

Cambridge University Press

0521828732 - The 1702 Chair of Chemistry at Cambridge: Transformation and Change

Edited by Mary D. Archer and Christopher D. Haley

Table of Contents

More information

---

Contents

---

List of contributors	page vii
Preface	xv
 Holders of the 1702 Chair of Chemistry at Cambridge	xviii
 Illustration acknowledgements	xix
1 ‘The deplorable frenzy’: the slow legitimisation of chemical practice at Cambridge University	1
Kevin C. Knox
2 Vigani and after: chemical enterprise in Cambridge 1680–1780	31
Simon Schaffer and Larry Stewart
3 Richard Watson: gaiters and gunpowder	57
Colin Russell
4 Lavoisier’s chemistry comes to Cambridge	84
Christopher Haley and Peter Wothers
5 Smithson Tennant: the innovative and eccentric eighth Professor of Chemistry	113
Melvyn Usselman
6 Coming and going: the fitful career of James Cumming	138
William Brock
7 Chemistry at Cambridge under George Downing Liveing	166
John Shorter
8 The rise and fall of the ‘Papal State’	189
Arnold Thackray and Mary Ellen Bowden

Cambridge University Press

0521828732 - The 1702 Chair of Chemistry at Cambridge: Transformation and Change

Edited by Mary D. Archer and Christopher D. Haley

Table of Contents

More information

vi	Contents
9	Alexander Todd: a new direction in organic chemistry James Baddiley and Daniel M. Brown	210
10	Ralph Alexander Raphael: organic synthesis – elegance, efficiency and the unexpected Bill Nolan, Dudley Williams and Robert Ramage	237
11	Discovering the wonders of how Nature builds its molecules Alan Battersby	257
12	Chemistry in a changing world: new tools for the modern molecule maker Steven Ley	283
	Index	304