	ix
1	The modern novelist as redeemer of the nation	1
	The modernist novel and the crisis of liberal nationalism	3
	Joyce, Balzac, and the dynamic of disillusionment	13
	Disillusionment and the possibility of liberal politics	21
	Joyce's transformation of the disillusionment plot structure	29
	The conscience of the race and the moral unity of the nation	36
	Modernist narrative technique and the racial conscience	42
2	The crisis of liberal nationalism	52
	The decline of the nation-state	60
	The liberal compromise between will and character	64
	National will vs. national character	70
	The Rights of Man and of the Citizen	74
	The Rights of Men and the Rights of Englishmen	84
	Literary form and the crisis of liberalism	93
3	“His sympathies were in the right place”: Conrad and the discourse of national character	97
	Conrad's “ idée nationale ” and English liberal nationalism	104
	Kurtz and the phantom of international democracy	110
	Marlow's theory of character	117
	Conrad, character, and culture	121
4	Citizens of the Plain: Proust and the discourse of national will	126
	Combray: site of the unified self?	131
	Proustian and Cartesian doubt	136
	Proustian ethics: involuntary memory and social roles	144
	The war: The moral unity of the nation and the general will	148
	The Dreyfus affair: the accursed races and the nation-state	153
	The possibility of justice: equality of condition and multiplicity of selves	166

vi	Contents
5	“Il vate nazionale”: D’Annunzio and the discourse of embodiment	175
	Fiumanism and Fascism	178
	D’Annunzio’s Inferno: the lyrics of suffering	185
	D’Annunzio’s Purgatory: the narrative of redemption	193
	D’Annunzio’s Paradise: the return to battle	198
	Gabriele’s Vita nuova : the Notturmo and the art of the novel	202
	Conclusion	210
	Notes	217
	Select bibliography	233
	Index	238