

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-83225-0 - A Concise History of Finland
David Kirby
Frontmatter
More information

---

A Concise History of Finland

Few countries in Europe have undergone such rapid social, political, and economic changes as Finland has during the last fifty years. David Kirby here sets out the fascinating history of this northern country, for centuries on the east–west divide of Europe, a country not blessed by nature, most of whose inhabitants still earned a living from farming fifty years ago, but which today is one of the most prosperous members of the European Union. He shows how this small country was able not only to survive in peace and war, but also to preserve and develop its own highly distinctive identity, neither Scandinavian nor eastern European. He traces the evolution of the idea of a Finnish national state, from the long centuries as part of the Swedish realm, through self-government within the Russian Empire, and into the stormy and tragic birth of the independent state in the twentieth century.

DAVID KIRBY is Professor of Modern History at the School of Slavonic and East European Studies of University College London. His previous publications include The Baltic World 1772–1993: Europe's Northern Periphery in an Age of Change (1995) and The Baltic and North Seas (with Merja-Liisa Hinkkanen, 2000).

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-83225-0 - A Concise History of Finland
David Kirby
Frontmatter
More information

---

CAMBRIDGE CONCISE HISTORIES

This is a series of illustrated ‘concise histories’ of selected individual countries, intended both as university and college textbooks and as general historical introductions for general readers, travellers, and members of the business community.

For a list of titles in the series, see end of book.

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-83225-0 - A Concise History of Finland
David Kirby
Frontmatter
More information

---

A Concise History of Finland

DAVID KIRBY

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-83225-0 - A Concise History of Finland
David Kirby
Frontmatter
More information

---

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521539890

© David Kirby 2006

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2006

Reprinted 2014

Printed in the United Kingdom by Clays, St Ives plc.

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

ISBN-13 978-0-521-83225-0 hardback

ISBN-13 978-0-521-53989-0 paperback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-83225-0 - A Concise History of Finland
David Kirby
Frontmatter
More information

---

For the two Ls in my life –
Laurie and Louis

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-83225-0 - A Concise History of Finland

David Kirby

Frontmatter

More information

---

CONTENTS

List of illustrations	page viii
Preface	xiii
1 A medieval marchland	1
2 The Swedish legacy	30
3 From Stockholm to St Petersburg, 1780–1860	68
4 The embryonic state, 1860–1907	105
5 The independent state, 1907–37	150
6 War and peace, 1939–56	197
7 The Kekkonen era, 1956–81	245
8 From nation state to Eurostate	276
Key dates	306
Presidents of Finland	314
Elections and governments	315
Notes	320
Guide to further reading	323
Index	330

ILLUSTRATIONS

PLATES

1	Map of northern Europe, printed in Sebastian Münster's Cosmographia of 1552 (National Board of Antiquities)	page 5
2	Bishop Henry trampling his murderer Lalli underfoot. From the Missale Aboense of 1448 (National Board of Antiquities)	7
3	The Castle of Viipuri on the eastern frontier (National Board of Antiquities)	15
4	Burn-beat cultivation (National Board of Antiquities: J. K. Inha, 1893)	22
5	A sergeant's dwelling, Juva (National Board of Antiquities: August Puranen, 1956)	33
6	Preparing birch-bark bread (National Board of Antiquities: Samuli Paulaharju, 1917)	49
7	Tar-boats on the Oulu river (National Board of Antiquities)	50
8	Rank and title: Hietaniemi cemetery, Helsinki	54
9	The grammar school in Porvoo	60
10	Daniel Juslenius, an early Finnish patriot (National Board of Antiquities. Copy of a painting in the style of Lorenz Pasch the elder: T. Syrjänen, 1987)	62

	Illustrations	ix
11	Imperial Helsinki: Senate Square	81
12	Väinämöinen playing his lyre (National Board of Antiquities)	92
13	The capture of the fortress of Bomarsund by French and British troops, 1854 (National Board of Antiquities. Lithograph by H. Janoin: Harald Malmgren)	103
14	Main entrance to the company offices, Verla pulp mill (National Board of Antiquities)	111
15	Otto Rissanen, with his birch-bark knapsack over his shoulder, setting off for work in the forests (National Board of Antiquities: Ahti Rytkönen, 1927)	114
16	Centenary commemorative medal for the 'Friends of Sobriety' ( Raittiuden Ystävät ) society (National Museum of Finland: the medal was made in 1953 by Aimo Tukiainen: E. Laakso, 1953)	116
17	Finland. An English journal devoted to the cause of the Finnish people, 1899 (National Board of Antiquities)	126
18	'Swedes and Finns' (National Board of Antiquities: A. Federley, Fyren , no.35, 1907)	132
19	Workers in a veneer factory (National Board of Antiquities)	136
20	Cossacks on the streets of Helsinki, 1906 (Labour Archives, Helsinki)	146
21	'One hundred years in captivity' (National Board of Antiquities: A. Federley, Fyren , no.10, 1908)	153
22	'If prohibition were to become a reality. . .' (National Board of Antiquities: O.Furuhjelm, Fyren , no.46, 1907)	155
23	The ratification of the 1919 Form of Government Act by the Regent of Finland, General Mannerheim (Labour Archives, Helsinki)	164
24	The white hero immortalised in stone: the memorial to the fallen, Lapua (National Board of Antiquities)	175
25	Separating the black sheep from the white (Labour Archives, Helsinki)	183

x	Illustrations
26	The bus service comes to the village (National Board of Antiquities: Pekka Kyytinen)	189
27	The bootlegger thwarted: a pile of canisters confiscated by the police (Labour Archives, Helsinki)	192
28	Väinö Tanner (Board of National Antiquities: O. Pietinen, 1931)	194
29	'For Karelia' (National Board of Antiquities: O. A. Väisänen)	201
30	Children in Helsinki preparing for evacuation, 1939 (Labour Archives, Helsinki)	212
31	Sewing tracksuits for sportsmen (National Board of Antiquities, V. Pietinen, 1940)	217
32	President Ryti, Prime Minister Rangell, and Marshal Mannerheim (National Board of Antiquities)	228
33	President Paasikivi and the 'Big Three' government, 1946 (Labour Archives, Helsinki)	240
34	The Olympic games in Helsinki, 1952 (National Board of Antiquities)	241
35	President Kennedy welcoming President Kekkonen to the United States, 1961 (National Board of Antiquities)	259
36	Finnish communism, old-style, new-style (National Board of Antiquities)	273
37	A new settler farmstead in the early 1950s (National Board of Antiquities: P. Kyytinen)	287
38	Log-cabin consumerism: the Helsinki trade fair, 1958 (National Board of Antiquities)	288
39	'A nursery for every block' (National Board of Antiquities)	295
40	'Once we got paid for clearing rocks. . .' (Labour Archives, Helsinki)	297

Cambridge University Press
978-0-521-83225-0 - A Concise History of Finland
David Kirby
Frontmatter
More information

---

Illustrations xi

MAPS

1	The kingdom of Sweden in the late middle ages	19
2	The frontiers of Finland, 1595–1812	32
3	The Winter War, 1939–40	209
4	Finland at war, 1941–45	223
5	Finland at the beginning of the twenty-first century	285

FIGURES

1	Elections in Finland, 1907–39	316
2	Elections in Finland, 1945–2003	317
3	Participation in government, 1917–2003	318

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-83225-0 - A Concise History of Finland

David Kirby

Frontmatter

More information

---

PREFACE

Finland can fairly lay claim to have been one of the big success stories of the modern age. The transformation of what less than a century ago was a poor agrarian land on the northern periphery of Europe into one of the most prosperous states of the European Union today is a remarkable story, but is by no means an uneventful one. The gaining of independence from Russia in 1918 was accompanied by a bitter civil war which left its scars upon the body politic of Finland for decades. Finland fought three wars between 1939 and 1945, twice against the Soviet Union and once against Germany, and suffered grievous loss of life in addition to almost a tenth of its territory. The political history of the independent republic was for much of the twentieth century conflict-ridden and far removed from the image of consensual stability and good European membership that is projected today. The reinvention of Finland over the past two decades as a confident and assertive Eurostate, no longer in the shadow of the Soviet Union, has also been paralleled by a re-evaluation of the nation's history and identity. In particular, Finland's recent past has come under severe scrutiny, as part of what may be seen as a purging process not dissimilar to the examination in eastern European countries of 'blank spots' in the recent past.

This reassessment of the nation's past constitutes one of the starting-points for this book. It is primarily a political history, though due consideration is given to the social, cultural, and economic forces which have shaped that history, both in the short term and over the centuries.

Whilst adopting a conventional chronological structure, I have attempted to highlight those features which have made Finland what it is today. In particular, I have highlighted the spatial, temporal, and political dimensions that have helped determine how language and culture have evolved. The ways in which the inhabitants of a cold and rather infertile northern land have sought to adapt and innovate, how the land has been a means of sustenance and a symbol of nationhood, are at the heart of being Finnish. The struggle to wrest a living from the soil is an epic and abiding theme, running from the earliest days of human settlement as the massive ice-cap began to retreat, right up to the huge efforts in the late 1940s to resettle thousands of refugees. In this sense, Finland has been very much a frontier country, and this may well account for the two contradictory and conflicting forces that have made their mark in Finnish life over the centuries. The first seems to be strongly driven by a desire to harness and utilise all possible resources. It has created a strong tradition of obedience to authority, reinforced by the Lutheran church, strong bureaucratic institutions, and a rigid respect for the law, but it has also preferred co-operation and consensus to coercion. The second is a far less formally defined tradition, of wildness, lawlessness, a kind of frontiersman mentality that ignores or disobeys the law. The seven brothers of Aleksis Kivi's eponymous nineteenth-century novel, who flee the constraints of civilisation to live a wild, free life; the puukkojunkkarit or roaring boys of Ostrobothnia, with their big knives and boastful swagger; the bootleggers of the inter-war prohibition era, purveying lethal alcohol for thirsty customers around the land; even the lost, pathetic characters of Aki Kaurismäki's films: all stand within this loose tradition of truculent defiance, with its deep distrust of the herrat, or gentlefolk. This is a tradition that is easily lost in the glossy presentation of the success story, but it has also played a part in shaping the Finland of today.

The history of modern Finland seems to alternate between long periods of relative tranquillity and little visible change and short, intense bursts in which everything is transformed, and it appears to be going through one of these periods at the present time. I have attempted to understand and make sense of these changes against the background of a recent past that I myself experienced at first hand, and which shaped my own perceptions of and ideas about Finland, and I freely admit that many of my conclusions may be coloured by this experience. Over the years, I have benefited greatly from discussions with colleagues in Finland and the UK; without this, I would not have been able to write this book, and I would like to thank them all for their kindness and support. I must also thank the personnel of the National Board of Antiquities and of the Labour Archives in Helsinki for their help in the selection of the plates. I also wish to thank the trustees of the Presidential Archive for allowing me to reproduce the photograph of President Kekkonen being welcomed by President Kennedy in 1961.

Preface

xv

Finland is officially a two-language state, and much of the historical terminology is of Swedish origin. Where I have deemed it appropriate, I have given the Swedish term with a Finnish equivalent. The names of provinces, counties, and towns are given only in Finnish, except in cases where historically the Swedish term is better known, for example, in the Treaty of Nystad of 1721. I have also given in parentheses, and in some cases used, the Finnish term for major institutions, such as the parliament.