Contents

Acknowledgments
List of abbreviations
Note on translations

Prologue: “The most cursed dilettante”
1 The individual and the universal
2 Night and day
3 Body and soul
4 The ancient in the modern

References
Index
Full contents

Acknowledgments xii
List of abbreviations xiv
Note on translations xvi

Prologue: “The most cursed dilettante” 1
The advent of the new psychology 3
Jung without Freud 11
Complex psychology 13
The new encyclopedia 18
The incomplete works of Jung 22
Historical cubism 26

1 The individual and the universal 29
The personal equation: from astronomy to psychology 30
The two popes: James and Wundt 31
Human, cultural and historical sciences? 37
Individual psychology 40
Differential psychology 42
Becoming a psychiatrist 44
Differences in associations 45
Critical responses 47
The personal equation in psychoanalysis 50
Jung and James 57
Fundamental mentalities 61
“Our laboratory is the world” 63
The Zürich school 66
Types in dialogue 68
Moltzer’s intuition 70
Psychology’s relativity problem 72
The theory of attitudes 74
Schism in the Jungian school? 81
Critical psychology or characterology? 83
Psychology and the science question 87

2 Night and day 100
Dream cultures 100
The philosophy of sleep 104
x Full contents

The hidden language of the soul 108
Diagnostic dreams 111
Dreams and madness 113
The psychologization of the dream 115
Symbolism and associationism 118
From dreams to the unconscious 120
Tell me your dreams 122
Dreams in psychical research and subliminal psychology 124
From India to the planet Mars 127
The interpretation of dreams 129
A career in dreams 131
The psychology of madness 133
Dreams, myths, and the collective unconscious 137
The dream problem 140
The proof is in dreams 152
Children’s dreams 157
Dreams and race 158
The multiplicity of dreams 159

3 Body and soul 163
Genealogies of the unconscious 164
The philosophy of the unconscious 168
Kant 168
Schelling 171
Schopenhauer 173
Carus 174
Von Hartmann 175
Soul and life 179
Entelechy 180
The memory question 182
Ancestral memories 182
Semon’s engrams 189
The riddle of instincts 191
The sick animal: Nietzsche’s instincts 192
The instincts of psychology 194
Jung’s philosophical education 197
Energy and fatigue 202
The energies of men 204
Interest 206
Creative evolution 207
Freud, Jung, and the Libido 210
Cryptomnesia and the history of the race 213
Libido, hormé, élán vital 227
Primitive energetics 230
Jung’s phylogetic unconscious 232
Instinct and the unconscious 240
The energy of the soul 243
Instinct, Christianity, and animals 249
Instincts and the autonomy of psychology 253
Archetypes in animals 256
Full contents

The essence of the psychical 258
Pathologies of modernity 262
Biological reformulations 263
Energy and holism 268

4 The ancient in the modern 271
The birth of the human sciences 271
Elementary thoughts 272
Evolutionary anthropology 274
Franz Boas 276
Ethnopsychology 278
Crowd psychology 283
Imitation 284
Collective psychology 285
Le Bon 286
Baldwin 287
Collective representations 288
Primitive mentality 290
Mana 293
Manikins and churingas 295
The history of thought 297
The individual and the collective 302
Jung and Bastian 310
Racial inheritance or categories of the imagination? 311
Mystical participation 314
A psychologist at large 316
New Mexico 317
Africa 321
Primitives and moderns 323
Jung among the anthropologists 328
The psychology of the political 338
From complex psychology to the Jungian School 344
Preparing for the end 348

References 353
Index 378