

Contents

|  |             |     |
|--|-------------|-----|
| List of figures   | page | ix  |
| Acknowledgments   |             | x   |
| Introduction   |             | I   |
| 1 Collective intentionality and the construction of the social world |             | 5   |
| 1.1 Wide and narrow social constructivism                            |             | 5   |
| 1.2 The contents of this book  |             | 9   |
| 2 Collective intentionality  |             | 17  |
| 2.1 Introduction to collective intentionality                        |             | 17  |
| 2.2 Collective intentions surveyed                                   |             | 18  |
| 2.3 Shared we-attitudes  |             | 22  |
| 2.4 Collective intention to act together                             |             | 26  |
| 2.5 Mutual belief  |             | 33  |
| Appendix: the we-mode and the I-mode                                 |             | 36  |
| 3 Conceptual activity, rule following, and social practices          |             | 40  |
| 3.1 Introduction   |             | 40  |
| 3.2 Sellars on conceptual activity                                   |             | 43  |
| 3.3 Can conceptuality be noncircularly characterized?                |             | 48  |
| 3.4 Elementary conceptual activity                                   |             | 52  |
| 3.5 Collective pattern-governed behavior                             |             | 55  |
| 3.6 Are social practices required for conceptuality?                 |             | 64  |
| 3.7 Conclusion   |             | 76  |
| 4 An account of social practices                                     |             | 78  |
| 4.1 Introduction   |             | 78  |
| 4.2 Collective social action   |             | 80  |
| 4.3 What are social practices?                                       |             | 89  |
| 4.4 Theses regarding core social practices                           |             | 99  |
| 4.5 Presuppositional and motivational reasons                        |             | 108 |

|      |  |     |
|------|--|-----|
| viii | Contents  |     |
| 4.6  | Customs and other kinds of social practices                    | 113 |
| 4.7  | Conclusion   | 121 |
| 5    | A Collective Acceptance account of collective-social notions   | 122 |
| 5.1  | Introduction   | 122 |
| 5.2  | The basic features of the Collective Acceptance account        | 125 |
| 5.3  | The Collective Acceptance account made precise                 | 136 |
| 5.4  | Collective commitment  | 141 |
| 5.5  | Qualifications and additions                                   | 144 |
| 5.6  | Collective acceptance as shared we-attitude                    | 151 |
| 5.7  | Conclusion   | 154 |
| 6    | Social institutions  | 156 |
| 6.1  | Social institutions introduced                                 | 156 |
| 6.2  | The basic ideas  | 162 |
| 6.3  | The final account  | 167 |
| 6.4  | Searle on social institutions                                  | 183 |
| 6.5  | Social organizations and institutional social practices        | 186 |
| 6.6  | Conclusion   | 192 |
|      | Appendix: Institution concepts as reflexive concepts           | 194 |
| 7    | Social practices in a dynamic context: a mathematical analysis | 201 |
| 7.1  | Introduction   | 201 |
| 7.2  | Preconditions of social practices                              | 203 |
| 7.3  | States and sentences   | 205 |
| 7.4  | Frames   | 208 |
| 7.5  | Social practices mathematically analyzed                       | 211 |
| 7.6  | Towards a social dynamics                                      | 214 |
| 7.7  | The individual level   | 218 |
| 7.8  | An example of a social practice                                | 220 |
| 7.9  | Social norms, task-right systems, and social institutions      | 221 |
| 7.10 | Conclusion   | 232 |
|      | Epilogue   | 234 |
|      | Notes   | 237 |
|      | References  | 266 |
|      | Index   | 272 |