THE CAMBRIDGE COMPANION TO HOBBES'S LEVIATHAN

The Cambridge Companion to Hobbes's 'Leviathan' makes a new departure in Hobbes scholarship, addressing a philosopher whose major works, including Leviathan, were published in Latin on the Continent and whose impact was as great on Continental European theories of state and legal systems as it was at home. This volume is a systematic attempt to incorporate work from both the Anglophone and Continental traditions, bringing together newly commissioned work by scholars from ten different countries in a topic-by-topic sequence of essays that follows the structure of Leviathan, reexamining the relationship among Hobbes's physics, metaphysics, politics, psychology, and religion. Collectively they showcase important revisionist scholarship that recontextualizes Leviathan and its reception, demonstrating the degree to which Hobbes was indebted to the long tradition of European humanist thought. This Cambridge Companion shows that Hobbes's legacy was never lost and that he belongs to a tradition of reflection on political theory and governance that is still alive, both in Europe and in the diaspora.

Patricia Springborg, formerly a professor in political theory at the University of Sydney, is now professor in the School of Economics of the Free University of Bolzano, Italy. A member of the Australian Academy of the Social Sciences, she has been a visiting Fellow at research institutes in Berlin, Oxford, and Uppsala, and was the recipient of a John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Award, taken up at the Brookings Institution in Washington, D.C. She is the author of The Problem of Human Needs and the Critique of Civilization, Royal Persons, Western Republicanism and the Oriental Prince, Mary Astell: Theorist of Freedom from Domination, and three editions of Mary Astell's writings. She has also published a number of articles on Hobbes and has coedited a critical edition of Hobbes's Historia Ecclesiastica.

CONTRIBUTORS

HORST BREDEKAMP studied art history, archaeology, philosophy, and sociology in Kiel, Munich, Berlin, and Marburg and worked at the museum of sculpture in Frankfurt/Main before becoming professor of art history at the University of Hamburg and now at the Humboldt-University; he is also a Permanent Fellow of the Wissenschaftskolleg of Berlin. For his book, Thomas Hobbes, Visuelle Strategien. Der Leviathan: Das Urbild des modernen Staates he was awarded the Sigmund Freud-Prize of the German Academy of language and literature (2001). Other honours include the Aby M. Warburg Prize of the City of Hamburg (2005) and the Hans-Georg Gadamer-Lecture of the University of Heidelberg (2005).

JEFFREY R. COLLINS is an Assistant Professor of History at Queen's University in Kingston, Ontario. He held a Jacob Javits Fellowship at Harvard University (1993–7) and served as a Harper Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of Chicago (2001–4). He has published several articles on Thomas Hobbes, and his first book, The Allegiance of Thomas Hobbes, appeared in 2005.

EDWIN CURLEY is the James B. and Grace J. Nelson Professor of Philosophy at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. For years his primary research project has been a translation of the works of Spinoza, now nearing completion. In spare moments he writes on Hobbes's critique of religion and on the development of religious toleration.

ROBERTO FARNETI is Research Associate in the Department of Philosophy of the University of Bologna. He has published articles on Hobbes (in Italian and in English) as well as on modern and contemporary political philosophy in Critical Inquiry, Philosophy and Social Criticism, and History of Political Thought. His book Il canone moderno: Filosofia politica e genealogia received a special nomination at the National Awards for Philosophy in Italy in 2003. He is currently completing a book manuscript in English on the contemporary challenges to the classical understanding of normativity.

LUC FOISNEAU is a Senior Research Fellow at CNRS (the French National Centre for Scientific Research), in Paris and is the author of Hobbes et la toute-puissance de Dieu (Paris, 2000) which was awarded the Prix de l'association des professeurs de Sciences Po-Paris in 2001. He coedited (with T. Sorell) Leviathan After 350 Years (Oxford, 2004) and (with G. Wright) New Critical Perspectives on Hobbes's Leviathan upon the 350th Anniversary of Its Publication (Milan, 2004).

KINCH HOEKSTRA is Fellow in Ancient and Modern Philosophy and the Senior Tutor at Balliol College, Oxford. His publications include articles on Hobbes's conceptions of philosophy, prophecy, natural law, tyranny, democracy, mixed government, political obligation, and the rationality of obedience to the law.

DIETER HÜNING teaches at the Universität Siegen and also at the Philipps-Universität Marburg. His Ph.D. dissertation was published as Freiheit und Herrschaft in der Rechtsphilosophie des Thomas Hobbes (Berlin, 1998). He edited a collected volume for Hobbes's 350th jubilee, Der lange Schatten des Leviathan. Hobbes' politische Philosophie nach 350 Jahren, and is now working on a larger study on 'The foundation of criminal law in natural law between Grotius and Kant'.

LUCIEN JAUME is Research Director at CNRS (CEVIPOF) and Associate Professor at Sciences Po (Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Paris) and at the European School for Advanced Studies in Naples. He has published books on Hobbes, Jacobinism, and liberalism: L'individu effacé ou le paradoxe du libéralisme français (1997) and La liberté et la loi. Les origines philosophiques du libéralisme (2000). He is writing on the political thought of Alexis de Tocqueville.

CEES LEIJENHORST, Ph.D. (1998) in Philosophy, Utrecht University (Netherlands), is Senior Lecturer in the History of Modern Philosophy at Radboud University Nijmegen (The Netherlands). He is the author of The Mechanisation of Aristotelianism. The Late Aristotelian Setting of Thomas Hobbes' Natural Philosophy (Leiden, 2002) and numerous articles on Hobbes and early modern natural philosophy and philosophical psychology. He coedited The Dynamics of Aristotelian Natural Philosophy from Antiquity to the Seventeenth Century (Leiden, 2002).

FRANCK LESSAY is Professor of English Civilization at the Sorbonne Nouvelle–Paris III University. His research deals mostly with the history of political and religious ideas. Besides articles, his main publications include: Souveraineté et légitimité chez Hobbes (Paris, 1988); Le débat Locke/Filmer (Paris, 1998); Figures de la royauté en Angleterre, de Shakespeare à la Glorieuse Révolution (1999); Esthétiques de la nouveauté à la Renaissance (2001); Innovation et tradition de la Renaissance aux Lumières (2002); Enfers et délices à la Renaissance (2003, the last four works coedited with F. Laroque, Presses de la Sorbonne Nouvelle); Les fondements philosophiques de la tolérance (2002, coedited with Y. C. Zarka and J. Rogers, Paris, 3 vols.).

A. P. MARTINICH is Roy Allison Vaughan Centennial Professor in Philosophy and Professor of History, Government and Religious Studies at the University of Texas at Austin. His book Hobbes: A Biography (Cambridge, 1999) won the Robert Hamilton Book Award in 2000. He's also the author of The Two Gods of Leviathan (Cambridge, 1992) and Hobbes (London, 2005).

GIANNI PAGANINI is Professor of History of Philosophy at the Università del Piemonte Orientale, Faculty of Humanities (Vercelli). His main publications include Pierre Bayle (Florence, 1991), the critical edition of the previously unpublished libertine Latin text Theophrastus redivivus (with G. Canziani, Florence, 1981–2, 2 vols.), the history of skepticism (to which he is devoting a book: Skepsis, forthcoming), and Hobbes and his relations with the French context (above all Gassendi) and Renaissance sources (see the most recent essay, 'Hobbes, Gassendi und die Hypothese der Weltvernichtung', in Konstellationsforschung, ed. by Martin Mulsow und Marcelo Stamm (Frankfurt, Suhrkamp, 2005).
