

Contents

Acknowledgements	page vi
Introduction	I
1. Types of honesty: civil and domestical conversation	20
2. From rhetoric to conversation: reading for Cicero in The Book of the Courtier	43
3. Honest rivalries: Tudor humanism and linguistic and social reform	65
4. Honest speakers: sociable commerce and civil conversation	87
5. A commonwealth of letters: Harvey and Spenser in dialogue	113
6. A new poet, a new social economy: homosociality in The Shepheardes Calender	139
Conclusion	168
Notes	171
Bibliography	195
Index	208