Hilary Putnam

The richness of Hilary Putnam's philosophical oeuvre consists not only in the broad spectrum of problems addressed but also in the transformations and restructuring his positions have undergone over the years. The essays collected in this volume are sensitive to both these dimensions. They discuss Putnam's major philosophical contributions to the theory of meaning, the philosophy of mind, the philosophy of science and mathematics, and moral theory. But, in addition, tracing threads of change and continuity, they analyze the dynamics underlying the unfolding of Putnam's thought. The volume also constitutes a critical introduction to a number of central issues in contemporary philosophy, including quantum logic, realism, functionalism, the 'mind as computer' metaphor, and the fact/value dichotomy.

Yemima Ben-Menahem is a member of the Department of Philosophy at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Contemporary Philosophy in Focus

Contemporary Philosophy in Focus offers a series of introductory volumes to many of the dominant philosophical thinkers of the current age. Each volume consists of newly commissioned essays that cover major contributions of a preeminent philosopher in a systematic and accessible manner. Comparable in scope and rationale to the highly successful series Cambridge Companions to Philosophy, the volumes do not presuppose that readers are already intimately familiar with the details of each philosopher's work. They thus combine exposition and critical analysis in a manner that will appeal to students of philosophy and to professionals as well as to students across the humanities and social sciences.

YEMIMA BEN-MENAHM is a member of the Department of Philosophy at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. In her publications she has addressed a range of classic problems in the philosophy of science, including explanation, causality, and realism. Her Conventionalism is forthcoming from Cambridge University Press.

RICHARD J. BERNSTEIN is Vera List Professor of Philosophy and dean of the graduate faculty at New School University in New York City. He has written widely on political theory, American pragmatism, and critical theory. His books include Praxis and Action (1971), Beyond Objectivism and Relativism: Science, Hermeneutics and Praxis (1983), Freud and the Vexed Legacy of Moses (1998), and Radical Evil: A Philosophical Interrogation (2002).

NANCY CARTWRIGHT is a professor of philosophy in the Department of Philosophy, London School of Economics and Political Science, and chair of the London School of Economics Centre for Philosophy of Natural and Social Science. She is also a professor of philosophy at the University of California, San Diego. Among her books are How the Laws of Physics Lie (1983), Nature's Capacities and Their Measurement (1989), The Dappled World: A Study of the Boundaries of Science (1999), and Measuring Causes: Invariance, Modularity and the Causal Markov Condition (2000).

ARTHUR FINE is a professor of philosophy and adjunct professor of physics at the University of Washington. He has served as president of the Philosophy of Science Association and of the Central Division of the American Philosophical Association. His works in the philosophy of science focus, in particular, on the foundations of twentieth-century physics and include, among others, The Shaky Game: Einstein, Realism and the Quantum Theory (1986; 2d ed. 1996).

JULIET FLOYD is an associate professor of philosophy at Boston University. She has published on Kant, Wittgenstein, and the philosophy of mathematics and coedited Future Pasts: Perspectives on the Analytic Tradition in Twentieth-Century Philosophy (2001).

TIM MAUDLIN is a professor of philosophy at Rutgers University. His two main research areas are metaphysics and the philosophy of physics. The author of Quantum Non-Locality and Relativity (1994), he has two books forthcoming from Oxford University Press: Truth and Paradox: Solving the Riddles and Metaphysics Within Physics.

AXEL MUELLER, of the Department of Philosophy at Northwestern University, works in pragmatism, the philosophy of language, and the philosophy of science. His Referenz und Fallibilismus (2001) is a study of Putnam's thought.

JOHN STACHEL is a professor emeritus of physics and director of the Center for Einstein Studies at Boston University. Founder of the Collected Papers of Albert Einstein, he has published extensively in the history and philosophy of theoretical physics, especially on the general theory of relativity. His most recent book is Einstein from 'B' to 'Z' (2002).

ORON SHAGRIR is a member of the Department of Philosophy and chair of the program in Cognitive Science at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. His areas of expertise include the philosophy of mind, cognitive science, and the history and philosophy of computing. His recent papers have been published in Mind, Synthese, the Monist, Minds and Machines, and Theoretical Computer Science.

CHARLES TRAVIS is a professor of philosophy at Northwestern University. He works in the philosophy of mind and the philosophy of language, focusing in particular on the interpretation of Wittgenstein's philosophy in these areas. His books include The Uses of Sense: Wittgenstein's Philosophy of Language (1989), Unshadowed Thought (2000), and Les Liaisons Ordinaires (2002).

Acknowledgments

The papers collected here have not been published before. I would like to thank the authors for their responsiveness and patience during the editorial process. I would also like to thank Hilary Putnam, teacher and friend, who over the years has been a source of inspiration and encouragement.

Terence Moore of Cambridge University Press invited me to edit this volume and provided assistance throughout the process. His recent death is a great loss to the philosophical community. The many volumes he brought into the world, however, are a lasting tribute to his vision.
