

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-83640-1 - Cezanne/Pissarro, Johns/Rauschenberg: Comparative Studies on Intersubjectivity in Modern Art

Joachim Pissarro

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	page xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
INTRODUCTION
Some Preliminary Questions	2
Art History as a Human Science Concerned with the Study of Humankind and the Possibility of Mutual Understanding	6
The Fallacies of Modernism and the Historicist Approach to Art History	8
Dead History vs. Interpretive History	9
PART 1. BEGINNINGS
Pissarro and Cézanne, Johns and Rauschenberg
Bookends of Modernism	14
Meeting Each Other (and Others)	18
From One World to Another	22
Without a Master: The Autonomy of the Individual	24
Freely Going beyond Painting	27
New Definitions of What Is Beautiful	30
PART 2. MODERNISM AS A CHAIN OF CRESTS
Nietzsche, Fry, Greenberg, Rewald
THE THEORY OF THE CHAIN OF CRESTS: MODERNISM AS A HISTORICISM	38
Modernism as a System of Evaluation of Modern Art	38
Nietzsche, Fry, Rewald, and Greenberg: The Theory of “The Chain of Crests”	39
Truth Has Greater Value than Enthusiasm	43
Greenberg’s Dogmatic Statements Fulfilled the Public’s Need for Truth	44
The Two Principal Problems of Historicism	45
The Divide between Modernism and Post-Modernism	46
Historicist Perspective: Dogmatism and Individualism	48
Beginning and End of Modernism	49
Modernism and History	52

CARVING OUT THE MODERNIST PERIOD	54
Greenberg's Debt to Fry	54
Dividing Lines and Categories	54
The Three Cézannes	55
Monologues vs. Dialogues	57
PISSARRO'S AND CÉZANNE'S "TENDENCY TO FLATNESS"	59
From Manet to New York	61
Manet's "Frankness" and Greenberg's Silence	62
PART 3. THE SELF IN RELATION TO THE OTHER
APORIAS OF MODERNISM: WHAT ALTERNATIVE IS THERE?	66
Various Aspects of the Antinomy of Modernism: Pursuit of the Self vs. Sharing with Others	66
From the Individual Mark to Its Erasure	68
An Intermediary Language	69
A Bridge between Modernity and Modernism: The Individual	74
Why Did Greenberg Not Deal with Kant's "Grund-Idee":
Communication?	75
Toward a Kantian Critique of a "Kantian" Critic	78
Ambivalent "We"	80
THE CRITICIST TRADITION AND THE OTHER: KANT	81
Truth and Communication	81
The Problem of Representation Takes Root in the Subject of the
Representation (Not in the Object)	82
The Antinomy of the Judgment of Taste: Demanding General Assent vs.
Individual Freedom to Be Different	84
Judges and Judged, or Givers and Takers	86
The Central Position of Communication	88
THE CRITICIST TRADITION AND THE OTHER: FICHTE	89
From the "Urge to Communicate" to the "Duties of the Aesthetical Artist"	89
A Definition of Man Implies a Definition of Man
with Others	96
Fichte's Paradox: Being at One with Oneself, or Outside of One's Self	97
CONCLUSION	100
Differences between Kant and Fichte on the Concept of Intersubjectivity:
The Role of Ethics in Aesthetics	100
The Criticist Tradition Today: Language, Communication, Mutual
Understanding (Verständigung)	104
Application of Habermas's Theory of Communication:
Modernist Models vs. White Contradictions	107

Contentsix*PART 4. DIALOGUES*Intersubjectivity at Work between Pissarro and Cézanne, and between Johns and Rauschenberg

Pissarro Buys Himself a Cézanne	114
“Too Much Good Painting in His Bad Pictures”	115
Solitude vs. Solidarity	117
On Being or Becoming a Genius	121
Beginnings and Transformations of the Self	123
Pissarro’s Role in Cézanne’s Development: His Frustration with Bernard’s Account, and Annoyance at Gauguin	127
Fry’s Interpretation of the Relationship between Pissarro and Cézanne	128
Johns’s Dialectic: Between Reproducible Icons and Pictorial Signs	133
Conversations with Oneself and Others	134
Pissarro and Cézanne Become One (Almost)	137
Rauschenberg Incorporates a Painting by Johns into His Own Work	138
Equal Rights, Individualism, and Anarchy	140
What These Artists Found in Each Other: A Process of Liberation	144
The Problems of the Uniqueness, Unrepeatability, and Unerasability of a Single Creative Act	148
Music and “Free-Form Art”	160
Sculpting Paint: Representation or Presentation?	174
The Duchamp Factor	181
What Cézanne, Pissarro, Johns, and Rauschenberg Share with Each Other	184
Four Concepts: “Gap” (Rauschenberg) vs. “Relationship” (Johns)/Impossible “Certainty” (Cézanne) and Impossible “Perfection” (Pissarro)	188
Pissarro’s “Dream,” Rauschenberg’s “Gap,” and Kant’s “Gulf” between the Idea and Its Realization	195
“The Commonplace Is Everyone’s and Mine” (Sartre)	197
Cézanne’s and Pissarro’s “Recording Devices” of the Commonplace	200
From “Dirty Painting” to an Aesthetic of Trash	202
Selflessness	208
Altruism	211
The Notion of Openness, and How It Leads to “Creating Anew”	214

PART 5. AN ART HISTORY MADE FOR AND BY ARTISTS

Pluralism and Dialogues vs. Modernism	218
Historicism, Arbitrary Taste, and the “Humble Prose of Living”	219
A Modern Artist’s Critique of Modernism	222
Toward a Critique of the Notion of “Influence”	225
Imagination vs. Imitation of the Past	227
Analogies vs. Influences	231
Dialogues Between the Art of the Present and the Art of the Past	242
The Conflict between Subjectivity and Objectivity	249

Cambridge University Press

978-0-521-83640-1 - Cezanne/Pissarro, Johns/Rauschenberg: Comparative Studies on Intersubjectivity in Modern Art

Joachim Pissarro

Table of Contents

More information

x

Contents

CONCLUSION

Opening Up	256
Where Are We Today? And What Does Intersubjectivity Mean to Us?	260

Notes	263
--------------	-----

Bibliography	299
---------------------	-----

Index	307
--------------	-----