

Contents

Acknowledgments ∞ ix

Introduction ∞ 1

PART I: LIFE’S BEGINNING

Chapter 1: Uniquely Valued ∞ 19

1 Cherished Uniqueness ∞ 19

2 Experience and Underwriting Intrinsic Moral Worth ∞ 28

3 Parental Love as a Moral Power ∞ 38

Chapter 2: Reconceptualizing the Moral Self ∞ 49

1 *Parenting as the Fullest Expression of Unconditional
Love* ∞ 50

2 *Parenting and the Argument from Genes and
Self-Interest* ∞ 58

3 Self-Interest as the Best Explanation ∞ 65

4 A Supposed Lesson from Robinson Crusoe ∞ 73

5 Parenting as an Open-Ended Commitment ∞ 76

PART II: THE CRUCIBLE OF SOCIETY

Chapter 3: The Family as a Model for Society ∞ 83

1 Some Preliminary Remarks ∞ 84

2 Parental Love and a Conception of the Right ∞ 87

3 Fellow-Feeling and a Conception of the Right ∞ 95

Cambridge University Press
052167011X - The Family and the Political Self
Laurence Thomas
Table of Contents
More information

viii ∞ Contents

4 Love and Fellow-Feeling Are Not Zero-Sum ∞ 107

5 Self-Command ∞ 122

Chapter 4: From Family to E Pluribus Unum ∞ 130

1 Beyond Self-Interest ∞ 131

2 Moral Personhood ∞ 138

3 Community and Moral Personhood ∞ 143

4 Social Unity and the Affective Sentiments ∞ 155

5 The Backdrop of Flourishing ∞ 167

Epilogue: Liberty: Between Plato and Modern
Liberalism ∞ 171

Index ∞ 177