The Social Life of Emotions

This book showcases new research and theory about the way in which the social environment shapes, and is shaped by, emotion. The book has three sections, each of which addresses a different level of sociality: interpersonal, intragroup, and intergroup. The first section refers to the links between specific individuals, the second to categories that define multiple individuals as an entity, and the final to the boundaries between groups. Emotions are found in each of these levels, and the dynamics involved in these types of relationships are part of what it is to experience emotion. The chapters show how all three types of social relationships generate, and are generated by, emotions. In doing so, this book locates emotional experiences in the larger social context.

Larissa Z. Tiedens is Associate Professor of Organizational Behavior at the Stanford Graduate School of Business. She earned her B.A. in Psychology at Carleton College and her Ph.D. in Social Psychology at the University of Michigan. Her research has focused on emotions in social contexts, cognitive consequences of emotions, and processes involved in stratification.

Colin Wayne Leach is Associate Professor in the Social Psychology Program at the University of California, Santa Cruz. He received his academic training at Boston University, the University of Michigan, and the University of California, Berkeley. He is co-editor of Immigrant Life in the U.S.: Multi-disciplinary Perspectives.

Acknowledgments

This book began as a symposium at the 2001 American Psychological Association convention in San Francisco called, “Social Emotions: Feelings in Interpersonal and Intergroup Relations.” We are grateful to Heather Smith for coorganizing the symposium and to Sharon Panulla for suggesting that the topic would make a good book. In addition, Russell Spears provided valuable encouragement and advice in the early stages.

More generally, “The Los Gatos Group” provided a wonderful environment for more discussion of ideas related to the social context of emotion and we thank Eileen Zurbruggen for her insights and her patience with us. Tony Manstead introduced us to Phil Laughlin at Cambridge, who made the process as easy as possible. We have also been greatly helped by Ena Inesi and Sandy Berg, and we very much appreciate the long hours they spent with the manuscript. In addition, Zachary Dorsey at TechBooks was extremely helpful and flexible in getting the final version put together. This book came into existence during a period in which both of our emotional lives were enriched by new contexts and relationships, and we are thankful for those.
