

Cambridge University Press

0521673577 - Evil and Human Agency: Understanding Collective Evildoing

Arne Johan Vetlesen

Frontmatter

More information

Evil and Human Agency

Evil is a poorly understood phenomenon. In this provocative and original approach to evil, Professor Vetlesen argues that to do evil is to inflict pain intentionally on another human being, against his or her will, and causing serious and foreseeable harm. Vetlesen investigates why and in what sort of circumstances such a desire arises, and how it is channelled, or exploited, into collective evil-doing. He argues that such evil-doing, pitting whole groups against each other, springs from a combination of character, situation, and social structure. By combining a philosophical approach inspired by Hannah Arendt, a psychological approach inspired by C. Fred Alford, and a sociological approach inspired by Zygmunt Bauman, and bringing these to bear on the Holocaust and ethnic cleansing in the former Yugoslavia, Vetlesen shows how closely perpetrators, victims, and bystanders interact, and how aspects of human agency are recognized, denied, and projected by different agents.

ARNE JOHAN VETLESEN is Professor of Philosophy at the Department of Philosophy, University of Oslo, Norway. He is the author of over thirteen books, including Perception, Empathy, and Judgment: An Inquiry into the Preconditions of Moral Performance (1994) and Closeness: An Ethics (with H. Jodalen, 1997).

Cambridge University Press

0521673577 - Evil and Human Agency: Understanding Collective Evildoing

Arne Johan Vetlesen

Frontmatter

More information

Cambridge Cultural Social Studies

Series editors: JEFFREY C. ALEXANDER, Department of Sociology, Yale University, and STEVEN SEIDMAN, Department of Sociology, University of Albany, State University of New York.

Titles in the series

ROGER FRIEDLAND AND JOHN MOHR, Matters of Culture

DAVINA COOPER, Challenging Diversity, Rethinking Equality and the Value of Difference

KRISHAN KUMAR, The Making of English National Identity

RON EYERMAN, Cultural Trauma

STEPHEN M. ENGEL, The Unfinished Revolution

MICHÈLE LAMONT AND LAURENT THÉVENOT, Rethinking Comparative Cultural Sociology

RON LEMBO, Thinking through Television

ALI MIRSEPASSI, Intellectual Discourse and the Politics of Modernization

RONALD N. JACOBS, Race, Media, and the Crisis of Civil Society

ROBIN WAGNER-PACIFICI, Theorizing the Standoff

KEVIN MCDONALD, Struggles for Subjectivity

S. N. EISENSTADT, Fundamentalism, Sectarianism, and Revolution

PIOTR SZTOMPKA, Trust

SIMON J. CHARLESWORTH, A Phenomenology of Working-Class Experience

LUC BOLTANSKI, Translated by GRAHAM D. BURCHELL, Distant Suffering

MARIAM FRASER, Identity without Selfhood

CAROLYN MARVIN AND DAVID W. INGLE, Blood Sacrifice and the Nation

(list continues at end of book)

Cambridge University Press

0521673577 - Evil and Human Agency: Understanding Collective Evildoing

Arne Johan Vetlesen

Frontmatter

More information

Evil and Human Agency

Understanding Collective Evildoing

Arne Johan Vetlesen

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press
0521673577 - Evil and Human Agency: Understanding Collective Evildoing
Arne Johan Vetlesen
Frontmatter
More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town, Singapore,
São Paulo

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
The Edinburgh Building, Cambridge CB2 2RU, UK

Published in the United States of America by Cambridge University Press,
New York

www.cambridge.org
Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521673570

© Arne Johan Vetlesen 2005

This book is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2005

Printed in the United Kingdom at the University Press, Cambridge

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

ISBN-13 978-0-521-85694-2 hardback
ISBN-10 0-521-85694-9 hardback
ISBN-13 978-0-521-67357-0 paperback
ISBN-10 0-521-67357-7 paperback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this book, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press

0521673577 - Evil and Human Agency: Understanding Collective Evildoing

Arne Johan Vetlesen

Frontmatter

More information

To my children: Anahita, Daniel, and Petter Nicolai

Contents

| | |
|--|----------------|
| Preface | page xi |
| A note on the cover image | xii |
| Introduction | 1 |
| 1 The ordinariness of modern evildoers: a critique of Zygmunt Bauman's Modernity and the Holocaust | 14 |
| Introduction | 14 |
| The Holocaust as modernity's window | 15 |
| Reformulating the relationship between society and morality | 21 |
| The many meanings of proximity | 23 |
| Uncoupling responsibility from reciprocity | 27 |
| Goldhagen's challenge | 29 |
| Reassessing Bauman's thesis in the light of recent scholarship | 33 |
| Mistaking the bureaucratic design for the reality | 41 |
| Rendering human beings superfluous | 47 |
| 2 Hannah Arendt on conscience and the 'banality' of evil | 52 |
| Introduction | 52 |
| Assessing the influence of St Augustine | 54 |
| 'I cannot possibly want to become my own adversary': the Socratic bottom line | 57 |
| Conscience and temptation | 63 |
| Did Eichmann have a conscience? | 69 |
| The notion of conscience in Heidegger's Being and Time | 71 |
| Arendt's advocacy of the Socratic model of conscience | 77 |

Cambridge University Press

0521673577 - Evil and Human Agency: Understanding Collective Evildoing

Arne Johan Vetlesen

Frontmatter

More information

| | | |
|-------------|---|------------|
| viii | List of contents | |
| | Double dehumanization and human agency | 84 |
| | Lessons of an unforeseen proximity: Eichmann meets Storfer | 89 |
| | The attraction of superfluosity | 98 |
| 3 | The psycho-logic of wanting to hurt others: An assessment of C. Fred Alford's work on evil | 104 |
| | Introduction | 104 |
| | 'Evil is pleasure in hurting and lack of remorse' | 106 |
| | Klein's positions of experience | 113 |
| | Imagining evil as the alternative to doing it: the role of culture | 120 |
| | Evil as envy | 124 |
| | Problems with Alford's theory | 128 |
| | Identifying with Eichmann | 135 |
| | The limitations of Alford's approach | 140 |
| 4 | The logic and practice of collective evil: 'ethnic cleansing' in Bosnia | 145 |
| | Introduction | 145 |
| | Approaches to 'ethnic cleansing' in the former Yugoslavia | 148 |
| | What is genocide? | 154 |
| | The explosive dialectic of individualization and collectivism | 159 |
| | 'Ethnic cleansing' as a case of securitization | 167 |
| | The differences between individual and collective evil | 170 |
| | Genocidal logic and the collectivization of agency | 175 |
| | Girard's theory of the surrogate victim | 182 |
| | The design of genocide as 'ethnic cleansing' | 188 |
| | Genocidal rape: its nature and function | 196 |
| | Rape, shame, and agency | 203 |
| 5 | Responses to collective evil | 220 |
| | Introduction | 220 |
| | How to pass judgment on evil? | 221 |
| | A culture of indifference | 229 |
| | The responsibility of bystanders: when inaction makes for complicity | 235 |
| | Bosnia: the follies of impartiality enacted as neutrality | 241 |
| | Three lessons of moral failure | 253 |
| | Collective agency and its disaggregation | 257 |
| | Truth commissions, trials, and testimonies | 265 |

Cambridge University Press

0521673577 - Evil and Human Agency: Understanding Collective Evildoing

Arne Johan Vetlesen

Frontmatter

More information

| | | |
|----------|--|------------|
| | List of contents | ix |
| | Reconciliation, forgiveness, and collective guilt | 272 |
| | Assuming vicarious responsibility and guilt | 281 |
| 6 | A political postscript: globalization and the discontents of the self | 289 |
| | References | 299 |
| | Index | 310 |

Preface

My obsession with this book's subject goes way back in time. I remember my shock when coming across, at the age of fifteen, the autobiography of one of the handful of Jews from Norway who survived Auschwitz, Herman Sachnowitz. His book is titled It Concerns You Too.

Now a professor of philosophy specializing in ethics, my early interest in how organized evil comes about and what it does to all affected is, if anything, more intense than ever. Being a contemporary to the occurrence of genocide in the 1990s – in Bosnia and in Rwanda – made the topic even more urgent. Sixty years after the liberation of Auschwitz, we know only too well that the promise, nay imperative, 'Never again!' has been betrayed again and again.

During the years spent working on this book, I have benefited from exchange with a large number of friends and colleagues. For contributions big and small, I wish to thank Per Nortvedt, Jan-Olav Henriksen, Lars Svendsen, Henrik Syse, Carsten Bagge Laustsen, Tone Bringa, Odd Bjørn Fure, and Bernt Hagtvet. Alastair Hannay once again offered his unfailing moral support. Zygmunt Bauman once again demonstrated that genuine friendship can endure heated disagreement. Thomas Cushman showed his belief in the book at a decisive moment. To all of them, and to the students who have made my seminars on evil into a workshop of ideas from which my argument in this book slowly ripened, I wish to express my deep gratitude. This also goes for my editor, Sarah Caro.

Chapter 2 partly uses material originally published in my 2001 article 'Hannah Arendt on Conscience and Evil' (Philosophy and Social Criticism 27, 5). I am grateful to Sage Publications Ltd for permission to reuse this material.

Cambridge University Press

0521673577 - Evil and Human Agency: Understanding Collective Evildoing

Arne Johan Vetlesen

Frontmatter

More information

A note on the cover image

On 26 November 1942, at four o'clock in the morning, about 100 black taxis driven by Norwegian plain-clothes policemen were used to round up 532 Jews from their homes in the Oslo area. The group, which included children as well as elderly men and women, had to stand in line to wait to be given the order to embark on the German ship Donau, which would take them to Germany. The group would then be transported by freight trains to the infamous death camp Auschwitz in Poland. Of the 532 individuals deported that day, only 9 would survive Auschwitz and return to Norway after the camp was liberated by the Soviet Red Army on 27 January 1945. With very few exceptions, the group was 'selected' for extermination by gas immediately upon arriving at Auschwitz in the early days of December 1942. This event, which went largely unnoticed at the time and was without dramatic incident (the arrests occurred without noteworthy resistance), has – somewhat misleadingly – come to be known in postwar Norway as the 'Norwegian Kristallnacht', alluding to the pogroms orchestrated by the Nazi Party in Germany on 9 November 1938, when German Jews were killed or beaten up, synagogues throughout Germany set on fire and thousands of books burned amid anti-Semitic speeches and shouting of Nazi slogans.

The photo was taken by a young Norwegian man, Georg W. Fossum, who used to take photos for the underground resistance, sending them by courier to Sweden. Because of a series of arrests, the film of which the 'Donau-photo' is part was in fact not exposed until after the war. Only in 1994 did the photo become known to the wider public, having been part of Fossum's private collection until then.