

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	page xiii
Abbreviations of Primary Texts	xv
Preface	xix
Introduction	1
I. The Standard View of Kierkegaard's Relation to Hegel	3
II. Thulstrup's Formulation of the Standard View	14
III. The Reception of the Issue after Thulstrup	27
IV. Thesis and Methodological Considerations	32
1 Kierkegaard and Danish Hegelianism	45
I. Right and Left Hegelianism in Prussia and the German States	45
II. The Danish Hegelians	50
III. The Critics of Hegel in Denmark	70
Appendix: Historical and Biographical Overview	83
2 Traces of Hegel in From Papers of One Still Living and the Early Works	90
I. Hegel's Absence in "Another Defense of Woman's Great Abilities"	92
II. Hegel and Kierkegaard's Early Theory of Stages	97
III. Von Jumping-Jack in The Battle between the Old and the New Soap-Cellars	105
IV. Heiberg's Perseus and From the Papers of One Still Living	115
A. Some Background Information about Perseus	115
B. References to the Beginning of Philosophy in Hegel's Logic	118
C. References to the Stages of Poetry in Hegel and Heiberg	123
D. The Reception of From the Papers of One Still Living	126

viii	CONTENTS
3	The Ironic Thesis and Hegel's Presence in The Concept of Irony	132
	I. The Ironic Thesis	135
	II. Kierkegaard's Own Assessment of His Hegelianism	141
	III. The Structure of the Text	144
	IV. Hegel's Account of the Daimon	150
	V. Hegel's Account of Socrates vis-à-vis the Other Greek Schools	157
	VI. Hegel's Account of Socrates as the Founder of Morality	161
	VII. Hegel's Account of Irony and the Ironic Subject	166
	VIII. Hegel's Criticism of Romantic Irony	170
4	Hegel's Aufhebung and Kierkegaard's Either/Or	182
	I. The Title " Either/Or " and Its Origin	184
	II. The Problem of the Aufhebung of the Law of Excluded Middle	195
	III. The Work of Art and Its Dialectic	209
	IV. Two Interpretations of Antigone	218
	V. The Aesthetic Validity of Marriage: "Love's Dialectic"	225
5	Kierkegaard's Polemic with Martensen in Johannes Climacus , or De omnibus dubitandum est	238
	I. The Allusion to Martensen in the Title	242
	II. Kierkegaard's Discussion of Absolute Knowing	249
	A. The Concept of Absolute Knowing in Hegel	250
	B. Johannes Climacus and Absolute Knowing	254
	III. The Individual and the Subjective Beginning of Philosophy with Doubt	261
	A. Doubt and the Justification of Science in Hegel	262
	B. Johannes Climacus' Examination of Subjective Doubt	263
	IV. Kierkegaard's Appropriation of Hegel on "Sense-Certainty"	268
	A. Hegel's Analysis of "Sense-Certainty"	269
	B. Johannes Climacus, Language, and Consciousness	273
6	Kierkegaard's Repetition and Hegel's Dialectical Mediation	282
	I. The Contradiction of Consciousness in De Omnibus	284
	II. Repetition as an Ethical Concept	288
	III. Repetition, Mediation, and Movement in Logic	292
	IV. Repetition as a Religious Concept	297
7	Hegel's View of Moral Conscience and Kierkegaard's Interpretation of Abraham	305
	I. Descartes and Martensen in the Preface	307

	CONTENTS	ix
II. Problema I: The Murderer Sand and Kierkegaard's Abraham		310
A. Hegel's View of Ethics and the Moral Conscience		310
B. Johannes de silentio's Criticism		315
C. An Analogous Example		321
III. Problema II: Absolute Duty and the Inner and the Outer		323
IV. Problema III: The Problem of Communication and Justification		329
8 Martensen's Doctrine of Immanence and Kierkegaard's Transcendence in the Philosophical Fragments		336
I. The Paradox and Mediation		339
A. Climacus' Doctrine of the Paradox		339
B. The Role of Mediation		341
C. The Allusions to Martensen		345
D. The Criticism of Martensen's Article on Mediation		347
II. The Modal Categories		355
III. Necessity in History		359
IV. The Absolute Method		368
9 The Dispute with Adler in The Concept of Anxiety		378
I. Actuality and the Spheres of Logic and Existence		380
II. Immediacy and Faith		385
III. Reconciliation and Mediation		390
IV. Movement in Logic		396
A. Hegel's Conception of Dialectical Movement		397
B. Vigilius Haufniensis' Criticism		399
V. Quantity, Quality, and the Leap		405
VI. Innocence and Immediacy		411
A. Hegel's Account of the Original Sin		412
B. Vigilius Haufniensis' Criticism of Innocence as Immediacy		414
10 The Polemic with Heiberg in Prefaces		419
I. Kierkegaard's Relation to Heiberg Immediately Prior to Prefaces		421
II. Systematic Philosophy and the Conception of Prefaces as a Work		424
III. References to the System in Preface I		427
IV. The Reference to the Systematic Tendency in Preface VI		431
V. Hegel and Mediation in Preface VII		437
VI. Hegel and Hegelians in Preface VIII		441

x	CONTENTS
11	Subjective and Objective Thinking: Hegel in the Concluding Unscientific Postscript	448
	I. The True Targets of the Postscript	453
	II. Speculative Philosophy and Eternal Happiness	466
	III. Speculative Philosophy and the Paradox of Christianity	470
	IV. Speculative Philosophy's Conceptual Understanding of Christianity	472
	A. Hegel's Conceptual Understanding of Christianity	472
	B. Climacus' Criticism of Christianity as a Form of Knowing	476
	V. Speculative Philosophy and Forgetting Oneself	483
	VI. The Criticism of the Presuppositionless Beginning	488
	VII. The Criticism of the World-Historical Perspective	497
	VIII. The Criticism of the Unity of Thought and Being	502
	IX. Speculative Philosophy and the Law of Excluded Middle	510
	X. The Absence of an Ethics in the System	515
12	Adler's Confusions and the Results of Hegel's Philosophy	524
	I. Kierkegaard's Contact with Adler	526
	II. Christianity as a Sublated Concept	532
	III. Adler's Attempt to Explain His Revelation	537
	IV. Adler and the Absence of an Ethics in Hegel	543
13	Kierkegaard's Phenomenology of Despair in The Sickness unto Death	550
	I. Speculative Thought's Mistaken Moral Psychology	553
	II. The Misguided Attempt to Comprehend Sin	559
	III. Rational Theology or the Pastor's Rational Justification of Faith	564
	IV. Martensen and the God-Man	567
	V. Anti-Climacus' Dialectic and Phenomenology	572
	A. Hegel's Dialectical Method	573
	B. Phenomenology and Dialectic in "The Forms of This Sickness"	578
	C. Phenomenology and Dialectic in "The Continuance of Sin"	584
	D. A Change in Position?	587
14	Kierkegaard and the Development of Nineteenth-Century Continental Philosophy: Conclusions, Reflections, and Reevaluations	596
	I. The Results of the Present Study: Attempt at an Overview	597

CONTENTS	xi
A. The First Period: 1834–1843	597
B. The Second Period: 1843–1846	605
C. The Third Period: 1847–1855	612
D. Conclusions about the Development of Kierkegaard's Relation to Hegel	615
II. The Standard Picture of the History of Nineteenth- Century Continental Philosophy	618
III. The Consequences of the Present Study for the Standard Picture	622
IV. Kierkegaard, Hegel, and the Nature of Nineteenth- Century Continental Philosophy	632
A. Some Examples Indicative of a Metalevel Dispute	633
B. Kierkegaard's Conception of Himself and of Philosophy	640
C. The Classification of Kierkegaard in the History of Nineteenth-Century Continental Philosophy	650
Foreign Language Summaries	653
Bibliographies	659
Subject Index	685
Index of Persons	689