

Contents

Acknowledgements	page vii
Chronology	viii
Further reading	xi
Note on texts and translations	xiii
Introduction	I
Philosophical and theological writings	23
1 The Christianity of reason (c. 1753)	25
2 On the reality of things outside God (1763)	30
3 Spinoza only put Leibniz on the track of [his theory of] pre-established harmony (1763)	32
4 On the origin of revealed religion (1763 or 1764)	35
5 Leibniz on eternal punishment (1773)	37
6 [Editorial commentary on the 'Fragments' of Reimarus, 1777]	61
7 On the proof of the spirit and of power (1777)	83
8 The Testament of St John (1777)	89
9 A rejoinder (1778)	95
10 A parable (1778)	110
11 Axioms (1778)	120

Contents

12	New hypothesis on the evangelists as merely human historians (1778)	148
13	Necessary answer to a very unnecessary question of Herr Hauptpastor Goeze of Hamburg (1778)	172
14	The religion of Christ (1780)	178
15	That more than five senses are possible for human beings (c. 1780)	180
16	Ernst and Falk: dialogues for Freemasons (1778–80)	184
17	The education of the human race (1777–80)	217
18	[Friedrich Heinrich Jacobi, Recollections of conversations with Lessing in July and August 1780 (1785)]	241
	Index	257