

Contents

Contributors	page vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
Carl I. Cohen and Sami Timimi
1 Working towards a liberatory psychiatry? Radicalizing the science of human psychology and behavior	9
Carl I. Cohen
2 Power, freedom, and mental health: a postpsychiatry perspective	35
Philip Thomas and Pat Bracken
3 Challenging risk: a critique of defensive practice	55
Duncan Double
4 Democracy in psychiatry: or why psychiatry needs a new constitution	73
Bradley Lewis
5 German critical psychology as emancipatory psychology	89
Charles W. Tolman
6 Psychopolitical validity in the helping professions: applications to research, interventions, case conceptualization, and therapy	105
Isaac Prilleltensky, Ora Prilleltensky, and Courte Voorhees
7 Class exploitation and psychiatric disorders: from status syndrome to capitalist syndrome	131
Carles Muntaner, Carme Borrell, and Haejoo Chung
8 Ecological, individual, ecological? Moving public health psychiatry into a new era	147
Kwame McKenzie

vi	Contents
	9 Children’s mental health and the global market: an ecological analysis	163
	Sami Timimi
	10 Postcolonial psychiatry: the Empire strikes back? Or, the untapped promise of multiculturalism	183
	Begum Maitra
	11 A new psychiatry for a new world: postcolonialism, postmodernism, and the integration of premodern thought into psychiatry	205
	Ramotse Saunders, Amjad Hindi, and Ipsit Vahia
	12 Neoliberalism and biopsychiatry: a marriage of convenience	235
	Joanna Moncrieff
	13 Psychoanalysis and social change: the Latin American experience	257
	Astrid Rusquellas
	14 A new psychiatry?	275
	Carl I. Cohen, Sami Timimi, and Kenneth S. Thompson
	Index	286